Senate Body Condemns Pennsylvania WPA Politics

Children Put on Rolls Rally Tickets Sold Solicitation Found President to Speak

By Robert C. Albright.

The Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee struck again last night at political use of relief funds as the campaign scorched toward a week-end climax in a flurry of election blasts.

The committee reported "general solicitation" by Democratic workers of WPA truck drivers in one Pennsylvania county, demands on workers in another to change their political registrations, sale to WPA workers of tickets for a Democratic rally, and in one case, issuance of work cards to school children on WPA and State highway projects with no work required while they continue in school. In another Pennsylvania case Republicans were said to have used private employment rolls to help their ticket.

Meanwhile, President Roosevelt prepared to deliver from Hyde Park tonight his first and only speech of the campaign, in support of Gov. Lehman and the New York Democratic ticket. The speech also was awaited with interest for its possible bearing on other close pivotal contests.

Campaign Echoes

Other campaign echoes:

Speaking in Kirksville, Mo., Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi, gave a boost to Missouri's "Clark for President in 1940" movement by asking voters to give Senator Clark the greatest majority ever rolled up for a candidate in Missouri. Harrison added: "It may in the future come in to serve and bless and glorify this great State."

Secretary of Interior Ickes announced he would enter Pennsylvania's campaign furnace tonight with a speech before a Philadelphia Democratic political rally on "The Curse of Two Cities." Ickes declined to name the cities or the "curse" in advance.

Secretary of Commerce Roper in Fort Wayne, Indiana, invited the "Progressive element in the Republican party" to vote Democratic in next Tuesday's election "as they did in 1932 and 1936." The question of whether President Roosevelt should seek a third term he said should be delayed until after the elections.

Vermonter Wires Protest

In a campaign speech at Pittsburgh, Senator Davis, Republican nominee for reelection, declared "the defeat of George Earle on November 8 will spell the doom of the aspirations of Joe Guffey for the vice presidency in 1940." Davis is opposed by Earle for the Senate.

In a telegram to the Senate Campaign committee, Chairman Harry G. Hunter, of the Vermont Republican committee, charged "wanton disregard of the U. S. election laws by the Vermont Democratic Finance committee." He said WPA, PWA and other Federal employes in the State have been solicited for campaign contributions.

Senator Bulkley, (Democrat), of Ohio, candidate for reelection, phoned the Senate Campaign committee that he joined in the request of his opponent, Robert A. Taft, for a prompt and thorough investigation of alleged "coercion" of Ohio WPA workers to vote the Democratic ticket.

Use of private employment rolls to aid the Republican ticket in Pennsylvania was charged by the Senate Expenditures Committee. Investigators reported that workers have been hired by the Sun Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. at Chester, Pa., on recommendation of Republican leaders with "the intimation that those who received these letters and employment were expected to vote the Republican ticket."

Earlier yesterday the Senate committee received a letter from Sen-

Girl, 13, Wed as Elkton Faces Curb at Polls

Joe Sipola, an Elkton, Md., cobbler shown at his bench, is one of a number of "independents" in the marriage business who face a loss of a sideline if the 48-hour law is invoked

High School Freshman Marries WPA Worker Vote Awaited Tuesday on 48-Hour Law 2,308 Nuptial Knots Tied in Month

Elkton, Maryland's Gretna Green, turned out a 13-year-old bride and a record yesterday while citizens of the Free State prepared to go to the polls Tuesday and vote on a constitutional amendment slowing down its matrimonial procedure.

Frances Erb, Souderton, Pa., High School freshman, went to Elkton a bridesmaid and returned a bride. Her sister, Miriam, 17, at the same ceremony married Martin Nace, 23, a pants factory worker, and moved with him into the converted henhouse which for three years he has called home.

And Elkton persons, tallying up their score for October, discovered they had tied 2,208 knots, a total 74 better than the previous record set in September.

Apparently it was a case of making hey-hey while the sun shines. Tuesday, the Maryland electorate will decide if the State's basic law will be amended to require that 48 hours elapse between issuance of a marriage license and the wedding. Success of that move, it was feared, would mean lean pickings for the marrying parsons.

Yesterday's double wedding, its principals explained, was more or less an accident.

Mariam Erb and Martin Nace left Souderton to be married without delay. With them in Nace's

Jackson Loses Fight Over Lawyer's Fee

Ordered to Pay $10,000 Held Services Friendly 'Indictment' Avoided

Robert Jackson, attorney and former secretary of the Democratic National Committee, yesterday was ordered by a jury before Justice Cox to pay William Shaw McCallum, Boston lawyer, $10,000 for four years of legal services.

McCallum sued for $12,200. Jackson's defense was that the services were rendered on a friendly basis and not for a fee.

McCallum testified he took charge of Jackson's bankruptcy, in which his assets were $800,000 and his debts $1,200,000, and obtained him a clear discharge. He testified that he was called to New York in 1932 to straighten out some trouble involving Jackson.

'Indictment Certain'

"An indictment was certain," he said, but did not disclose the charge. He said he was able to settle the difficulty.

McCallum said he also was counsel for Jackson's daughter, when she obtained a divorce on grounds of mental cruelty from John Coonley, prominent Boston merchant whom she married in 1930. Soon after this divorce, in 1933, she became the wife of the late W. Forbes Morgan, once treasurer of the Democratic National Committee and later head of the Distilled Spirits Institute.

An expert witness was George I. Cohen, Boston lawyer, who called

Compromise On Loan Spurs Start by ADA

Straus and Ihlder Agree Each Concedes Points No D. C. Borrowing

A compromise agreement between the United States Housing Authority and the Alley Dwelling Authority on the terms of the USHA loan for a low-cost housing project has been reached, it was learned yesterday, and the contract is expected to be signed shortly by President Roosevelt.

Despite a published report that the ADA had "capitulated" to the demands of the USHA, it is understood that the basis of the accord is a compromise in which the ADA feels it has obtained acceptance of its principal points and in turn has agreed to definite financial limitations.

Statements Held Back

John Ihlder, executive officer of the ADA, said that he and Nathan Straus, administrator of the USHA, had agreed that no newspaper statements should be made until the contract is signed.

The published report, he said, does not present the agreement as reached. The report was that the ADA in a revised application for a USHA loan for a $10,614,000 low-cost housing project had consented to conform to the principle of subsidized rentals and financing laid down by the USHA in contracts already signed for 52 cities.

This was interpreted as meaning that the ADA is prepared to accept

Groom Faints Twice on Way To the Altar at American U.

A campus romance at American University reached the altar yesterday but the strain of the ceremony apparently was too much for the bridegroom. He fainted twice before the service was over.

The service at the Metropolitan Methodist Church on the university campus united Philip Gilbert, 24, a member of the 1938 graduating class, and Mary Evaul, 21, of the class of 1938. The bride's father, the Rev. Dr. Harry Evaul, superintendent of the Methodist Church for the Hagerstown (Md.) district, was the officiating clergyman.

In the bridal party were four participants in American University romances that had led to the altar. In fact the only person concerned who was not a graduate of the university was the best man, Raymond Thompson.

It was while the bridal party was moving to the altar to the strains of the traditional "Lohengrin" wedding march that Gilbert fainted for the first time. He was revived. The service proceeded to the point where he was to say "I do," and Gilbert went down a second time.

The service was moved to an alcove of the church where the bridegroom could take a wife while sitting down.

According to American University statistics, which make marriage seem a college tradition, one-quarter of its graduates select American University graduates as life partners.

The Rev. William A. Keese, pastor of the Metropolitan Cchurch, assisted in the ceremony.

The newlyweds will reside at the home of the bridegroom, 1431 Geranium street northwest.

McNinch Tries New Purge, Fails

Aims Ax at Arnold Lacks Enough Votes Case, Ill, Balks Him Wisner Is Next

By James D. Secrest.

Copyright, 1938, by The Washington Post.

Chairman Frank R. McNinch yesterday resumed his purge of the staff of the Federal Communications Commission by demanding the resignation of Davis G. Arnold, chief examiner and a civil service employe of 17 years' standing, The Post learned.

The resumption of the purge, which had been halted temporarily after the ouster of Hampson Gary as chief counsel in mid-October, proved abortive when a special meeting of the commission was called off abruptly.

Unlike the Gary case, it appeared doubtful that McNinch "had the votes" when Norman S. Case, former Governor of New Hampshire, left a sick bed to come to Arnold's rescue.

McNinch Denies It

Chairman McNinch last night denied he had demanded Arnold's resignation, but refused to discuss personnel matters further.

While Commissioners Eugene O. Sykes and Thad Brown were still with the chairman, it was learned that Commissioner Paul Walker was wavering. Upon Gary's ouster, only Commissioners George Henry Payne and T. A. M. Craven voted against the chairman. Case was absent.

Arnold declined either to confirm or deny the report and explained that as an employe of the commission he could not discuss FCC affairs.

Arnold, like Gary, was at first offered a job in another governmental agency. McNinch told him he had made arrangements for his return to the Veterans' Administration. When the chief examiner investigated, however, he found that the job would pay only $5,000, whereas he had been receiving $7,000.

Would Look Around

He then asked the FCC chairman to withhold the demand for his resignation until he could look around for a better job, but McNinch insisted on the resignation at once.

Whether Arnold will insist on a hearing before the Civil Service Commission or will accept the other job was uncertain last night. There was some indication that the diminutive FCC chairman may change his tactics and reorganize the examiners' division so as to abolish Arnold's position.

Although originally marked for the McNinch purge, Arnold was believed to have escaped the ax about ten days ago at a conference with the chairman. Consequently he was the more surprised at the abrupt demand for his resignation yesterday.

Wisner Next

The next man in line for the purge, it is understood, is G. Franklin Wisner, chief of the press division and a civil service employe of 12 years.

Balked in his effort to exempt this and 50-odd other FCC jobs from

Writer, Fearing For Wife's Sanity, Kills Her and Self

Monte Carlo, Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Police broke into the apartment of Gerson Wreschner, Danish-American writer, and his wife today, and found the body of Mrs. Wreschner, surrounded by wilted flowers.

Hanging from a rope was the body of Wreschner, a bullet hole through the temple indicating he had shot himself after an unsuccessful effort to hang himself.

The two had been dead more than three weeks. Wreschner left several letters explaining that he was slaying his wife and committing suicide because he feared his wife was going insane. Both were 61 years old.

Woman Who Drove Haig Dies in U. S.

Atlanta, Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Mrs. Catharine Maugham, 52, who chauffeured Field Marshal Sir Douglas Haig through several World War battles and received three wound stripes, the Croix De Guerre of France and the British silver palm for bravery, died here today.

Mrs. Maugham had been in failing health for more than a year. She was a native of Redcar, Yorkshire, England, and came to the United States in 1919.

Nazi Steamer Wrecked by Blast On West Coast; Sabotage Hinted

4 in Crew Hurt as Vessel Grounds in Bay Phone Call Warns of Impending 'Bombing' Incident Involves 2d Reich Ship in 10 Days

By the United Press.

Oakland, Calif., Nov. 3.—The Hamburg-American steamer Vancouver, flying the Nazi flag, was wrecked in the Oakland estuary today by an explosion which Capt. W. Moessinger, commander of the vessel, said might have been caused by a bomb. Four members of the crew were injured, two of them critically.

[District Attorney Earl Warren and a staff of investigators boarded the ship after it was moored to the side of the estuary, the Associated Press said.

[Chief of Police Vern Smith of Alameda declared the explosion looked "suspicious."

[The officers said a mysterious telephone message to the Oakland Tribune lent credence to the sabotage theory.

["Do you want some good news?" the unidentified caller asked the Tribune city editor. "A bomb just went up on a German ship."

[He hung up immediately and the blast followed within a few minutes.—Editor's Note.]

Settles in Mud

As the 8,269-ton vessel, carrying 17 passengers and a crew of 60, slowly settled in the mud of the estuary, Capt. Moessinger shouted to vessels which drew alongside: "It looks damned suspicious. The explosion appeared to have come from outside the ship. It threw a column of water as high as the superstructure.

"We can't be sure, though, until after an examination is made."

A tug was loaded at San Francisco with pumps and divers who will survey the damage to the hull.

H. C. Sugars, a railroad worker who was fishing along the shore when the explosion occurred, told of hearing a blast like that of a bomb.

Sounded Like Bomb

"I heard a sound like a bomb," he said. "Then I saw a huge column of water shoot into the air."

1,600 Sq. Mi. Of Forest Afire In West Virginia

2,000 Workers Drafted Flier Counts 59 Blazes Smoke 9,000 Feet High

By the Associated Press.

Charleston, W. Va., Nov. 3.—An unbroken blanket of smoke, 9,000 feet thick in places, shut out the sky from 1,600 square miles of Southern West Virginia tonight in the worst forest fire epidemic in eight years.

A draft call for 2,000 more fire fighters was signed to assist the 1,600 worn-out volunteers who have been on the lines for almost two weeks.

In the first airplane survey of 12 flame-ravaged counties, State Forester D. B. Griffin came back with this first-hand story:

"It is indescribable. All the southern part of the State is dotted with fires. I counted 59 blazes still burning.

"In Logan County, around the emergency headquarters at Sharples, our plane had to go to 9,500 feet escape the black pall. We had to fly blind almost to Charleston.

"That isn't fog you see," said Griffin pointing out the window of his office in the State Capitol. "That's smoke from fires seeping into the capital city itself."

Flames Peril Virginia Homes

St. Charles, Va., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—More than 250 men continued this afternoon to fight forest fires which had burned 5,000 acres of valuable timberland and licked their way to within a quarter of a mile of outlying homes here.

Firefighters said they believed the town of St. Charles was no longer in danger.

Frankfort, Ky., Nov. 3 (A.P.).—Three major forest fires raged in different sections of Kentucky today. The State forest service reported a "very dangerous fire" was coming across Black Mountain in Harlan County from Virginia.

Police Investigate Cult Dartmouth Grid Star Joined

Amherst, N. H., Nov. 3 (U.P.).—Harrington (Heavenly) Gates tonight had six days in which to decide whether to return to Dartmouth College or to remain where he had "peace and contentment" on the farm of the "Holy Ghost and Us" Society.

College officials informed the star halfback he had until next Wednesday to re-enter college and the 24-year-old blond giant from Saugus, Mass., yielded to pleas of his family and agreed to "consider" his studies at Hanover.

Meanwhile, Gov. Francis P. Murphy asked State police to investigate the "Holy Ghost and Us" Society farm where the senior is struggling with his conscience.

"The purpose of the investigation is merely to obtain information," Murphy's office at Concord said. "As far as Mr. Murphy knows, the cult is violating no law."

Rumanians Demand Three Czech Towns

Unity League Acts Hungary Troops Ready March In Saturday

By the United Press.

Bucharest, Nov. 3.—Demands for further dismemberment of Czechoslovakia to give Rumania three important frontier towns on the Tisa River were registered tonight as Hungarian troops prepared to march into Czech territory ceded to Hungary by decision of the Rome-Berlin axis.

The Rumanian demands, made by the League for Cultural Union of All Rumanians under former Premier Nicholas Jorga, followed the decision of King Carol II to establish a 100 per cent totalitarian state on Nazi-Fascist lines.

Instead of depending upon support of the western powers and her Little Entente allies, including Czechoslovakia, Rumania is moving into the orbit of the Rome-Berlin axis as a safeguard for its holdings in the Danube basin.

Italians Seek Trade

The League for Cultural Union of All Rumanians asked that the towns of Apshitza, Apsha-Slatina and Biseritza-Alba be turned over to the "Rumanian mother country."

The newspaper Semnalul said that the minorities problems of the Balkans must be settled "on ethnographical rather than historic lines."

Rumania's rapid strides toward achieving close collaboration with the Nazi-Fascist powers increased their pace today when it was learned an Italian economic mission, headed by Deputy Raffaele Riccardi, was en route here to seek increased Italo-Rumanian commercial activity.

Germany likewise is seeking to extend her economic influence in Rumania and the other Balkan countries, particularly Yugoslavia.

Prince Paul, regent of Yugoslavia, is arriving in a few days for a discussion of international problems with King Carol.

Hungarian troops will cross the Danube on pontoon bridges at three points at 10 a. m. Saturday, occupying 53-mile-long Schuett Island, the frontier town of Komarom and surrounding territory, in the first occupations of the territory ceded by the Czechs.

The first occupations will be in

British Dean Ousts Diggers Who Open Wrong Poet's Tomb

By the United Press.

London, Nov. 3.—The Dean of Westminster Abbey today told excavators to pack up their spades and get out after they had opened the wrong grave in search of an answer to the 170-year-old dispute as to whether William Shakespeare wrote his own works.

An attempt to prove, by digging nearly 4 feet to the tomb of Edmond Spenser, that Francis Bacon was the real author of Shakespeare's plays, ended in complete failure.

Instead of the grave of Spenser, England's "prince of poets" in whose grave the Baconian Society hoped to find documentary proof the Bard of Avon used a ghost-writer, they found someone else's battered casket.

There was some speculation that the 6-foot, 3-inch coffin of wood and lead, unearthed 15 feet from Spenser's monument, might be that of Michael Drayton, one of Shakespeare's drinking companions.

Drayton, a poet who died in 1631, was reported by John Ward, vicar of Stratford-on-Avon, to have joined Shakespeare and Ben Johnson in a "merry meeting" one night and "it seems they drank too hard for Shakespeare died of a fever there contracted."

Other experts contended the casket was that of Matthew Prior, who died in 1721 after asking that he be buried at the feet of Spenser.

The casket was caved in and showed evidence of having been pried open at some previous date. Nobody was quite sure whether it even contained any bones.

China Rule Must Satisfy 9 Powers, U. S. Reveals

Cites Brussels Stand Against 'Bloc' Policy Publishes Davis Notes Parley Only Recessed

The Foreign Situation

BRITAIN'S Prime Minister Chamberlain, ill at home, received a second vote of confidence from the House of Commons as the House of Lords approved the Anglo-Italian pact.

U. S. GOVERNMENT circles viewed France's financial crisis as placing that country at the crossroads of continuing with democracies or turning toward totalitarian principles.

JAPANESE reported captures of forts in a drive toward two new Chinese provinces.

Brussels Notes Published

By William V. Nessly.

Japan's declaration that she intends to include China in an Asiatic political and economic bloc is in conflict with a declaration by the Brussels conference of last year that settlement of the Sino-Japanese war "must be satisfactory to the conference powers," it was revealed last night.

The State Department made public a series of documents of the Brussels session, called to decide on a joint attitude toward Japan's invasion of China and attended by signers of the Nine-Power Treaty guaranteeing China's territorial integrity and maintaining the "Open Door" in commerce with China. Japan, though a signer of the treaty, did not attend the Brussels conference.

In the State Department's publication on the conference, was a report by Norman H. Davis, former "ambassador-at-large," to Secretary of State Hull on achievements of the sessions, which included:

"Express serving of notice that the settlement ultimately arrived at must be consistent with the principles of the Nine-Power Treaty and satisfactory to the conference powers."

Japan's Recalcitrance

Other achievements listed by Davis were:

"Demonstration of the unwillingness of Japan to resort to methods of conciliation.

"Clarification of the fact that the Japanese continue to insist that the issues between Japan and China are exclusive to those two countries whereas the Conference powers, with the exception of Italy, deny this and affirm that the situation is of concern to all of them and in fact to all members of the family of nations.

"Express reaffirmation by the Conference powers, with the exception of Italy, of the principles of the Nine-Power Treaty.

"Express serving of notice that the Conference powers will continue to concern themselves with the situation and that the Conference is not ended but is in recess and is subject to reconvocation.

Significance Denied

Though at the State Department it was said no significance attaches to issuance of the document just at this time, other than the November 3 aniversary of the opening of the conference, observers commented on the fact that it followed so closely Japan's declaration on Wednesday of her "immutable policy" to absorb China into a bloc with Japan and Manchukuo.

Also causig comment was the reminder in the last of Davis' notations that the conference is not ended, but that the powers shall continue to concern themselves with the situation, and the sessions may be resumed. There was no indication, however, that any thought was being given to recalling the delegates to Brussels.

'Saner' Budget Held Key to Prosperity

New Cures Questioned
Good Yule Trade Seen
Credit Men Gather

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—A "decade of unparalleled prosperity" could be expected by the country if a "saner" national budgetry program should be adopted justifying the fullfilling of present needs of the durable goods industry, Henry H. Heinmann, executive manager of the National Association of Credit Men, said here tonight.

"Some people think it is a bromide to speak of a balanced budget," he told the Baltimore Association of Credit Men at a banquet, "but the entire durable goods industry depends upon this more than any other factor. Unless there is some reasonable hope of the maintenance of the purchasing power of the unit or money, people do not invest money in long-term credits.

"The durable goods industry move forward on long-term bonds and upon faith and confidence in the future . . . The link between unemployment and mounting deficits is indeed definite."

"Two of the three factors credited with causing the current business upturn were questioned as to their soundness. He listed the factors as the lending-spending program, world-wide rearmament and inventory replacements.

"In the lending-spending program," Heimann said, "we are simply borrowing against the eventual day of repayment. To the extent our present business situation is improved some future period will be retarded."

Of the utilization of so much credit for rearmament purposes, he declared the increasing tax burdens "will bring the entire world a step nearer to drastic inflation with all of the hardships, sufferings and privations that follow in its wake."

Discussing the current situation, he said "the holiday trade for this year should be satisfactory."

Such "Utopian dreams" as the $30-every-Thursday" pension plan, were criticized and "constant compromising" with such demands assailed.

Anti-Diphtheria Drive Launched In Schools Here

The Health Department has launched an intensive diphtheria prevention drive designed to immunize each school against the disease.

Special groups consisting of a physician, a nurse, and a clerk are being organized to contact parents for permission to immunize their children. Special cards are being circulated to all children so work on the drive may begin immediately.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer, said however, that parents who have a family physician should take their children to him for this preventive work.

Immunization will cover school children of kindergarten and first three grades, Dr. Ruhland said. All parents with children under five years are also urged to take advantage of this service in the schools. Request cards may be obtained at schools.

More than 400 cases of diphtheria have been reported to the Health Department since the first of the year, and there have been four deaths.

The District Medical Society also urged that parents having family physicians call on them to avoid overtaxing public health facilities.

Allred Proposes WPA Project for Pecan Shellers

A WPA project to take care of the pecan shellers of San Antonio and vicinity left stranded by shutdowns charged to the wage-hour act, has been proposed by Gov. Allred of Texas, who yesterday sent Everett L. Looney, of the Texas Industrial Commission, here to discuss the situation with the Wage-Hour Administration and WPA.

Disputing exemption claims of Julius Seligman, president of the National Pecan Shellers Association, Looney said that the average wage of the San Antonio sheller was $2.50 a week or 5 cents an hour. He said that "Julius Seligmann, 'the baron of the business,' has a drawing account of $12,000 per year, and for an eight-year period prior to 1938, drew down additional profits of over $800,000. Yet he claims he cannot pay the minimum wage."

The Gallup Poll

Roosevelt Popularity Drops After Rising Seen as Munich Peace Plan Reaction

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, Nov. 3.—The spectacular rise in President Roosevelt's popularity which followed his peace plea to Hitler last month has been shortlived.

GEORGE GALLUP

With the national election four days off, the American Institute of Public Opinion's scientific samplings reveal a sharp slump in the popularity popularity since mid-October. The Institute's index now stands a little above where it was after the ill-fated Democratic "purges of August and September, with only a slight net gain carried over fro mthe few weeks when the President was widely hailed as an international peacemaker.

Major Party Vote For Roosevelt Against

Before Peace Plea	53.3%	46.7%
After Peace Plea..	59.6	40.4
Today	54.4	45.6

The abrupt drop is undoubtedly explained by the fact that, as noted in other Institute surveys, a public reaction has set in against the four-power peace settlement of Munich. At first there was a feeling of relief and elation when the war clouds had been removed, and President Roosevelt was given wide praise for his messages to Hitler and other European leaders urging a peaceful settlement of the Czech crisis. The immediate result was an increase in his popularity.

But since that time a growing number of voters, as Institute reports show, have begun to feel that the Munich settlement will not bring peace but only greater possibility of war. This belief is undoubtedly a major factor in the decline of the President's popularity.

It is a good illustration of how a crisis and a series of dramatic events can change public opinion, for the rise and consequent drop in Roosevelt popularity within one month have been the sharpest ever noted by the Institute in four and a half years of measuring Roosevelt's political standing.

When the Nation voted on Congress and on the President two years ago, Roosevelt was supported by a majority party vote of 62.5 per cent. The figure today 54.4 per cent—therefore, represents an eight-point drop. During the two-year interval there have been two major periods of decline in his popularity.

The first was set-off by the sit-down strikes in the winter of 1937 and the fight over the Supreme Court plan, which began soon after—in February, 1937. The drop continued until June for a net loss of approximately 5 points. No sooner had the line risen again to a new peak of 63 per cent in October than the business recession came and the second period of decline began, carrying the President down nearly 8 points in eight months.

Today, even though there has been an improvement in business conditions, the majority of voters are not in a better frame of mind, economically. The Institute has just completed a survey, for example, in which it asked:

"Considering your income and cost of living, do you feel you are better off today than you were a year ago?"

The replies are nearly 2 to 1 in the negative.

Better off.....	35%
Not better off.....	65%

This prevailing mood may be playing an important part in the current attitude toward the President.

Losses Noted in All Sections

The stimulus to Roosevelt's popularity directly following his peace plea was noted in all sections of the country in the Institute's previous survey. There were gains ranging from 4 points in the South and Midwest to 10 points along the Pacific Coast.

Today the drops by sections are almost as sharp as the gains were last month. Yet, despite the declines, the President has the support of a majority of the two-party vote in every section except New England.

219 G.O.P. Candidates Back Relief Inquiry
Rep. Buck Hints Social Security Changes

The Republican National Committee announced last night a total of 219 Republicans who are members of Congress or candidates for Congressional seats now have pledged themselves to seek an investigation "of political activities by all Federal relief agencies."

LESER

Since the original pledge, bearing 205 signatures, was made public, 14 other signatures have been added.

The committee listed these Senate candidates as among the recent signers: Donald A. Callahan, of Idaho; Oscar Leser, of Maryland; Rufus C. Holman, of Oregon, and Robert Beggs Wiley, of Wisconsin.

House incumbents or candidates who signed included Ralph O. Brewster, of Maine; Frank Carlson, of Kansas; E. Harold Cluett, of New York; Karl M. Lecompte, of Iowa; Noble W. Lee, of Illinois; Thomas E. Martin, of Iowa; Alfred C. Mueller, of Iowa; J. M. Pennington, of Alabama; Raymond Springer, of Indiana, and Walter B. Woodward, of Ohio.

Representative Buck (Democrat), California, said yesterday that proposed changes in the social security act probably would be among the first problems considered in the next Congress by the House Ways and Means Commitee, of which he is a member.

The Californian, who said he came here at the request of Chairman Doughton (Democrat), North Carolina, to do some preliminary investigation of questions with wlych the committee may have to deal, declined to specify what changes might be made in the law. It has been suggested that the act's benefits be extended to agricultural and domestic employes.

1938 indicated vote ..	40 158,238
1936 Presidential vote	45,646,817
1934 Congress vote ...	32,804,098
1932 Presidential vote	39,816,522

A survey indicated yesterday that approximately 40,000,000 ballots would be cast in next Tuesday's election—a record high for an off year.

This total would represent 73.9 per cent of the estimated eligible vote, listed in the survey at 54,324,930. In the 1936 Presidential election, 45,646,817 votes were cast, or 82.3 per cent of the estimated national voting strength.

New York's vote this year was estimated at about 4,900,000, with a total of 5,557,845 persons registered. The State's estimated vote this year is 696,398 under the 1936 vote, but tops that of 1934 by 967,594.

The indicated vote of Pennsylvania, where a bitter fight has been waged since the primaries, is 4,100,000 out of which 4,656,823 registered voters. The 1936 Pennsylvania vote exceeded the vote forecast for this year by only 38,105.

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Henry L. Stimson, former Republican Secretary of State, said today the national labor relations act was "bound to produce unfair results."

Stimson, now president of the Bar Association of New York City, in a letter to the New York Times condemned Senator Robert F. Wagner for upholding the act he sponsored and praised John Lord O'Brian, Wagner's Republican rival for re-election, for advocating amendments which Stimson said would make the act less biased.

Martin Again Subpenaed by Dies Inquiry

Witnesses Reluctant
Many Donate Money

By the Associated Press.

The House Committee on Un-American Activities again subpenaed Homer Martin yesterday, but consented once more to let the president of the United Automobile Workers postpone his testimony.

At the same time, Chairman Dies (Democrat), Texas, complained that the committee was having trouble getting witnesses since what he called President Roosevelt's "blast" at the methods of the inquiry.

A number of Government employes have signified a desire to testify, Dies said, but now are "afraid of losing their jobs."

Martin Begged Off

Martin was called in connection with charges that his union harbored communists. Two weeks ago he begged off from testifying on the ground that to do so would "reopen old wounds," at the time when he was engaged in delicate negotiations with the motor manufacturers.

Martin went to Dies' office yesterday for a conference. Then it was announced he would appear next Wednesday. Thus, Martin's testimony will follow rather than precede the Michigan election of next Tuesday.

In the "blast" to which Dies referred, President Roosevelt rebuked the committee for receiving testimony that Gov. Murphy of Michigan, now up for re-election, was guilty of treason in not adopting a firmer policy toward the sit-down strikers of early 1937.

Funds Contributed

Since Dies' speech of Monday night saying that committee funds were running low, numerous contributions of $1 to $10 have been received, but all were returned.

Outlining the future plans of the committee, Dies said it would take up reports next week of communist activity among colored workers in the South. A sub-committee will go to various Southern cities.

Winchester Council Criticizes Committees

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 3.—Members of city council took two of their committees to task when they learned at a meeting last night that an expenditure had been approved for improvements near the city limit by which a "bottle-neck" entrance was eliminated, three times as great as the appropriation.

Dr. Charles R. Anderson, mayor and president of the council, called it a "dangerous precedent." He contended the committee should have asked for a special meeting of the entire council before proceeding.

The total amount involved is $1,200. The original appropriation was for $400.

Va. Postmasters To Hear Woodrum

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—Representative Clifton A. Woodrum will be among the speakers at the annual meeting of the Virginia chapter, National Association of Postmasters, here Friday and Saturday.

Also invited to address the group is S. W. Purdum, of Washington, fourth assistant to the Postmaster general. Other speakers will include William J. Dixon, of Washington, superintendent of postmasters, and W. A. Keen, chief clerk of the Postoffice Department.

Secretary W. F. Crismond of Fredericksburg will present his report at Friday's business session and annual reports of other officers will be submitted Saturday.

protection of the civil service act, McNutt is expected to abolish Wisner's job and to place the press relations job directly under his command, responsible to him rather than to the commission as a whole.

Meanwhile, dissension within the commission has reached such a stage that observers believe the President may take a hand in reorganizing the radio regulatory body or may demand the resignation of several commissionrs.

All indications now point to a thorough investigation of the commission by the next Congress. A House inquiry last session was session was blocked by the Administration on the plea that McNinch should be given a chance to "clean house." Members who are demanding the probe, however, point out that he has been in office more than a year without effecting any substantial reforms.

Price-Fixing Charged to 13 Pencil Firms

Trade Commission Acts Association Is Accused
Industry's 'War' Blamed

Price-fixing by 13 companies which produce 90 per cent of the Nation's supply of lead pencils was charged yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission.

The companies all are members of the Lead Pencil Association, Inc., the commission said, and the association, with its president and commissioner, William A. McDermid, of New York, also were named in the complaint.

A price war in the industry in 1935 and 1936, the commission charged, led to formation of the association in 1937, and the member manufacturers and McDermid then "executed certain agreements and understandings for the purpose of unlawfully restricting, monopolizing and eliminating competition in the sale of their products."

Subsequent practices charged to the companies included fixing of uniform prices and terms of sale, establishing uniform agency contracts, and fixing uniform schedules of discounts on quantity shipments and annual cumulative purchases.

The compplaint allows 20 days for filing of answers.

Joseph Dixon Crucible Co., Jersey City, N. J.; the Eberhard Faber Pencil Co., Brooklyn; the American Lead Pencil Co., Hoboken, N. J.; Eagle Pencil Co., Inc., New York, and its subsidiary, Blaisdell Pencil Co., Philadelphia; Richard Best Pencil Co., New York; General Pencil Co., Jersey City, N. J.; Hassenfeld Brothers, Inc., Providence, R. I.; National Pencil Co., Shelbyville, Tenn.; Reliance Pencil Co., Mount Vernon, N. Y.; Universal Pencil Co., San Leandro, Calif.; Red Cedar Pencil Co., Lewisburg, Tenn., and Wallace Pencil Co., St. Louis.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 3.—Evelyn Dodd, 13-year-old student of Shiloh School, King George County, remained seriously injured in Mary Washington Hospital today as the result of being struck by an automobile Monday afternoon.

She had just gotten out of a school bus and was crossing the road to her Gulvey home when struck.

Pastors Support State Rum Board On Billboard Ban

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—Methodist ministers of Richmond today rallied to the support of the State liquor control board in its litigation over the question of outdoor advertising of alcoholic beverages.

The clergymen adopted a resolution urging the liquor board to "carry the matter to the highest courts in an effort" to obtain reversal of the recent decree of Judge Julien Gunn in the Richmond circuit court enjoining the board from prohibiting outdoor liquor advertising.

Outdoor advertising, the ministers asserted, would "greatly contribute to the further breakdown of morals on the part of all people who would be led to drink through such advertising."

Peter Levine Killing Linked To Kidnap Ring

'Break' Is Expected
Hideout Cellar Dug Up
Bones False Clew

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 3.—The unsolved slaying of 12-year-old Peter Levine, kidnaped from his New Rochelle, N. Y., home last February 24, was reported near a "break" tonight as Federal agents sought to link the crime with there alleged members of a "kidnap syndicate."

Dwight Brantley, New York G-man chief, disclosed that Federal sleuths working on the Levine case ran across clews which put them on the trail of another unsolved mystery—the kidnap-slaying of Arthur Fried, young White Plains, N. Y., businessman, last December.

"Those clews," Brantley said, "led to the uncovering of the so-called kidnaping trust."

Dig for Clews in Cellar

Meanwhile, police with picks and shovels dug up the cellar of a lower East Side building known as Ukrainian Hall—cited by G-men as the hideout where Fried's body was cremated in a furnace—in quest of new clews to support a theory it might have been used as a gangland execution chamber.

Fragments of bone and teeth which police first believed to have been parts of Fried's body, exhumed from a freshly cemented "tomb" in the cellar, were analyzed and found to be chicken, beef and rabbit bones from the refuse of banquets.

Investigators, however, had already discovered dark stains, as of blood, on a coal chute leading to the cellar, as well as a secret room and a machine gun.

Police Lieut. Thomas Curley said the walls of the hidden chamber were pocked with bullet holes.

One WPA Play Teacher

The captured trio, held without bail, gave their names as William Jacknis, 27, who said he was a former WPA playground instructor; John Virga, 34, a clothes presser, and Demetrius Gula, 28, a pinball operator.

They were arraigned on kidnaping charges in the abductions of Benjamin Farber, 33, of Brighton Beach, released for $1,800 after an original demand of $25,000, last April 18; and Norman Miller, 19, of Brooklyn, released for $13,000 after an original demand of $200,000, last July 24.

No charge was made against the trio in connection with the Fried case.

Joseph Stephen Sacoda, 27, named by FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover as the actual slayer of Fried, is now in Sing Sing for parole violation.

Hospital Head Testifies in A.M.A. Inquiry

Cites Institution Aims
Says Standards Are Set
G. H. A. Members Heard

The extraordinary grand jury investigating charges that the American Medical Association and the District Medical Society conspired to restrain trade yesterday heard from hospitals which the Group Health Association, Inc., claims barred its patients under pressure from the physicians' groups.

This exclusion and action against the G. H. A. staff are the background of the Department of Justice charge that the organizations violated the Sherman antitrust act. The chief witness yesterday was B. B. Sandridge, superintendent of Emergency Hospital.

"It has been our aim and desire to staff the hospital with people who measure up to the highest standard of their chosen profession," Sandridge said as he concluded his testimony, "and we have been guided by the judgment and advice of those we feel best qualified to pass on these qualifications."

Dr. Raymond Selders, of the G. H. A. staff, testified three hours, completing an account of the group practice controversy he began several days ago.

Other witnesses yesterday were Sarah Abbott, who holds an individual membership in G. H. A., and H. P. Avery, a Securities and Exchange Commission employe, of 1543 Forty-fourth street northwest, who carries a membership for his family. Mrs. Avery and her mother, Mrs. H. A. Austen, also testified.

Tri-State Group Hears Talks on Farm Credit

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 3 (AP).—More than a score of delegates representing 11 national farm loan associations of the Eastern Shore of Maryland, Delaware and Virginia, heard Federal Land Bank officers today in a discussion of local farmers' co-operatives.

The speakers outlined methods and advisability of financing farmers for the purchase of farm land, refinancing debts and provision of working capital through land banks. Everyday problems arising in operation of co-operative land bank loans were described.

Griebl Double-Crossed Nazis, Former G-Man Tells Spy Jury

Doctor Turned Informant Before Flight
Turrou Explains Delay in Arrest
Sleuth in Acid Exchange With Attorney

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 3.—Leon G. Turrou, former G-man testifying for the Government in the espionage trial of three persons in Federal Court here, today said the fugitive Dr. Ignatz T. Griebl "not only betrayed this Government, but betrayed Germany as well."

"He was our informant," Turrou said.

Dr. Griebl, a former United States Army Medical Corps reserve officer and German Bund leader, fled to Germany last May as a stowaway on the liner Bremen shortly before he was indicted with 17 others for plotting to steal American military secrets.

Turrou, a former $20-a-week "plus commissions" clerk who became a G-man and resigned after helping to expose the alleged Nazi espionage ring, ended his testimony after a day punctuated by acrimonious squabbling with George C. Dix, defense attorney for Johanna Hofmann, 26, one of those on trial.

Dix's question drew repeated rebukes from Judge John C. Knox.

An example of the cross-examination:

Q. Were you in Kings County Hospital for observation about 15 years ago?

A. Not that I remember.

Q. Were you brought up on charges by the police 20 years ago.

A. I think you are just inventing things.

Q. Were you once a ribbon clerk?

A. I was a salesman at Macy's at $50 or $60 a week.

Q. Suppose the record at Macy's shows your salary was just $20?

A. And commissions.

Q. Do you remember an occasion when I brought a Mrs. Danielson to your office and was kidding you?

"You never kidded me in your life," Turrou said coldly.

Dix next asked if Turrou had not expressed disgust at Adolf Hitler for "grabbing away the headlines" when he arrested Otto Hermann Voss, 38, another defendant on trial.

"T...at's a despicable lie!" Turrou shouted, reddening.

"Weren't you trying to get publicity for your own (newspaper) articles when you made the arrests in this case?"

"I was not," Turrou said.

Turrou testified he once had Dix ejected from the FBI office because, he said, glaring at the lawyer, "You became obnoxious."

"Did Washington order you not to arrest Dr. Griebl?" Dix asked.

"Washington was in direct charge of this investigation," Turrou replied. "We reported there daily by telephone."

Turrou explained that Dr. Griebl was not arrested, although he was seized with a secret spy code key in his possession, because "he was going to tell us the whole story."

W. M. Tredway Rites; Chatham Treasurer

Chatham, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—Funeral services for William Marshall Tredway, jr., 66, prominent Chatham attorney, who died Wednesday after a protracted illness, were held at the Tradeway home today.

He had served the town as treasurer for 27 years and for a quarter of a century had been examiner of records for the Fifth District. He served for 30 years as local counsel for the Southern Railway.

Drakes Branch, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—The training of young people to aid them in solving current problems is one of the most important aims of the Virginia Federation of Women's Clubs, Miss Lucille Bland, of West Point, federation president, told members of the Third District today.

The Third District of the federation has 16 senior and four junior clubs in the counties of Amelia, Campbell, Charlotte, Halifax, Franklin, Henry, Lunenburg, Nottoway, Mecklenburg, Prince Edward, Patrick and Pittsylvania.

Airport Plan Pressed In Charlottesville

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 3.—Plans are under way topurchase land and to secure Federal and State aid for the development of an airport for Charlottesville. Directors of the Chamber of Commerce have indorsed the proposal and will seek the approval and indorsement of the city council.

Since the abandonment of Wood Airport on the Garth road, several years ago, Charlottesville has been without a landing field.

'Bankroll George' Held on Charge Of False Check

"Bankroll" George Martin, 22, was was to have celebrated his wedding night yesterday—but instead he languished in a District precinct cell, charged with false pretenses in the cashing of a $350 check that "bounced."

Martin, alias Ralph B. Richard, who police said came here last week from Miami, acquired his nickname in a whirlwind week of champagne parties at a downtown night club, at which he lavishly spent. The bankroll was acquired when he cashed a check at a liquor store here, police charged.

The youth fell in love with a pretty night-club entertainer, police said, and was to have married here last night.

Unity for Results, Clubwomen Told

Centerville, Md., Nov. 3 (AP).—Women, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, of Baltimore, told a Federation of Women's Club meeting here today, can get anywhere they want if they want it bad enough.

Mrs. Whitehurst, vice president of the National Federation of Women's Clubs, was guest speaker at the thirty-fourth semiannual meeting of the Eastern Shore division of the organization.

Important objectives could be accomplished best by women through organization, Mrs. Whitehurst told approximately 400 delegates.

Representatives from the following clubs attended the meeting:

Hurlock, Cambridge, Elkton, Pocomoke, Chesapeake City, Federalsburg, Denton, Salisbury, Ridgely, Rhodesdale, Port Deposit, Perryville, Preston, Club Neck, St. Michaels, Wicomico County, New Market, Harrington, Del., Frederick, Del., and Seaford, Del.

Newborn Girl Left On Church Steps

serted at the Catholic Church steps early today, a newborn baby girl is being nursed at St. Joseph's Hospital. Police meanwhile were seeking a clew to the parents.

The infant, wrapped neatly in a heavy blanket, was found by the Rev. Father William Fols, who immediately took the infant to the hospital.

Sisters at the hospital said the child apparently was born sometime last night. They said there was no note or identification pinned to the blanket.

The child weighs 8 pounds and its health was described as good.

Brides

five-year-old automobile went Frances Erb and Robert Souder, 21, a WPA worker who dropped his shovel for a day. He was to be best man while Frances played bridesmaid to her sister.

"After we got there," said Frances, "we got to saying how nice it would be if we could get married, too. So we did."

Back at Souderton High School, 13-year-old Mrs. Souder told between classes of the wedding. School officials frowned and threatened dismissal. Mrs. Souder regretted the publicity.

"I had hoped," she said, "we could keep it secret until I was 16, anyway."

Seven Rungs to "Heaven"

Though there were no school officials to plague the Naces, other difficulties beset them in their henhouse honeymoon castle. To reach the second floor, they had to climb a tottering seven-rung ladder, the only entrance.

Mrs. Nace went back to her job as domestic in a Souderton home while Nace postponed pants making long enough to survey the bridal estate and consider improvements. He said he would sod the front yard, now cluttered with relics of old automobiles, rusty tin cans and rank weeds. Also, he said, he would plant a few flowers.

His cottage needs paint, but it is equipped with a stovepipe and several bits of furniture. These Nace plans to supplement as opportunity offers.

Not so full was the cup of Souder, the extemporaneous bridegroom. He took the day off from a paving project and gloomily predicted his marriage "might be annulled."

Town Belies Exterior

Elkton, settled in 1681, is a livelier place than its population of 3,500 and its sleepy streets would indicate. One of its principal industries is a factory which makes firecrackers and roman candles, and strung along its principal thoroughfares are unpretentious buildings where domestic fireworks are manufactured at the rate of about 12,000 sets a year.

This town on the Pennsylvania border flashed first into prominence as a marriage center about 1920, when the Rev. W. R. Moon—"Retired Baptist Minister—Marriages Performed"—set up shop there. He was followed by others and before long taxi drivers swung into line and began reaping a silver harvest steering prospective life partners to swift and secret union.

It was the possibility of being hitched quietly at Elkton that made the place Maryland's Gretna Green; that and its location on trunk highways and rail lines. Reporters did not scan records there so closely as they might those of more important places, and couples seeking immediate action without great fanfare turned to Elkton. Thus the town has become well known to many a grinning courtroom and, unfortunately for the marriage business, a stench in the town's own nostrils.

Signs Taken Down

First, in 1935, the town commissioners ordered signs removed from Elkton's marriage shops. In 1937 the town commissioners adopted an ordinance requiring soliciting the trade of love hungry couples lay $100 a year on the line, a tax which prosperous taxi companies snapped up in their tride. And in that same year, the State Legislature passed a law requiring 48 hours between license and wedding.

Taxi companies and solicitors (and ministers, it is said) got busy at once under Maryland statute and circulated a petition demanding a Statewide referendum on the qustion and quickly accumulated 6,400 signatures, enough to postpone operation of the new law 30 days. In that time they git 3,600 more names to their petition, sufficient to make a referendum mandatory.

It is on that question Maryland will vote Tuesday. Should the State vote for the law, Elkton likely will slide back toward the dreamy town it was before love-in-a-hurry woke up in 1920.

Should Maryland vote the law out of existence, Elkton will go ahead, its marrying parsons tying knots with both hands 24 hours a day by mandate of the people.

Senators Find Pennsylvania WPA Misused

Politics

ator Bulkley stating he was accepting no further campaign contributions from Federal employes. Bulkley called the committee's ruling against political contributions by Federal employes a new one, and asked that it not be made retroactive. He said he never solicited such contributions.

Mayor Hague of Jersey City meanwhile replied to committee allegations of illegal voting by "floaters" in Hudson County with the comment that "never in the history of politics has such a ridiculous statement been issued."

Last night's committee criticism of both Democratic and Republican campaign methods in Pennsylvania virtually ended the Senate group's preelection study, although Chairman Sheppard said another meeting would be called in case of emergency. Results of the investigation are expected reverberate through the next Congress, with contesting of some Senate seats not unlikely.

Williams Denial Quoted

Following yesterday morning's session, the committee called "indefensible" a letter allegedly written to Pennsylvania State, Federal and WPA workers by Joseph F. McElwee, a member of the State compensation board. The phrase criticized in the letter said "there will be no excuse accepted for lack of attendance."

In presenting evidence of alleged political interference with relief and other workers in Pennsylvania, corroborating three charges by Senator Davis, the committee quoted without comment a denial by Works Progress Administrator Williams that "there is not a scintilla of truth in any of the charges." Sheppard declined comment on the Williams statement, beyond saying it was contradictory to committee findings.

Sheppard further told newsmen:

That evidence has been gathered on charges that Republicans intended to manipulate the voting machines in Philadelphia, and on allegations by John B. Kelly, chairman of the Democratic City executive committee in Philadelphia, that a slush fund was being raised to "buy up" Democratic committeemen, to remove registration cards of certain persons entitled to vote. Sheppard said the attention of Philadelphia prosecuting officials would be called to this evidence so the charges could be prosecuted "if the facts warrant."

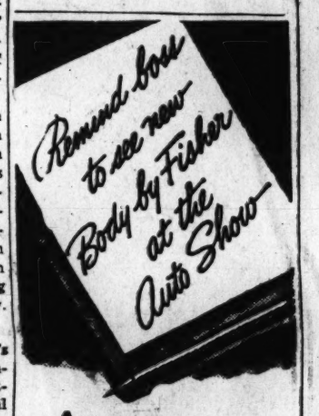
That Numerous WPA workers in Luzerne County, including timekeepers, laborers and women on sewing projects, have been ordered to change their registrations from Republican to Democratic, with threats of the loss of their relief employments if they refused."

That there was " a general solicitation of WPA truck drivers in Carbon County, that a $100 contribution was requested from each of them, and that contributions in various amounts were made."

That Harry J. Williams, manager of WPA branch No. 2 at Wilkes Barre, knew at the time a recent WPA investigation was made that WPA employes in Luzerne county had received postal cards ordering them to report to Democratic Campaign headquarters, and when they did report they were asked for contributions.

That investigatos were informed that work cards on the tSate highway were being handed out to children under 16 and 17 years of age, who are put on WPA and State highway payrolls and permitted to return to high school without doing any work.

That State highway work cards "are distributed through and by political clubs."



All over town it's on secretaries' calendars for tomorrow: "Remind boss to see the new Body by Fisher at the Auto Show."

And long after tomorrow it will be the talk of the town. "See the new Body by Fisher. See how its new beauty, safety and luxury make the new General Motors cars the smart buys of '39."

Guarantee Sought

A Czechoslovak government radio announcement emphasized today the most important task facing Czech diplomats is that of obtaining a guarantee from Europe's great powers for the revised frontiers.

The Prague government argued that all of Czechoslovakia's neighboring states should join France and Great Britain in guaranteeing the Czech frontiers as result of the Munich four-power agreement and the subsequent cession of territory to Poland and Hungary.

The population of Czechoslovakia, after dismemberment, was estimated officially in Prague at 10,500,000, as compared with almost 15,000,000 previously. The loss of territory during the last month was listed at about 15,000 square miles, including 11,800 to Germany, 4,635 to Hungary and 720 to Poland.

Red Cross Aids Refugees

By the Associated Press.

The American Red Cross is undertaking to relieve suffering among Czechoslovakians made homeless by German occupation of the Sudetenland, it was announced yesterday.

Five thousand Christmas boxes, filled by American school children with boys knives, dolls, candy, soap, toothpaste and picutre postcards, were shipped to Czechoslovakia Wednesday.

At the same time the Red Cross cabled funds for the delivery of 15,000 cans of condensed milk and 1,200 pounds of dried milk to refugee centers where "great need" was reported.

The organization also forwarded to Prague a $10,000 check from the Czechoslovakian colony in Cleveland, Ohio.

'39 Farm Income Will Be Bigger, U. S. Bureau Says

Farm families in 1939 will have more money for living expenses and paying off debts, than they had this year, the Agriculture Department's bureau of home economics said yesterday.

At the same time the Nation as a whole will have a larger meat supply, chiefly in pork since the total slaughter of both cattle and calves is expected to be smaller next year, the department said.

"As incomes rise," the bureau asserted, "farm families tend to spend part of the increase for living but they apply a larger share than do city families toward getting ahead financially—paying off debts and making investments, especially in the farm business."

Stand-In Needed For Eating Scene

Boris, a wolf hound loaned to Paramount by the Hollywood Dog Training School, found himself in a spot in "Escape From Leavenworth," in which he appears with Akim Tamiroff and Frances Farmer.

Boris had a job human actors often have in pictures—that of eating in take after take.

Tamiroff, according to the script, tossed him one hunk of raw meat after another through several takes. Finally Boris sniffed and gave up. He was satisfied.

"What am I going to do?" asked Director Alfred E. Green.

"Simple," said the attendant. He went out to his dog car, got a double for Boris, who worked in the scene where Boris left off.

Gesell Is Named Attorney for SEC's Insurance Inquiry

Gerhard Gesell, 28-year-old attorney who acted as Securities Commission counsel in the Richard Whitney case, was appointed today chief attorney for the SEC's investigation of insurance companies. Ernest J. Howe, of Denver, was appointed chief financial advisor for the insurance study.

The commission's monopoly division is examining investment policies in the insurance industry, as part of the broad investigation of economic practices being conducted by a committee of Congressmen and executive officials.

SEC Chairman William O. Douglas indicated the commission's monopoly division would be ready to begin public hearings on the insurance industry by the first week of January.

Hazen Orders No Leniency on Low Licenses

Meets With Maj. Brown Night Ban Frowned On Meters Due Nov. 15

By Howard P. Wentworth.

Motorists who hold low number license plates are in for serious trouble unless they mend their ways, Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen warned yesterday.

"Either these motorists obey the law the same as every other driver is expected to do, or we will see to it that appropriate action is taken. Holders of these low figure tags are no better than anyone else—and their license plates don't entitle them to park or drive illegally."

In recent week, said Hazen, numerous complaints have been received, describing in detail instances of recklessness and lawbreaking by drivers with three and four figure tags. In most cases, these plates are issued to local and Government officials, their families and friends.

The Commissioner instructed Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, to keep a careful watch on cars with low license plates and rigidly enforce all laws—driving and parking—against the owners.

Frown on Night Ban

At a meeting with Maj. Brown and Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer, Hazen frowned on the all-night parking ban proposed by his associate, Engineer Commissioner David McCoach. He said the proposed prohibition—discussed for several years—would work an unnecessary hardship on the motoring public. The present lack of adequate garage space, he declared, made the ban impracticable.

Maj. Brown and Van Duzer agreed that with more than 180,000 automobiles registered in the District, it would be impossible suddenly to order them off the streets.

"If such a program is ever considered seriously," said Van Duzer, "Washington motorists should be given at least fifty years' notice."

It was also decided at the meeting to begin strict enforcement of the new "white line" parking restriction at street intersections on Monday. Where curbs are painted white, cars will not be permitted to park within 20 feet of the building line or not more than 50 feet from all corners.

Meters to Be Installed

"The job of painting the curbs," said Van Duzer, "is virtually completed. We will all be through by Monday."

It was announced that Washington's new parking meters would be installed by November 15. Installation work will begin Monday. The meters will be erected in the area between Ninth and Fourteenth streets, E and F streets, in front of the District Building, in front of banks near Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest and along the east side of Seventh street north of E street northwest.

Motorists who rent space at the parking meter sites will not be permitted to renew their rental after the legal time-limit has once expired, Hazen ruled. It will cost the same—five cents—to park in the 20-minute and hour-parking zones.

Figures Uphold Women in Industry

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Don't blame unemployment on the women who hold jobs in industry, warns the National Industrial Conference Board, a research organization dominated by males.

Citing statistics, the board, which is supported by industries and large corporations, declared "the percentage of male workers in the total population has been approximately the same since 1870," that "the increase in the number of women workers has not been at the cost of men," and furthermore that "particularly in the years up to 1930 it would have been impossible to maintain the level of industrial production without female employes."

$55,000 Bond Set for 7 Dope Ring Suspects

Hearing Nov. 17
All Deny Guilt
3 Women in Group

Bonds totaling $55,000 were ordered yesterday to hold a "syndicate" of four men and three women for a preliminary hearing November 17 on narcotics charges.

The group, believed to have ramifications in New York and several Southern States, was rounded up here Tuesday night in raids.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Turnage, the sextet pleaded not guilty to charges of conspiracy to violate the Harrison narcotic act and the drug import and export act.

Described by Federal agents as the leaders of the gang, John A. Johnson and George A. Brawley were ordered held under $15,000 bond each. Bond of $5,000 each was set for Frederick Brannon, alias B. O. Brown; Raymond Price, Fannie Maggio, Blanche Brawley and Margaret Histon.

Thomas Hill, owner of a Rock Hill (S. C.) department store, charged with the transportation of heroin from Washington to South Carolina, in a warrant issued by Commissioner Turnage, was expected to be returned to Washington to answer charges. The other suspects were in the custody of New York police.

Blast Wrecks Nazi Ship in 'Frisco Harbor

force of the explosion came from outside or inside the hull.

The Vancouver was on her way from the Encinal Terminal, Oakland, when the explosion occurred in the narrow estuary separating the cities of Oakland and Alameda.

As the 477-foot combination freighter and passenger carrier, the second German vessel to meet with an accident within a week, shook with the force of the blast, she swung sharply toward the Oakland shore.

Boatswain's Mate J. A. Hudson of a passing Coast Guard Patrol boat watched while the Vancouver let go her forward anchors and her stern swung around into the channel.

The stern settled about 10 feet in the mud, with the bow rising from the water.

Moessinger told Hudson to send for Coast Guard and civic authorities.

Witnesses said several persons were lying on the decks, apparently knocked down and stunned by the explosion. The four crew members who were injured were in the engine room, and were scalded. They were given first aid treatment by the ship's doctor.

Attache Boards Ship

Later Moessinger permitted a representative of the German Consulate, two doctors and an inspector of the U. S. Steamboat Service to board the vessel. The police authorities were already aboard by this time.

The passengers had boarded the vessel at Pacific Northwest ports. At least 30 others were waiting in San Francisco to sail on the vessel for Bremen. The Vancouver also carried a cargo of lumber, fruit and general merchandise.

Capt. Moessinger told the United Press there was a sharp detonation on the starboard side of the engine room.

"I ran the ship aground on the Oakland side of the estuary in 28 feet of water. The engine room is flooded."

Passengers waiting at the San Francisco pier at first refused to believe anything had happened. Then one girl started to weep. She said she had used all her savings for a trip to see her mother in Hamburg and she feared her clothes, already on board, had been ruined.

Shipping men pointed out that had the explosion occurred 20 minutes later the vessel would have been in the deep water of San Francisco Bay and not in the shallow estuary.

Another Nazi vessel, the S. S. Deutschland, was in trouble in the Atlantic Ocean last week when a fire broke out in her holds.

Concessions Speed Start of ADA Project a 90 per cent loan instead of the 100 per cent loan as first requested.

Concessions Mutual

It is understood, however, that the agreement involves concessions on both sides. The ADA has won its point on the application of subsidies in terms of family need and in omitting the District government from responsibility for any of the financing.

The ADA has accepted, it is understood, the USHA limitations on family income and on the price to be paid for slum property. The USHA limitation in other cities on the maximum a local authority may pay for property is $1.50 a square foot.

Ihlder called Straus by telephone after the publication of a report that the ADA had accepted the USHA terms and asked if he had given any interview.

Straus replied that neither he nor his office had released any information with regard to the ADA contract and that none would be given out until the contract is signed by the President. At that time a joint statement will be released by Straus and Ihlder.

This agreement as to secrecy, Ihlder said, was in accordance with his understanding, and he added that he has abided by it.

The ADA request for a $10,614,000 loan has been pending before the USHA for several weeks, and the application has been returned several times for modification.

10 Per Cent Due

The USHA refused to grant the 100 per cent loan from the first, but the Ada was equally adamant against holding the District government responsible for 10 per cent of the loan. It was pointed out that the project would be unduly delayed and that there was no assurance that Congress would appropriate the money.

Under the new agreement, it is understood, the USHA will lend only 90 per cent of the amount requested, but will aid the ADA in obtaining the other 10 per cent without calling upon the District government for a loan.

The District contract, while in its final stage, will not be submitted to the President for his signature before November 20, it was said at the USHA.

Trial Set Nov. 14 For Attack Suspect

Justice Proctor yesterday set November 14 for the trial of Ralph H. Haynes, 23, for alleged attempts to ravish two women here last Friday night. Kenneth Emick, Haynes' lawyer, obtained a court order for a mental examination which will be made by alienists from St. Elizabeth's Hospital. Assistant District Attorney Krouse will arrange for the examination.

Hunters of Post Turn Over Possum To District Zoo

The Washington Post 'Possum Hunters' Association made its first catch Wednesday night in the woods behind Old Pohick Church and yesterday afternoon delivered the 'possum, tentatively named Oscar, to the Washington Zoo.

The beast was received by Clayton Barnes, an attendant, on behalf of Dr. William M. Mann. An attendant named Angus has been directed to receive the acquisition, but he had difficulty holding Oscar by the tail. Oscar's feet, functioning off free-wheeling from the knees, kept in such motion that Barnes rushed up to comment:

"Give me the beast; he brings up memories of when I used to pull them out of Virginia trees."

"That's no Oscar," somebody said, "he's a lady. Let's make his—her—name Bessie."

Roach Powder Cookies Kill 2 in Ohio Asylum

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 3 (AP).—Roach powder, mistakenly used in cookie batter as baking powder, caused the deaths of two women inmates and illness of 14 others at the State Hospital for Feeble Minded, Superintendent F. L. Keiser said today.

Dr. Keiser said an attendant, who refilled the baking powder box from a store room in which the roach powder also was kept, had been suspended.

We hope we set a boy to dreaming

OUR Parade of Progress has come and gone.

The big silver trucks have packed up their shows and disappeared over the far horizon.

We enjoyed our stay and your hospitality; we hope that you enjoyed the things we had to show you.

If it gave you a clearer understanding of how General Motors links Science and Industry in the service of human needs, we are grateful.

We hope it accomplished one more thing: that somewhere in your city we have set a young boy to dreaming!

As we see our job, General Motors is not concerned alone with making good cars or fine products for today.

We are even more vitally concerned with preparing better cars for tomorrow and with providing even greater conveniences for future households.

For in so doing—in performing this task faithfully—we believe we are contributing toward a better country and a richer and more satisfactory future for our sons and daughters.

The real hope for continued progress lies in the spirit of individual initiative—in the methods and processes yet to be perfected and the discoveries still to be made.

That's why we hope that among the crowds who visited our exposition there were youngsters who found their imaginations stirred, who caught the glimmerings of a vision, who started in pursuit of that vision by turning to their home chemistry sets, their construction toys, their tool kits and workbenches.

The first purpose of the Parade of Progress is to interest, to enlighten, to entertain.

Through that purpose we hope to make clear the processes through which industry performs its share of the world's work.

But parades must sooner or later all reach their end. Progress is something that can never halt.

That is why we hope that somewhere we set a boy to dreaming—and set him on a road of usefulness and service to himself, his country and his fellow men.

Real Income At Top Point Since January

Wages, Salaries Up Living Costs Down Third Month's Gain

Minneapolis, Nov. 3.—The "real income" of the average consumer during September was at the highest level since last January, according to a monthly study of what people get and spend, made public here today by Investors Syndicate.

Although "real income" in September was off 14 cents on the dollar of a year ago, it was up for the third successive month. It was up 6 cents on the dollar over August and 7 cents over July.

The third successive monthly real income gain resulted from an increase in cash income, notably in wages and salaries, and a decrease in living costs, especially foods and to a lesser extent clothing.

Wages during September were 80 cents compared with a dollar in September, 1937. Wages in August were 76 cents on the dollar compared with a year earlier. In july wages were 67 cents on the dollar compared with those of the same month in 1937.

Salaries during September were 90 cents on the dollar when contrasted with a year ago. In August they were 85 cents on the dollar compared with the same 1937 month and in July they were only 84 cents on the dollar of a year earlier. Other income, mostly represented by business profits and farm income is 87 cents on the dollar contrasted with September, 1937. In August this item was only 84 cents on the dollar.

All living costs in September, 1938, were 95 cents compared with $1 in the like 1937 month. The same amount of food could be purchased for 92 cents in September as $1 would buy in September, 1937. Both of these items are unchanged from their August levels.

$54,429,205 For Christmas

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Mutual savings banks in 17 States just before Christmas this year will distribute $54,429,205 to 1,326,797 Christmas Club depositors, the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks announced today.

Both the number of dollars to be distributed and the number of recipients are the biggest in history. Deposits are $2,771,884 greater than last year and the number of depositors 99,906 larger. The average depositor who throughout the year built up his club account with regular weekly or semimonthly deposits will get $41.02.

New York State led the Nation in deposits and depositors. An aggregate of $24,057,899 will be distributed here to 583,127 savers. Massachusetts ranks second, with $13,124,360 and 325,829; Connecticut third at $5,386,191 and 137,662.

Folk Music Forms Score of Picture

Surrounded by a mountainous pile of folk music, Ralph Rainger recently began research preliminary to writing the underscore for Paramount's "Paris Honeymoon," the new Bing Crosby-Franciska Gaal picture.

Most of the action in the picture is laid in a mythical Balkan nation. In writing the score, Rainger decided to avoid study of the masters, such as Brahms and Liszt, but to go to the regional sources from which the masters drew their themes, melodies and styles for the music. The collection of folk music includes music of Rumania, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Hungary and Russia.

Commodity Purchasing Policy Submitted

New York, Nov. 3.—The following recommendations as to purchasing policy for various important commodities are made today by the Standard Statistics Co.:

Advance purchase justified at present levels—Bituminous coal, burlap, butter, copper, cottonseed oil, fuel oil, hides, lard, lead, lumber, parafin, rayon, rosin, rubber, scrap steel, silk, steel, tine, zinc.

Cover future requirements on price weakness.—Paper.

Advance purchases should be postponed—Anthracite coal, cement, cheese, cocoa, coffee, corn, cotton, eggs, flour, gasoline, linseed oil, lubricating oil, oats, pig iron, rye, silver, sugar, tallow, turpentine, wheat and wool.

Listed Share Values Increase in October

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—The market value of shares listed on the New York Stock Exchange increased $3,475,078,400 during October to a total of $47,001,767,212, the exchange's monthly compilation disclosed today. The average market value per share was $32.96 on October 31, compared with $30.54 on September 30.

The exchange also announced that members' collateral borrowings on October 31 totaled $580,741,637, an increase of $56,539,000 over the September 30 volume.

Priestly Cackles In London Over Eggs Laid in N. Y.

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Nov. 3.—New York City is hostile, menacing, tragic, cheap and disillusioned, if you care for the opinion of J. B. Priestley, Britain's successful dramatist and Broadway's biggest flop simultaneously.

Priestley, who might be called Britain's modern Shaw, except that he lacks a beard, has been wondering why such plays of his as "I Have Been Here Before," "Time and the Conways" and "Edep End" flourished in Piccadilly and folded in Manhattan. He confesses he is bewildered by the "unanimous hostility" shown to his brain children by the American critics.

Diggers Ousted, Opened Wrong Poet's Tomb

digging but the Dean of Westminster, Dr. Paul Labilliere, put his foot down.

The members of the Baconian Society, who had spent eight years in persuading him to open Spenser's tomb, pleaded they were sure the right tomb could be found near Chaucer's tomb.

The dean was adamant, however, presumably fearing an outcry from descendants of England's great poets if he permitted molestation of their tombs.

Tennyson Lies Nearby

Alfred Lord Tennyson and Robert Browning are buried side-by-side a few feet from Chaucer's stone and marble tomb.

The officials of the Baconian Society, carrying out their digging behind a huge canvas screen, contended famous literary figures of the day, including Shakespeare but not Bacon, had dropped written tributes on Spenser's casket when he was buried 339 years ago.

If they could find a Shakespeare manuscript, they said, it would enable them to identify Shakespeare's handwriting and thus they might be able to end the dispute.

Dispute Rages in U. S.

Early last month, Dr. Wallace McCook Cunningham, Williamsburg (Va.) mathematician, announced he had uncovered two brand-new sets of plays written by a writers' syndicate headed by Sir Francis Bacon to which, he said, all of Shakespeare's plays could be traced.

A month earlier, Mrs. Marie Bauer, of Glendale, Calif., was given permission by the vestry of Burton Parish Episcopal Church at Williamsburg, to dig in the churchyard for evidence of Bacon authorship of Shakespeare.

TUNING IN IS NOT ENOUGH... It's the kind of reception you get that counts

If you can't be there . . . be home with a NEW radio
Of course, it's nice to be bundled up in blankets right on the fifty-yard line cheering for Old Siwash or for whomever your favorite team may be. However, time, expense or other plans may prevent your trip to the game. Boy, oh boy, will a radio save the day for you then! Clearly, sharply, distinctly, and right in your own home, you may hear every play, hear the referee's whistle, the thud of pigskin as it spirals off a punter's toe, every run back, every thrill. You can be in on every formation, every huddle—thanks to the miracle of radio. The new features of present-day radio give you such developments as Miracle Tone Chamber, Touch Tuning, Time Tuning, Remote Control, Mystery Control, Beamascope, and many others that make reception far better, tuning-in far simpler than ever before. Cabinets are more beautifully styled. In fact, the radio of 199 makes previous models obsolete, and todays programs a thousandfold more enjoyable. Chest Speakers Rehearse for Campaign

Given Data on Work
Pershing Guest of Unit
Posters Out Tomorrow

Answers to questions that annually beset speakers of the Community Chest were rehearsed last night at a meeting of 85 volunteer workers at the Annapolis Hotel in preparation for the Washington campaign which opens Wednesday.

What to do about the beggar on Washington's streets, how to treat the child who is selling shoestrings or flowers and—most particularly of all—how to answer questions about controversy between group health exponents and local hospitals.

How to offset the bad effects of a letter being circulated asking that prospective Community Chest givers withhold their donations until it was definite none of the money would go to any hospital "discriminating against group health" was brought up by several speakers.

Coleman Jennings, president of the Chest, said that already an effort is being made to get senders of the letter to counteract its effect with another one explaining the real situation.

Does Not Take Sides

"To go to the real source is usually the best way," he explained. "The Community Chest, as you know, buys hospital service for the indigent needy. No hospital is a member of the Chest. As an organization of our nature, we cannot take sides in a controversial question that has nothing to do with us."

Mrs. W. A. Roberts, president of the Council of Social Agencies, explained the work of her organization and the uses to which it puts Community Chest funds.

Gen. John J. Pershing, first chairman of the Government unit when the Chest was organized, was guest of honor yesterday afternoon at a meeting of unit members to plan the drive for $789,000 to be conducted among Federal employes in the forthcoming drive. The members met in the Labor-Interstate Commerce Auditorium on the call of Alvin W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Printing and Engraving and this year's unit chairman.

Posters Up Saturday

Arthur Hellen, first vice president of the Chest, urged the whole-hearted support of the Junior Board of Commerce in the approaching campaign. He called the Chest the "finest piece of social work that ever has been done in the city of Washington."

The Chest, he told the board, is not only a "collecting and distributing agency" for its members, but a guarantor that charities receiving funds from it will use "worthwhile methods and will spend the money properly and providently."

Posters to be used in the campaign will go up tomorrow in 3,000 windows of the five suburban areas joining in the movement. Ninety-three Boy Scout troops will deliver them for display to merchants in Alexandria, Arlington, Fairfax, Montgomery and Prince Georges counties, it was announced by Lynn C. Drake.

"Give a Hand-Up—Not a Hand-Out" is the slogan on this year's posters.

Justice Laws Rejects Lie Detector Test

Justice Laws yesterday refused to approve a lie detector test for James F. Curtis, 35, whose first conviction for armed robbery was reversed by the court of appeals. Curtis' second trial was set for November 20 after Assistant District Attorney Jackson pointed out that the court of appeals had held in another case that the lie detector is not reliable enough to be used in court.

Justice Laws suggested that Curtis' lawyer, James F. Laughlin, produce scientific authorities to support the claim that the instruments have been improved since the decision.

Say it—with a Clear Skin

OUR SKIN frequently reflects how we feel. In business and social contacts we like our friends to tell us how well we look.

The laity now recognizes—as physicians and scientists have for years—the vital importance of rich, red blood, as the foundation of strength, energy, and a clear healthy skin.

for that tired-let-down feeling

It is well known how worry, overwork and undue strain take their toll of the precious red cells of the blood.

S.S.S. Tonic brings you new strength and vitality by restoring your blood to a healthy state, and its benefits are cumulative and enduring in the absence of an organic trouble.

improves the appetite

Further, S.S.S. Tonic whets the appetite . . . foods taste better . . . natural digestive juices are stimulated, and finally, the food you eat is of more value . . . a very important step back to health.

Buy and use with complete confidence, and we believe you, like thousands of others, will be enthusiastic in your praise of S.S.S. Tonic for its part in making "you feel like yourself again."

At all drug stores in two sizes. You will find the larger size more economical.

S.S.S. Tonic stimulates the appetite and helps change weak blood cells to strong ones.

Chest Unit Heads Map Drive Among U. S. Workers

Methods to raise the Community Chest quota assigned to United States workers were discussed at a meeting of unit heads yesterday. Shown at the session are W. S. Flather, jr. (left), campaign chairman; Coleman Jennings, Chest president; Col. Robert H. Fletcher, vice chairman of the speakers unit, and Alvin W. Hall, chairman of the Government unit and head of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing.

Mrs. Roosevelt Flies Through Snow to Coast

Seattle, Nov. 3, (AP).—Mrs. Roosevelt arrived here early today by plane to visit her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Boettinger, and her grandchildren, Eleanor and Curtis.

En route to Spokane late last night the plane flew through the first snow flurries of the season which delayed its arrival in that city by 30 minutes.

Office-Worker Wage To Be Discussed Today

Members of the wage conference considering a minimum salary for women office workers will discuss proposed budgets at a meeting this morning in the Old Police Court building.

The hearing, open to the public, begins at 10 a. m. Members of the employes group will submit a budget requesting a wage "in excess" of $17 per week, as was recommended by employers.

Editor Plunges To Death Asking God Forgive Him

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Victor E. Watson, 58, veteran Hearst editor, died today in a plunge from his eleventh-floor hotel room.

He left an unfinished note, "To the coroner: God forgive me for everything. I cannot——"

He had entered the room just ten minutes before, after registering as "George L. Jones, 643 Halsted street, Chicago."

After 40 years of newspaper work as an employe of William Randolph Hearst, Watson recently was assigned to promotion work for the Hearst general management.

He and his wife, the former Peggy Nolan, were divorced last May in Reno. Watson had been making his home in New York with his mother.

Announcing the NEW FORD V-8 CARS for 1939

GREATER VALUE for every motorist has been built into the two new Ford V-8 cars for 1939. Both help bring new meaning to the familiar Ford phrase—"The Quality Car in the Low-price Field."

Here are two new cars that further express the forward-looking policy of the Ford Motor Company . . . traditional Ford dependability and economy plus progressive engineering.

Each car has been given its own distinctive appearance, yet each reflects Ford leadership in design. Both bring you something of the fine streamlining of the Lincoln-Zephyr—recognized style leader for the industry. The interior appointments of the 1939 Ford cars match their outward beauty. Every detail is styled for good taste and good service.

Both are big, roomy cars, equipped with hydraulic brakes and powered with the V-8 engine that gives you so much extra smoothness and efficiency. This year, the quiet performance of the V-8 engine has been matched by new quiet built into every part of the car.

The 1939 Ford cars bring you greater riding ease on every road. New seat construction, flexible cantilever transverse springs and double-acting hydraulic shock absorbers give triple-cushioned riding comfort.

Both Ford cars for 1939 have been Ford-priced for greater dollar value. From bumper to bumper, inside and out, they are the most outstanding cars in all Ford history.

FEATURES OF THE NEW FORD CARS FOR 1939

Overnight Parking

The suggestion that overnight parking on the streets of Washington should be banned has been made by the new Engineer Commissioner. Those familiar with conditions in the District will agree with Commissioner Hazen that any blanket application of such a rule at the present time would be "impracticable and an unnecessary hardship."

Nevertheless, the practice of using the streets for parking automobiles has created extremely serious problems. It has helped to make Washington one of the most overcrowded transportation centers in the country. The danger of overnight parking is not alone due to the presence on the streets of thousands of cars, although they do constitute a menace to drivers and pedestrians and increase fire hazards. A less apparent result of overnight parking is the encouragement thereby given to people to buy cars when they lack the means for housing them. The result is an abnormally great increase in car ownership. While that development has its bright side it also creates traffic problems of extreme gravity.

Obviously garage space and parking accommodation could not be provided within the near future for all unhoused cars, even assuming that their owners could pay for space. But the city cannot indefinitely postpone grappling with a problem that is constantly becoming more pressing. The erection of great apartment houses without adequate garage space for the cars of occupants is a matter of concern. The growth of the city's population without any corresponding additions to garage and parking facilities is a real maladjustment.

Undoubtedly Commissioner McCoach realizes that progress toward the goal he suggests would have to be gradual. Traffic Director William A. Van Duzer says that a formal notice of about five years should be given before attempting to ban overnight parking. It is none too soon, however, to raise the issue realistically. Commissioner McCoach, being a newcomer, is better able to appreciate the need for radical action than the older residents who have become resigned, or indifferent, to the hazards and inconveniences caused by the conversion of city streets into outdoor free garages.

Good News For Franco

Ratification by the House of Commons of the Anglo-Italian agreement of April 16 marks the second stage in Neville Chamberlain's policy of appeasement by conciliating the dictators. Though negotiated five months earlier, the pact of Rome is the companion piece to the accord of Munich.

It is no secret that Mussolini has chafed at the delay in putting the Anglo-Italian treaty into effect. This delay meant the holding up of British recognition of Ethiopia as Italian. It also meant the postponement of the plan to extend belligerent rights to Gen. Franco, without which an effective Nationalist blockade of Spanish government ports cannot be carried out. But in the months following the signing of the Rome pact the British government held off implementing that agreement on the ground that the necessary prior conditions had not been achieved. Most important of these, in the opinion of London, was the failure of Italy to withdraw a substantial number of Italian "volunteers" from Spain.

Recently Rome announced that between 10,000 and 15,000 Italian troops in Spain have been recalled. In Chamberlain's opinion this action is proof of Mussolini's good faith. Coupled with the promise of Il Duce that the remaining Italian troops will be withdrawn when the non-intervention plan comes into operation, and that no further Italian troops will be sent into Spain, the situation in Mr. Chamberlain's opinion is such that no reason now exists for holding up the application of the Rome pact any longer.

Whether Mr. Chamberlain is correct in taking Mussolini's pledges at their face value, events alone can show. There is the ominous circumstance to be taken into account that the gentleman's agreement of January, 1937, came to naught because the Fascist government was unwilling loyally to carry out the non-intervention agreement but was determined, on the contrary, to insure Franco's victory no matter at what cost. There is also the fact that since the April agreement Mussolini has restated that determination on several occasions. There is a strong presumption, therefore, that Italy will live up to the promises made by Mussolini to Chamberlain at Munich if Franco's chance of victory will not be impaired thereby.

That may be in accord with Mr. Chamberlain's own views. To bring about a settlement of the Spanish problem he may be prepared to countenance a victory for Franco even if that victory can only be assured by starving out the government side, which might be done once belligerent rights are granted to the Nationalists. Indeed, at the very moment that Chamberlain was addressing the House a Nationalist warship was attacking and destroying a Spanish government vessel off the coast of Great Britain itself, thus exercising belligerent rights without waiting for international sanction.

The Spanish republicans have repeatedly confounded the prophets by continuing to resist when their cause was presumed to be hopeless. They may confound the prophets again even though, as a consequence of the going into force of the Anglo-Italian agreement, the ring around them is drawn tighter than ever. But there would appear to be little doubt that the action of the British Parliament in ratifying the Anglo-Italian agreement, though there are still numerous Italian soldiers, airplanes and technicians in Spain, enormously increases the difficulties of the Barcelona government.

Hungary's Slice

The dismemberment of Czechoslovakia has been completed by allocation to Hungary, through Italo-German arbitration, of nearly 5,000 square miles of territory along the north bank of the Danube. Including the area ceded to Germany and Poland the Prague government has now surrendered nearly 30 per cent of the area, and slightly more than 30 per cent of the population, placed under its control in 1918.

The intangible losses are even greater. In the short space of five weeks Czechoslovakia has been transformed from a strongly centralized and wholly independent nation to a weak federation of autonomous states certain to come under the political and economic domination of its most powerful neighbor.

The country is now composed of the three autonomous republics of Bohemia, Slovakia and Ruthenia, each with a separate prime minister and parliament. Prague is shorn of much of its authority over the territory which remains to Czechoslovakia. Aside from other factors the new political structure of the country alone dooms it to an unimportant position on the international stage.

Consequently there is a note of supreme irony in the assurances by Germany and Italy of willingness to guarantee the new frontiers of Czechoslovakia. As an extension of the Berlin-Rome axis, pointing eastward toward Russia, there is now every reason why Germany should wish to maintain Czechoslovakia as now constituted. What was formerly a democratic wedge driven into the heart of the Reich is now a Nazi-controlled outpost, at its eastern point only 100 miles from the Ukraine. The situation, to Russia's great detriment, is the almost exact reversal of that which ruled prior to the Munich agreement.

Moreover, in the settlement now accorded Hungary, German diplomacy has won another and by no means trivial victory. Hungary and Poland were eager to divide all of Ruthenia—the eastern part of Czechoslovakia—thus achieving a common frontier likely to retard German penetration in southeastern Europe. This plan Berlin, now cast in the role of Czechoslovakia's friend and protector, has frustrated. Czech territory will continue to separate Poland and Hungary, providing Germany with a direct corridor to the Rumanian border. The Ruthenians need not worry about the loss to Hungary of present rail connections with western Czechoslovakia. It is a fair prediction that Germany will soon see that another line is built within this corridor.

It may be doubted that Hungary's acquisition of Czech territory marks the end of political resettlement in central Europe. By the treaties of 1919 territory as clearly Hungarian as that now regained was turned over both to Rumania and to Yugoslavia. With appetite whetted by the success now achieved, the Budapest government can be expected to press for a further "rectification" of Hungary's frontiers. There is just as good a moral and legal case for splitting Magyar areas from Rumania and Yugoslavia as there was in the case of Czechoslovakia.

Whether or not this comes to pass will depend primarily on the German and Italian attitudes. But these attitudes are not identical. Rome, for instance, would not be averse to a partitioning of Yugoslavia in the Hungarian interest. But Berlin is not at all desirous of seeing Hungary restored to anything like the powerful position it held in the old dual monarchy.

Moreover, this and other divergences between Berlin and Rome are developing at a time when there is no longer external pressure to impress solidarity on the Berlin-Rome alliance. One thing certain is that neither London nor Paris will exercise any direct influence over forthcoming readjustments in central Europe.

The indirect influence of Great Britain and France is none the less to be considered. And it is certainly interesting that the British prime minister should have pressed ratification of the Anglo-Italian treaty to a favorable vote in the House of Commons at this precise moment. As Mussolini further experiences the domination of Germany in the Berlin-Rome axis Mr. Chamberlain moves to implement an alternative accord for Il Duce. Those who think Great Britain is finished as a world power—as was said so often after the battle of Yorktown—will see nothing in the coincidence. But it is interesting, none the less.

Mr. Stimson's Criticism

Since his retirement from active participation in political life, Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State under President Hoover, has never hesitated openly to support the present Administration whenever its policies have been in accord with his own well-reasoned convictions. He has strongly endorsed giving the Executive more freedom in the conduct of tariff negotiations, for example, and he has stood with Secretary Hull in vainly urging Congress to approve a constructive neutrality policy.

Hence, when Mr. Stimson unequivocally endorses the charges brought against the Wagner labor relations act by John Lord O'Brian, Republican candidate for Senator from New York, he is above suspicion of being a mere partisan pleader. Moreover, his arguments are so cogent that they stand four-square on their intrinsic merits.

Mr. O'Brian, in urging certain amendments to the labor relations act, has made it clear that he strongly approves of its basic principles and wishes to see collective bargaining firmly established. The burden of his justified complaint is that the method of procedure enjoined by the act is "one-sided, unfair, and un-American," and that it has actually increased instead of decreasing industrial strife. Mr. Stimson supports and elaborates these views and, like Mr. O'Brian, directs his attack against the defects of the law instead of the shortcomings of the enforcement officials. Indeed he points out that, since the duty of the NLRB is primarily to protect employes and take action against employers, it is inevitably partisan.

To make a bad situation worse, the statute places in the hands of this necessarily partisan board the right to investigate complaints, to review the record of trials and to decide cases. This combination of administrative and quasi-judicial functions may be unobjectionable under proper safeguards. But the conditions under which the NLRB operates are all too likely to give rise to abuses. Senator Wagner's argument that the labor relations act follows the precedents set in establishing the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Trade Commission is not valid. As Mr. Stimson says, the latter regulatory agencies extend protection to all classes of persons—not to labor alone.

Mr. Stimson has demolished another defense of Senator Wagner, based on the assumption that the Supreme Court in upholding the constitutionality of the labor relations act in effect refuted charges that the law is unfair. Quoting from the opinion delivered by Chief Justice Hughes, Mr. Stimson shows that the court merely noted criticisms of the act as a prelude to announcing that it was "dealing with the power of Congress, not with a particular policy or with the extent to which policy should go."

Having thus disposed of Senator Wagner's chief answers to criticism, Mr. Stimson endorses Mr. O'Brian's recommendation that the labor board should confine its duties to investigation and complaint, leaving decisions to a separate and impartial board. This suggestion does not imply that Mr. Stimson desires to hamper administrative agencies by making all their decisions subject to court review. On the contrary, he is opposed to any general power of court review. He does, however, think it essential to provide additional safeguards against the abuses growing out of an administrative bias which may make a thoroughly honest and sincere official incapable of voicing an impartial judgment. To strengthen his argument Mr. Stimson quotes from the President's Committee on Administrative Management.

The need for special protection is heightened in case of the labor relations act, which fails to demand a square deal for employers as well as employes. The one-sided character of the law, combined with the inevitable bias of administrators who must pass judgment upon the findings of their own investigators, has aroused intense resentment. By insisting that the law be left in its present imperfect form Senator Wagner is, as Mr. Stimson asserts, rendering "a grave disservice both to the cause of labor, which he sought to protect, and to the cause of effective government at large."

Want Free Colleges

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Washington has, proportionately to its size, more colleges than any other city in the country. Yet many Washington high school graduates are deprived of a college education because of high tuition in most of these colleges. There is a crying need for a free city college here. The only free college is Wilson Teachers College. But not all graduates eager for higher learning wish to be teachers.

Preparations for the many other professions that contribute to the welfare of the community are not provided by Wilson. College education helps in forming good citizenship.

Deprived of Statehood we are subsequently deprived of free State universities.

As students who are about to graduate from high school, we feel the need for a free city college to take care of students desirous of higher education yet unable to bear the expense of college tuition.

Gravelly Point Airport

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to my letter to you of October 29 about the proposed new airport affecting seriously the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway:

I note in The Post of October 30 that the Administration takes the responsibility for the selection of the site and that Congress failing to adopt the "legislation sponsored by the President," the latter has decided to remedy the situation.

I now wish to point out that the building out of Gravelly Point and raising the grade to above high-water, cutting off half the Potomac outlet, is inevitably going to increase the height of floods to which Washington is subjected, probably to a dangerous degree.

Hague And Dies

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I just don't like your editorials concerning the Dies committee investigation and the Mayor Hague fight to keep undesirables out of his city. If you are communistic why not come out in the open and say so? I read a great many newspapers besides yours and all of them have commended Dies in his attitude. He has shown great courage in the face of unprecedented obstacles while the La Follette and Black-Minton committees received money and assistance of every kind. Dies has not pried into private telegrams, as Black did, and has made a clean-cut fight on a rotten spot in this country—Communism.

As for Hague, if he chooses to keep out troublemakers like the C. I. O. I think he has a perfect right to do so. We all know what happened in Detroit when the C. I. O. started the sit-down strikes and even defied the courts and the law and were helped in their attitude by Gov. Murphy.

Right in our own Government departments we are being deluged with pamphlets of the U. F. W. A., a union connected with the C. I. O., and I am glad to say most of the pamphlets are thrown into the waste baskets, while the sidewalks around the department offices are littered with the rest. And that is what Mayor Hague is trying to do—keep out mob-starters and Communists trying to start something.

Do we have to put up with this against our wishes, and is Mayor Hague to suffer all kinds of criticism because he wants his working men to be able to work?

More About The Radio Panic

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Shakespeare tells us "heat not a furnace for your foes so hot that it doth singe yourself." I think some of the jitterbugs who are so avid to string up Mr. Orson Welles for his presentation of "The War of the Worlds" would do well to remember this before they call out the vigilantes of the Dies committee. The whole theory of democratic government is predicated upon the assumption that the majority of the people have some modicum of intelligence. It is because of this assumption that we have free speech and the institution of a free press.

When a child I read the "Tarzan" stories and every night when I went to bed I would look under it for some lurking monster, a lion, a cobra or a gorilla. This was a manifestation of the child mind, and when my father forbade me to read them any more he was merely using good sense.

But to attempt to emasculate the radio just because a pack of nitwits refused to assume the responsibilities of adulthood would be to furnish a very sad commentary on democratic institutions. If we are going to have some overlord of the airways do our thinking for us we might as well throw the whole apparatus of democratic government into the discard and invite Dr. Goebbels to pay us a visit. The responsibilities of citizenship should belong to men and women, not to a race of fools who have to be told what to eat, when to sleep and how to think.

That eminent statesman, Senator Herring, tells us "we haven't heard the last of this yet." No, sir, we haven't. The last word in this regard was said by the poet Milton almost three centuries ago when he wrote: "Though all the winds of doctrines were let loose to play upon the earth, so Truth be in the field, we do ingloriously, by licensing and prohibiting, to misdoubt her strength. Let her and falsehood grapple; who ever knew Truth put to the worse in a free and open encounter?"

GUY KIMBALL HORTON.
Washington, Nov. 1.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Concerning the radio broadcast of last Sunday night, one or the other of two conclusions is inescapable: Either the newspapers greatly misrepresented and exaggerated the effects, which if true was a grave disservice to the country by falsely representing our people to the world as a nation of craven, cowardly creatures, or, if the effects and results were as stated in the press, it is evidence beyond question of the decadence of our people and of their dumbness and stupidity.

If the mere thought of an aerial attack upon our territory produced such a panic and hysteria among the people as to cause some of them to attempt suicide and others to flee their homes and the Marines at Quantico to weep and pray, it stamps the people of the United States as a cowardly and degenerate race who could not survive and would not deserve to survive a real attack upon our country.

What must have been the effect upon foreign nations—Germany and Japan for instance? They must, indeed, have laughed, and in their hearts felt an unspeakable contempt for us, and thought what an easy prey we would be to their air forces and military legions.

The Martial Spirit

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Unless all signs fail, the world is on the eve of a war such as was never known in all the mighty cycles of human history.

Is our boasted civilization breaking down beneath its own ponderous weight—the rotting props and pillars unable to sustain the gilded roof? Are the prophecies of Scripture about to be fulfilled—the nations rushing to the catastrophe?

A murderous mania hath everywhere seized upon the minds of men. The pulse of the race is beating the reveille; the soul of the world is sounding "boots and saddles." Savagery is reasserting itself—the Christian nations lead the procession to the worship of gold.

The trend of events points to a war that will involve the world—will align the Old against the New. I will be told the idea that Europe will combine against America is sheer madness. Is it even so? Scan the European press for the six months past and you will find such an event foreshadowed by the ablest editors and most distinguished diplomats. The probable necessity of such a coalition has been seriously discussed by various European cabinets.

But all the danger of an international complication does not come from across the sea. The war spirit is well nigh as rife in this country as at Barcelona, at Hankow and in Palestine. The great mass of American people would welcome a controversy with any country, with or without good cause.

The glory of the young man is in his strength, and Uncle Sam is young and strong. He longs to grapple with his contemporaries, to demonstrate his prowess. He has a cypress shingle on either shoulder and is trailing his star-spangled cutaway down the plank turnpike. While a few mugwumps, like Apollyon Halicarnassus Below, and tearful Miss Pucker of the Anglomaniacal school, are protesting that this country wants peace, our civilization is a great thing and must be preserved, Congress, that faithful mirror of public opinion, if not always the repository of wisdom, proves that it is eager for war.

And just so sure as we went headlong into the last war, the scene is set today for a re-enactment of that woeful tragedy.

The Balfour Declaration

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Our mass meeting at Constitution Hall on October 23 in behalf of Jewish refugees in Europe and of continued immigration into Palestine has met with measurable success. However, in connection with that meeting, my attention has been directed to a little leaflet which had been hurriedly prepared and placed upon all seats in the hall. On the front page of this leaflet we had printed the Balfour Declaration and the Lodge-Fish resolution. While the latter was quoted in its complete form, the former, that is, the Balfour declaration, was only stated in part. Will you, through the medium of your paper, permit me to quote this declaration in full, that there may be no misunderstanding as to its scope and import.

Lord Balfour's declaration of November 2, 1917, is as follows:

"His Majesty's government viewed with favor the establishment in Palestine of a national home for the Jewish people, and will use their best endeavors to facilitate the achievement of this object, it being clearly understood that nothing shall be done which may prejudice the civil and religious rights of existing non-Jewish communities in Palestine, or the rights and political status enjoyed by Jews in any other country."

The Post Impressionist

Camera Shy

THE photographer was having to take things pretty slow with Eugene Ormandy the other morning. The Philadelphia Orchestra leader, on his first visit here as musical director of his organization, was being by no means the man of gesture that he is on the conductor's stand.

The photographer waited, and waited, for the movement of hand, the furrowing of a brow, the chin stroking, or any flicker of animation that would take his picture out of the posed portrait class. But Ormandy, in an earnest discussion of the state of music in America, hardly raised an eyebrow.

This sandy-haired fellow of youthful visage and slight figure can apparently face one of the world's most powerful batteries of musicians without a qualm. But sight of the business end of a camera was plainly shaking his nerve.

The cameraman took some pictures, four or five as the talk went on. Maybe he was just shooting bulbs—to get us all used to the idea. But there was at least one action shot—Mr. Ormandy raised a finger, brushed something from his eye.

Then suddenly the conductor forgot all about the camera. That was when the name of Kirsten Flagstadt, the opera soprano, entered the conversation.

"Ah, Flagstadt," the master said, his face lighting up by several hundred candlepower, "To think of the beautiful things she has done with us."

His eyes were fairly popping.

"Perfection! Perfection!" he exclaimed, "She will not stand for anything less. Do you know. . . ?"

An experience with the perfect Wagnerian flashed before his mind. He was exactly reliving one of the high moments in the last act of "Gotterdammerung." An enthusiastic hand shot into the air.

The cameraman saw that moment of exultation—but in dismay.

"Shucks," he said. "Just the thing I've been waiting for—and I had to be changing a bulb."

The cameraman quietly twisted a fresh bulb in his lamp, inserted a new plate behind the poised lens, resumed his post.

"See if you can get him to do that again," he whispered as he passed behind my chair.

"Were you in Europe this summer?" I asked. It was just possible he had gone through some exciting experiences during the recent crisis.

Mr. Ormandy was on his guard.

"I cannot discuss politics," he said, "it is not right for a musician to do so. Music and politics, they cannot mix—one has nothing to do with the other . . . But to answer your question—No, I was busy right in this country, conducting in summer engagements . . . America is alive with music. I directed a large chorus in Beethoven's Ninth Symphony in Connecticut—school teachers, students and villagers. I wish you could have heard them . . ."

It is my opinion Mr. Ormandy was at this point approaching unrestrained enthusiasm and would have shown it shortly in some kind of outburst. But the photographer apparently didn't sense any such thing.

"But some conductors do," he said a little impatiently.

"Do what? Sing?" asked Ormandy.

"No, no, I mean talk politics."

"Maybe, but I don't think it's best."

"What about Toscanini?" said the photographer, sensing at first mention of the name the imminence of an animated negative on his poised film. "What can you tell us about his mysterious exit from Italy?"

"Nothing, nothing at all," replied Toscanini's colleague. "Do I make myself perfectly stupid?"

His face was as innocent of animation as the camera's.

"Toscanini moves in mysterious ways," I said.

"No, he doesn't, not at all," said Ormandy, warming a bit as he moved toward Toscanini's human side. "It's just the things that get in the headlines. . . . He's really a great fellow . . . By no means always solemn . . . In fact, he is frequently mischievous . . ."

"For example, when someone tries to take his picture?"

Ormandy smiled. "Well, maybe—but do you know Toscanini is quite a camera fan? I mean he likes to take pictures—candid pictures. He was on our boat once crossing the Atlantic. Taking pictures all the time. He tried for nearly four days to snap a young lady in our party. Didn't succeed until one morning when he called to her to come up on deck. He was up above—she down below. He wanted to get her coming up the stairs. She suspected something, and wouldn't do it. He kept urging her . . ."

But in the end, it seems, the great maestro, who flies into a tantrum when a charged camera catches him off guard, came ashore with his candid shot.

"Toscanini is a great character—really wonderful fellow to be around," assured Mr. Ormandy, with the greatest of ease and a spontaneous gesture of affection.

"I have no doubt," said the cameraman, now also at ease.

He was folding up his tripod and packing away lamps, cords, bulbs, camera—and, I am sure, a plate bearing a very animated likeness of a Toscanini admirer, whose quiet way does not prevent him, also, from pulling thunder out of scores by Beethoven, Bach and Brahms.

Alien Seduction

THE AUSTRIAN anti-Christ speaks again, this time through the person of one Josef Terboven, the governor of the Rhineland Province, and his message is an order to other nations to abolish freedom of expression or accept the fate of Czechoslovakia. Already he had claimed the right to censor the ballot in Great Britain to the extent of blacklisting British statesmen not amenable to him. Now, through Terboven, Holland and Luxembourg are warned to suppress newspaper comment which is considered offensive to the Reich.

PEGLER

Thus, by degrees, Hitler and Germany proceed to impose on the rest of the world not only an imitation of the Nazi form of government but supervision by Berlin of the thought and expression of their peoples. This is not a far-fetched interpretation of the German attitude. Censorship of the press and of speech is nazism and if other nations must adopt suppression as a measure of self-preservation Hitler steps beyond his borders to edit the rights of free citizens of other nations.

HERR TERBOVEN does not hamper himself with pretense but plainly boasts that Hitler took Czechoslovakia at the point of the gun, and in warning Holland and Luxembourg of the fate which they invite by maintaining their domestic liberties conveys a message to Americans as well. It is only consistent to suppose that as the liberties of the people are abolished in other lands in an ever-widening extension of the terror, as each new submission to the threat of overwhelming war increases the power of Adolf Hitler, the American people presently will find themselves under his admonition.

Through his press he has, in fact, already threatened to take an unpleasant interest in the affairs of the people who wear their hats in the house, put their feet on the table and spit chewing gum at the walls. Through his anti-American bunds he has entered the domestic politics of the United States and begun a campaign to abolish tolerance and human rights just around the edges as a starter.

THERE ARE educated Americans so gullible and supercilious that they cannot perceive the source from which they are being incited or understand that even to consider the political degradation of any group of Americans is to serve a foreign conspirator against the liberties which they cherish for themselves.

This country needs no assistance from Hitler or agents of Hitler who mock American hospitality and our laws of naturalization to defend it from bolshevism. The United States has made a better job of repelling bolshevism than of scotching the reptilian approach of that other terror which is worse, if possible, than the terrors which the anti-American bunds would kindly save us from at the sacrifice of American freedom. And it is distinctly contrary to the character of the anti-Christ nation to perform any helpful service for any other country except with the sinister motive or moral political and military subjugation.

YET AMERICANS who sincerely believe in and have fought for the liberties of the Constitution are seduced by alien conspirators toward an unformed, unreasoned belief that the Constitution would be improved by some clause restricting its benefits to those whom they happen to like.

Communism now appears to be subsiding as a power and threat. The press of the last few years, and particularly of the last three months suggests that the Russians didn't have it in them, after all, to make good with their state. But now nazism is a new aggressor here, with the same conspiratorial, cynical and foully unmoral lessons which the Nazis learned from the parent vice of their own depravity, bolshevism itself.

This country may apply to itself every warning from Hitler to any free land to placate the monster by the flattery of imitation or suffer the fate of Czechoslovakia.

The Time Factor

Is It Working Against The Dictators?

(Note: Following are excerpts from an article on the relative economic positions of the Fascist and democratic nations published in the Contemporary Review, London, and reprinted in the November issue of Living Age.)

IN A WORLD dumfounded by the continued success of aggressors, some comfort has been derived by many people from two arguments. It is said, first, that the mounting ambitions of the dictators are mutually incompatible and must sooner or later bring them into collision. Secondly, it is believed that the wanton expenditure on wars of conquest and preparation for future aggrandizement must cripple the economic systems of the dictatorships and evoke internal opposition.

From this it is argued that time works on the side of the democratic countries, whose economic systems are in any case thought to be both more powerful and more stable. Therefore, the argument goes on, the democratic countries should refrain from taking any action which would precipitate armed conflict.

UNDER A FREE individualist system the increase in employment and national income consequent on rearmament would have spontaneously resulted in an increase in consumption and in imports. The totalitarian countries could not afford to permit either, as they were unable to pay for any but the most vital imports because their productive resources were needed for rearmament work and could not be spared to increase their exports.

The exchange control thus changed from an emergency measure to safeguard the currency into the most important single instrument of control of the whole economic system These regulations entail an enormous waste because of the inevitable red tape; no doubt there are also many loopholes and abuses. But the control enabled the economic system to work almost continuously at full capacity, irrespective of the state of trade elsewhere.

TO ACHIEVE rearmament it was necessary to limit an increase of consumption, for otherwise labor and capital would have been absorbed not only by the output of consumption goods but also by the extension of these industries. A collective saving was thus enforced on the community. On the one hand, wages were fixed. On the other, an increase of dividends above a certain level was also forbidden. Profits above that level had to be surrendered to the government against its obligations. Taxation was increased: The German tax revenue seems to have doubled during the period, quite apart from the unofficial but very effectively enforced contributions for charity, to finance both exports and the four-year-plan, which entailed uneconomic investment.

In Italy taxes also increased and a capital levy was decreed. Control was extended on the capital market. Security issues, establishment of new companies and the extension of plant was made contingent upon government permission. The import of luxuries was completely prohibited.

This meant discrimination against the more prosperous, who otherwise could have afforded to satisfy their demands. All these measures were forced on the Fascist states step by step by the trend of events. They resulted in a more equalitarian distribution, not so much of the national income as of current consumption. The upper classes were not deprived of their capital, but were forced to abstain from certain kinds of consumption and to invest their savings in government securities and state-planned enterprises the eventual value and earning power of which is problematical.

IN CONSEQUENCE the material satisfaction of the population has been supplemented by the feeling of national military security (however irrational the fear of French or Russian aggression may have been) and individual economic security as a member of the Volksgemeinschaft, of the "community," which, in effect, has "abolished unemployment." At the same time the relative fall in the material satisfaction of needs, as compared with, say 1928, was much less and better distributed than commonly supposed. Therefore it seems in vain to hope for an internal revulsion of feelings on account of economic grievances alone. It is futile to point out that these results and much more could have been achieved with less risk of an eventual catastrophe had the democratic individualist systems not been destroyed.

An analysis of the prospects is even more disturbing. In the last six years England has experienced a phenomenal prosperity. Since 1935-1936 a fraction of the increase of the national income has been devoted to armaments. The period of cumulative expansion seems now ended, and in the absence of very powerful external stimuli or government intervention it is difficult to discern any strong internal factor which would recreate expansion.

THE TOTALITARIAN states, on the contrary, have cogent reasons to look forward with some confidence to the economic future, provided unprecedented crop failure does not suddenly increase their import requirements. The successful aggressions in Spain and Austria not only provide very useful sources of raw materials and foreign exchange, but also increase the economic and financial bargaining power of Germany and, to a much less degree, of Italy. They are now able to throw some of the burden of their rearmament onto the unfortunate Spanish population, which has to supply raw materials and foodstuffs in exchange for the arms which the dictators provide for their destruction and subjugation. It is undoubtedly true that Franco, if he wins, could get economic help from Paris and London at much less political cost than from his erstwhile friends and protectors. The problem is whether he will be at liberty to choose. The extent of economic concessions which he has already been forced to make is unknown, but must be very substantial.

NOR MUST it be forgotten that in the first years of rearmament vast resources were absorbed by the establishment of armaments factories and other military buildings. If no further extension becomes necessary as a result of similar expansion in England and France (and present output capacity in Germany is certainly very much greater) capital and labor will be free to work for an increase of the standard of life (or a further increase of actual armaments output).

The hopes based on an early economic breakdown of Germany and even of Italy seem rather spurious on closer investigation, and no complacency is justified on account of their reputed relative economic weakness. The potential strength of the democracies, certainly, is far superior and their basic position is much more stable.

Their accumulated reserves permit them to draw freely upon the productive capacity of the entire outside world. The stringent regulations of production and consumption, the sacrifice of their material progress is superfluous even if they decide to match the military efforts of the totalitarian countries.

Democratic Criticism

WITHIN THE last few days two heads of democratic nations have suggested to their peoples that democratic criticism should restrain itself lest aid and comfort be thereby given to autocracies. The first was the American President, who, in a generally admirable address to the Herald Tribune Forum, said, "Free discussion is most greatly useful when it is restrained and relates to facts. It is not useful to suggest . . . . that the American Government, its policies, its practices and its servants are corrupt. To do so is, of necessity, an attack on the American system of government itself."

DOROTHY THOMPSON.

THE NEXT was Mr. Chamberlain. Maj. Atlee, in the House of Commons described the Munich deal as a great defeat for Britain and democracy. The prime minister rebuked him with the words, "If the right honorable gentleman really believes that, I am sorry that he should say so publicly. It is not one of the characteristics of totalitarian states, at least, that they are accustomed to foul their own nests."

Both statements are highly significant. The President suggests that criticism of the Government should stick to matters of fact and that accusations of corruption are an assault on democratic government per se, and the prime minister regards criticism as a fouling of one's own nest and recommends the reticence of the totalitarian states. He did not add that public criticism of the government in the totalitarian states is a crime punishable, in Germany at least, with the ax and cannot therefore be attributed to self-control.

I CONFESS that I do not know what constitutes a statement of fact in the sphere of politics, which has never been an exact science. I may think—and do—that the Wagner labor relations act is an atrocious piece of legislation atrociously administered by the National Labor Relations Board.

Mr. Heywood Broun, on the other hand, thinks it is a very fine act and that everybody who does not think so shares all the mental processes of Tom Gridler.

Mr. Broun and the executive committee of the Newspaper Guild published a statement to that effect on Thursday, and, in behalf of the 5,000 members of the guild, called upon the voters to support Senator Wagner in the forthcoming election. I am a member of the guild, but my opinion on this question was never consulted, so let me make a minority report. I shall vote for John Lord O'Brian, and in behalf of one member of the guild call upon all liberal voters to support him. I don't know about the other 4,999 and I'm sure Mr. Broun doesn't either. But I suppose my statement of a fact and a desire would be called by by the Chamberlain mentality befouling the Newspaper Guild.

HOWEVER, whether one likes or dislikes the Wagner labor relations act and the form of agency set up to administer it is distinctly a matter of judgment rather than of fact. That judgment will depend upon one's philosophy of government, estimation of results, theories of administration and, of course, personal prejudices and interests.

But I should have thought that in politics useful criticism would have to comprehend far larger questions than can be computed statistically, and the very definition of democratic government is that it rests on free discussion and expression covering the widest possible range of judgment, opinion, theory, analysis and even of prejudice, since a government which runs counter to widespread prejudices is not likely to endure very long as a democracy.

THE TOTALITARIAN states also allow the citizen to question certain matters of fact, provided he does so in a sufficiently obsequious manner. Pravda or Investia may suggest that the industrial statistics of a state industry do not completely harmonize at some point with other figures put out by a bureau. But they may not raise the far more important question of whether, for instance, the dictatorship of Stalin is in practice a dictatorship of the proletariat, or whether the total output of the nation under some system of private or semi-private enterprise might not raise the living standard more rapidly than state capitalism.

Nor can the German critic raise the question, for instance, of whether the manner by which Gen. Goering came by the Rubenses which adorn his dwelling is a useful precedent for officials in power nor challenge Mr. Rosenberg's interpretations of history.

FOR THOSE are matters of opinion and interpretation, of which the state has a monopoly.

And when Mr. Chamberlain asserts that the pact of Munich was not a defeat for democracy, and Mr. Atlee says it is, two judgments are conflicting. But in suppressing the judgment of the minority Mr. Chamberlain is acting exactly as the head of a totalitarian state, and the next logical step will be to put the befouler of the British nest into a concentration camp or some more genteel and English form of the doghouse.

Lord Acton said that "all power corrupts, and absolute power corrupts absolutely." One way to hasten this absolute corruption—if one accepts the axiom, which is again a matter of observation and opinion—is to prevent the citizen from criticizing such minor corruptions as he sees, or thinks he sees, before his eyes. This involves a definition of corruption, and that again involves an ethos which is not a matter of statistics.

ACCORDING TO my ethos, it is a corruption of power to penalize citizens for having one or another set of opinions; to reward citizens who are "for" the Government, and place every possible economic and political impediment in the way of those who are "against" it.

And I do not see how we shall ever get out of many of the numerous jams that I think we are in—again a matter of opinion—except by the most fearless exercise of all of the functions of free speech. I do not think that we shall preserve democracy by becoming a nation of hush-mouths. On the contrary, I have always been of the opinion that democracy consisted of having a nation of democrats, which means, among other things, a nation of people who are not afraid of the Government, of their bosses, of their leaders, of the police (unless they are criminals) or of each other!

ONE MATTER that requires a great deal of airing in this country at present—according to many opinions—is the role of the administrative agency, which exercises an increasing control over the economic functions of our society.

But precisely because these agencies exercise so much power, there is hesitancy on the part of those most affected to engage in public criticism of them, lest they are penalized. And precisely because they are afraid to engage in public criticism the criticism itself is so often fatuous—a for or against fight.

Mr. Wendell Wilkie raised the issue in wise and admirable temper in a summary of talks by others before the Herald Tribune Forum some days ago.

He by no means attacked the institution of the administrative agency; on the contrary, he affirmed his belief that it was here to stay.

BUT HE SAID "The men who hold in their hands such extraordinary power must exercise it with such a fine sense of justice that all men subject to its jurisdiction will know that their fate is not at all affected by their economic or political beliefs or their free expression of them." He proceeded—I thought very persuasively—to raise some questions regarding the necessity of safeguards against excessive discretionary governmental power.

And he dared to attack the state of Mr. Thurman Arnold, who said, "I hope for the victory of the practical men, interested in the needs of the present, over logical men, who seek to control the culture of prosperity."

MR. ARNOLD spoke as a pragmatist and Mr. Willkie answered him as a man who believes in planning from a system of values and a conception of aims agreed upon in advance, as did the founders of this democracy, who would not otherwise have written either the Declaration of Independence or the Constitution.

What was in conflict were not matters of fact but basic mental attitudes.

But in a conversation a few days later I heard the whole issue dismissed with the airy statement of fact that Mr. Willkie heads a large utility and Mr. Arnold is a New Dealer. From that it was concluded that Mr. Willkie was "wrong" and Mr. Arnold "right," which seemed to me a non-sequitur, but of course, I was sharing Mr. Willkie's dislike of pragmatism—along with other non-presidents of utilities, such as Mr. Bertrand Russell.

IF WE ARE to judge all political matters according to statements of "fact," I fear we shall end all free discussion. If assaults on corruption are to be deemed assaults on democracy, I fear we shall eventually be ruled by scoundrels—although the late Clarence Darrow held the opinion that there were no scoundrels, which is also a viewpoint.

If we are to judge the merits of an argument by the economic or political status of the arguer, we must abolish reason and consider everything in terms of warfare.

But no democracy has ever survived such warfare, as far as I know.

Books And Things

By Lewis Gannett

Assembly Line

SOMETHING OF what John Steinbeck did for the footloose farm workers in "Of Mice and Men" Wessel Smitter accomplishes for the automobile workers in "F. O. B. Detroit" (Harpers, $2.50).

"Some day," Mr. Steinbeck's Lennie used to say, "we're gonna have a little house and a couple of acres an' a cow an' some pigs, an' live off the fatta the lan'—an' have rabbits!" Some day, Russ dreams in Mr. Smitter's story, he would have an outboard motor and a boat and some sort of old jaloppie to get around in, and if he had a trailer he wouldn't need a tent. Then he'd go clamming in the pearl-mussel rivers and be his own boss. If he wanted to sneak out in the fog before the sun rose he could; if he wanted to lie by a campfire and listen to the bluejays he could do that, too. He'd sniff wood smoke and talk of country buttermilk and dream.

He paid $40 down on an outboard motor, in the good days at the "Holt" factory in Detroit, and when he came back from the factory line he was never too tired to pull the outboard from under his bed and pull it apart a bit and put it together again. Russ could run anything that had wheels on it; he was a born mechanic. And the outboard motor meant the cry of the whippoorwill and the smell of the woods to him.

BENNIE WASN'T so sure. Bennie was city-bred. Sometimes, when Russ talked, Bennie would want to go clamming, too, and sometimes he remembered that it might rain in the woods, and wondered if he wouldn't prefer a straight rye and the click of the billiard balls down at Joe's place. And Rita was sure that clamming was all nonsense. Rita was a taxi-dancer at night and a waitress by day until that night when Russ bought a $5 wad of taxi tickets and danced with her until the joint closed. Rita put the outboard outdoors on the rickety front porch. "I hate the smell of it," she said. "I wish you'd get it out of here. I wish you'd sell it. I could sure use the money."

Russ reverently carried the motor back to its shrine under the bed. "When that motor goes out of here," he said, "I go. Savvy?"

In those days Russ ran a manipulator in the Holt plant, a kind of derrick used for handling hunks of hot steel, and he loved it. It had more gears and levers than Bennie had ever seen; it had an iron claw that picked up 10-ton billets of steel and maneuvered them into the furnaces. The way Russ got to handling that rig when he had a tough job up in the anvil was something to watch through the flying red sparks and the smoke. The white collars up front used to route the tourists around to watch Russ swing it.

Russ loved his machine. When he oiled and checked over the cam-shafts and gears his big hands slid gently over the journals. The way he felt of the bearings was like a caress. The warm steel seemed alive as Russ' fingers flowed over it, always moving, always exploring, except when they rested a moment, cupped over the rounded shells of the motors or reached intimately into a nest of warm gears.

Mr. Smitter knows his factory, his men and its machines. I do not remember any better picture of the inside of a big factory, where machines seem more alive than men. The high point of the book is a phantasmagoric battle between two men perched high on their machines, mad clear through, and manipulating the great metal claws of their derricks to fight an almost Martian battle within the factory.

But the engineers figured out a new way to make dies, by casting instead of forging. The rig Russ loved was junked, thrown out on the boneyard, where hundreds of rusting old cars stood waiting their turn for the crusher. Russ and Bennie went to work on the line, tightening 320 identical nuts every hour. A time came when Mr. Holt closed the entire factory while it was readjusted for another yearly model.

THERE IS MORE to the story than that, but this will suggest the mood. Mr. Smitter has not the precise economy of language nor the sense of form which distinguish Mr. Steinbeck, but he writes well and he knows his stuff. He is a new novelist worth watching. He has an ear for the hard rhythms of working-class speech; he knows how factory workers talk of machines and of women. Best of all, and rarest of all in a novel with what might be called a "proletarian" theme, he knows that all men are mixtures of good and evil. Even the police in the "Holt" plant, he seems to understand, also have a dream of a cabin in the woods by the flowing river, and some sort of jaloppie to get around in; if they had trailers they wouldn't need tents.

The Lambert Plan

By Ernest K. Lindley

Low-Cost Housing Practicable

WHAT MAY PROVE to be an extremely important chapter in housing history began last May with a telephone call from Stewart McDonald, Federal Housing Administrator, in Washington, to Gerard B. Lambert, wealthy semi-retired manufacturer of pharmaceuticals, razor blades and sundry other products, at his estate at Princeton, N. J.

LINDLEY.

When the telephone call came Mr. Lambert was sketching a cover design for his new (and first) detective story, "Murder at Newport." Mr. McDonald, an old acquaintance, told Mr. Lambert the President had spoken of him as a man who might be interested in the housing problem. Mr. Lambert knew nothing about housing. But he had time and abundant energy. He ran down to Washington. Mr. McDonald suggested that he explore the housing problem with Winfield Riefler, who in the early days of the New Deal had been "interpreting economist" for the President and the chief author of the Federal housing act. Mr. Lambert learned that, oddly, Mr. Riefler had become a neighbor of his in Princeton, N. J.—Mr. Riefler being, with Albert Einstein and a few others, a member of Princeton University's Institute for Advanced Study.

HASTENING BACK to Princeton, Mr. Lambert called on Mr. Riefler at 11 o'clock the following morning. They parted company at midnight, by which time Mr. Lambert's curiosity had eaten well into the housing question. He came back to Washington, where he was taken in tow by J. M. Daiger, financial adviser to FHA, who had helped Mr. Riefler to plan the Federal housing act. Mr. Lambert canvassed the New Deal housing agencies and was introduced to many key men in the Administration.

The problem, as Mr. Lambert saw it, was to encourage private capital to move into housing on a great scale. In short order he concluded that the great field for private investment lay in the great middle-group families who can pay from $5 to $10 per room per month for shelter. When the 1930 census was taken there were 5,000,000 families in this group. A majority of them rent houses or apartments. And with few exceptions, they occupy and always have occupied second, third and fourth hand housing.

MR. LAMBERT set out to find how to supply this mass market in the middle group with new housing. He encountered so much skepticism that he decided to make a demonstration with his own money. It so happened that Princeton—as Mr. Riefler had known all along—suffered from a housing shortage. The municipality revived its inactive housing authority and agreed to the scheme worked out by Messrs. Lambert, Riefler and Daiger. On August 16 construction began, and now only a few odds and ends remain to be done.

For $30,000, including land, Mr. Lambert has built ten housing units grouped, California-style, around three sides of an oblong court. There are four units in each of the longer buildings at the sides, and two in the shorter buildings at one end. Each unit contains a living room, two bedrooms, a kitchen, and a bath. Each has a hot-water heater and a small oil-burner. The architecture is plain but pleasing. The houses are built to last—with slate roofs, brick walls, copper plumbing, oak floors, fire walls and good insulation. The work was done by a regular contractor, employing union labor and using standard methods of construction.

THE TOTAL over-all cost of $3,000 per unit seems very low. But the economies that might be expected from large-scale operations do not—and could not—show up in this small demonstration in Princeton. The real trick in the Lambert plan is in the financing. For his investment, Mr. Lambert accepts $30,000 in 4 per cent bonds of the municipal housing authority. In other words, there is no speculative profit in the enterprise. These bonds will be amortized gradually so that at the end of 28 years they will be paid off in full. The municipal housing authority will then own the land and houses. In return, the city waives taxes on the property for the 28-year period.

Each occupant will pay $25 a month in rent. Only $15 of this is needed to pay the interests on the bonds and retire them in 28 years. The other $10 will be used for maintenance, cost of collection, and a small reserve.

As the city housing authority's bonds are tax-exempt, and as houses with such low rentals ought always to be in demand, Mr. Lambert has an attractive investment.

IN APPLYING on a great scale Mr. Lambert's scheme there are some "ifs." Many municipalities may not be willing to trade total or even partial exemption in return for a gradually increasing equity in property and outright ownership at the end of 28 years. Moreover, it may not be long until tax-exempt securities cease to be issued—although under existing law city housing authorities may issue them in 37 States. Finally, Mr. Lambert thinks that to attract big capital promptly it may be necessary to offer an additional incentive—perhaps a deduction up to 10 per cent from the super-tax. That is the feature which the President criticized at his press conference Tuesday. But it may prove to be unnecessary to the success of Mr. Lambert's basic plan.

For the plan rests, in the first instance, on the elimination of speculative profit and of all the financing costs except a reasonable rate of interest. And it envisages the formation of large building-investment companies which can make the savings in all-year-around construction on a mass-production basis—savings that could not be effected in the small demonstration at Princeton.

High Court Hears Bay Ferry Case

Annapolis, Nov. 3 (AP).—Arguments in the case growing out of the State public service commission's refusal to authorize the Maryland Bay Co. to operate a Chesapeake Bay ferry were heard today by the State court of appeals. The proposed line would run from Sandy Point in Anne Arundel County to Stevensville on Kent Island.

The appeal today was the latest legal move in almost constant litigation since the ferry company first petitioned for a certificate of convenience and necessity authorizing the ferry on October 28, 1936.

The litigation has been closely allied with the controversy over the proposed Chesapeake Bay bridges, as the commission contended it was without jurisdiction to grant the authorization, due to the Chesapeake Bay Authority act of 1933.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

IF POLITICS WERE A GAME.

If I were the umpire at next week's election, I'd enforce a few rules in the anarchic national "game" of politics.

Robert Taft . . . bonded candidates?

For one thing, I'd make every candidate post a bond, equal to two years salary ($20,000 for a Congressman) to be forfeited if he failed to carry out his campaign promises.

• • • •

Maybe Lloyd's of London would sell him the bond; they gamble on anything.

I'd blow the whistle on each orator who ranted about the principles of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln. That would be offside. He'd have to line up his own principles, eligible for 1938 competition.

• • • •

In every speech each candidate would be obliged to recite his voting record or his record on taxation and expenditures, or both; with the figures certified by a reputable public accountant.

"—penalize him 1,000 votes"

If any candidate criticized something done by an incumbent, I would penalize him 1,000 votes unless he explained in the next paragraph exactly how he would do it better.

• • • •

Each candidate would be obliged to make it clear to the WPA voters that they owed him nothing and could expect nothing exceptional from him; that he is opposed, with Joseph Pulitzer, to both predatory wealth and predatory poverty.

• • • •

Five hundred words of each candidate's speech would perforce be devoted to his plan to create 5,000,000 jobs in private employment, and to produce enough to ameliorate the lot of the ill-groomed one-third.

• • • •

Each candidate who offered payments of public money to voters in his campaign speeches would be convicted of bribery, on the testimony of two reputable citizens who heard him make the overt offer, and he would be sentenced to five years' imprisonment or $10,000 fine or both, and penalized half the distance to his own goal.

• • • •

On each of his campaign billboards or posters each candidate would be compelled to print in large letters what bills he had introduced in the previous session and what bills he had up his sleeve for the next, including amendments to existing laws.

• • • •

To ascertain his eligibility for the game each candidate would be forced to file, 90 days before election, his tax plan for raising enough money to balance the next budget (regular and special) on the assumption that next year's would be as big as this year's.

"—three hecklers per orator"

I would assign three expert, well-trained and impartial hecklers to poke fun and fury at the soft spots and evasions in each candidate's speeches. There would be no Congressional immunity.

• • • •

In each speech each candidate would be obliged to state what rate of interest he thinks proper on house mortgages and farm loans, what is a just return for capital, and how much of his income an American should be allowed to retain for useful talent or commendable ingenuity.

• • • •

Each candidate would file with the Secretary of State a pledge recording himself as opposed to communism, fascism or any other foreign or imported political doctrine with equal zeal. Penalty: 10,000 votes. (Unless he happens to be an avowed Fascist or Communist candidate.)

It is peculiar that many business transactions involving only a few thousand dollars are set forth in binding, written contracts, frequently with posting of ample bonds, while the contract to govern the country and spend 7 or 8 billions is merely oral and not binding. It is queer that a football game between two high schools is governed by rigid rules, while politics has none . . . The voters, who are really the umpires, think they're merely the spectators.

Slate Fall Kills 2 Virginia Miners

Clintwood, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—Two men were killed in a slate fall in the mines at Clinchco in Dickenson County Tuesday afternoon. They were Silas Miller, 35, and Richard Odell, 23, both of whom lived at Clinchco.

Odell was a motorman and Miller a brakeman on a mine motor. A large block of slate, 60 feet long, 15 feet wide and 12 inches thick fell, pinning them and the motor beneath it. Odell was to be buried at Coeburn today and Miller was to be buried at his home near Clinchco at the same time.

Va. Sheriffs Cited for Law Violations

Called Unintentional
Auditor Bares Study
Fail to Keep Records
Figures Confusing

By the Associated Press.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3.—State Auditor L. McCarthy Downs reported to the Governor and the State Compensation Board today widespread, though unintentional, failure of sheriffs to follow the State law governing their offices.

"There appears to be more lack of knowledge as to what is required of them than any intention on their part to be antagonistic," Mr. Downs said in a foreword to a comprehensive study, which he emphasized was not an audit.

State Comptroller LeRoy Hodges, who is chairman of the State Compensation Board, termed the study of great importance. It was made by a staff of six men working five months and covered the calendar year 1937.

"The idea behind the movement," Col. Hodges said, "is not to 'get' the sheriffs, but to develop information to evolve a business-like system of accounting and reporting which will be of benefit not only to the compensation board but to the sheriffs as well."

Most Reports Inadequate

Chairman Hodges said he found upon assuming office that reports from sheriffs were in most instances inadequate or had not been filed.

Of the 100 sheriffs the auditor reported that 8 had complete records, 3 had complete records as to income and expenses for their individual activities but not those of their deputies, 60 had records in the form of memoranda composed to a large extent of estimates rather than actual figures, and the remaining 29 had no financial records at all.

Mr. Downs pointed out that while 47 sheriffs reported gross income below $2,500 a year, his study showed that 22 of them were in error—that there were only 25 with gross incomes less than $2,500. He said the 22 were in error because they seemed to have misconstrued the words "gross income" to mean "net income," and that this was evidenced by the fact that 58 sheriffs had net income below $2,500 a year.

The study shows the total gross receipts of sheriffs in 1927 were $876,831.34 and that expenses of operating their offices were $405,966.35, leaving a net income of $270,864.99—or an average of slightly over $2,700 per sheriff.

The report shows the grand total of allowances to sheriffs for board and clothing for prisoners to be $392,333.31, whereas the sheriffs expended $142,415.99 for the purpose, leaving them a profit of $249,917.32.

The auditor said he had computed the cost of food was 36 per cent of the amount available for the purpose in the counties as a group.

One Netted $10,416

The largest net income by a sheriff was that of the sheriff of Rockingham County—amounting to $10,416.47—and in view of the fact that this was in excess of the statutory allowance, he was charged with excess fees of $3,204.64 which he paid. The other extreme was in Botetourt County where there was a loss of $447.95 from the operations of the sheriff's office.

"All I got out of my office was my badge," the Botetourt sheriff told the auditor.

It was shown that there were 34,642 commitments to jail in the year 1937, the total prisoner days aggregating 561,166. The average sentence was about 16 days. The prisoner cost to the Commonwealth was 63 cents per day and the cost to the sheriff 23 cents per day, leaving the sheriffs a profit of 40 cents per prisoner per day.

The auditor reported it was the practice in a number of counties to charge the State with maintenance of prisoners regardless of whether convicted of State laws or local ordinances. He recommended that those convicted of violation of local ordinances should be maintained at local expense.

The auditor recommended that, under existing laws, the sheriffs should file an estimate of anticipated expenses for the next year by the first of November of the preceding year.

The copensation board, he recommended, should fix a definite allowance for expenses of sheriffs after getting the November estimate. It should also review the January fee report of sheriffs, he added, and if the expense, allowance has been exceeded, decide whether or not the allowance should be increased.

Democratic Majority More Than 2-1 in Md.

G. O. P. Has 260,862 of 817,564 Registrants
Rival Party Gains 77,842 Since 1934
Only 3 Counties Have Republican Total

By the Associated Press.

On the registration books, Maryland will be a Democratic State by more than 2-to-1 majority in the November 8 election.

New registration figures, compiled by the Associated Press, form official reports in all but two counties, give Democrats a book majority of 278,972 over Republicans in a total registration of 817,564 voters.

The division was:

Democrats	Republicans	Other
539,834	260,862	16,868

Comparison of the 1938 registration with others since 1930 showed a total increase of 64,390 registrations since 1934. Democrats picked up 77,842 on the books while Republicans lost 3,380 and other parties showed a drop of 5,072.

The 1934 registration was the latest. Compared with figures for the last for a gubernatorial election, 1936 Presidential election, the total increase was 47,651, Democrats adding 40,997 and Republicans adding 8,592. Other parties showed a loss of 1,938.

The complete tabulation, with figures from Anne Arundel and Howard counties estimated and unofficial, was:

R. F. Cleveland Takes Stump For O'Conor

Son of Ex-President
Calls Nice Incompetent
Indorses Democrat

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—Richard F. Cleveland, attorney and son of former President Grover Cleveland, took the stump in Maryland's gubernatorial campaign tonight with an indorsement of the Democratic ticket and vigorous criticism of the Republican State administration.

Speaking for Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor the Democratic candidate for Governor, Cleveland asserted in a broadcast address that Republican Gov. Harry W. Nice "has been an atrociously incompetent" executive "unable to rise above the evil days that have fallen on the Republican Party in Maryland."

Gov. Nice, he continued, had taken a "juvenile attitude" toward State affairs. While urging Nice's defeat, Cleveland added the Governor was "an agreeable, human man, perhaps too human," with a "lovable disposition."

He has, however, "riddled the State offices with the appointment of political hacks from whose incompetence we shall have to suffer until their terms expire," Cleveland asserted.

O'Conor's career, on the other hand, he continued, has been marked by "industry and intelligent usefulness" and by "proven ability and willingness to select extremely able men to serve with him."

Danville Mayor, 94, Reported Failing; Concern Grows

Danville, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—The condition of Mayor Harry Wooding, Mayor of Danville for 45 years, caused concern to his family and his physician.

Dr. H. A. Wiseman, the mayor's physician and long-time friend, said his heart action was highly unsatisfactory.

Mayor Wooding has been recuperating from an illness that kept him from all but the lightest of official duties for the past several months.

He is a Civil War veteran and at 94 believed to be the oldest mayor in the United States.

School Job Awarded

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 3.—The Lucas Construction Co., of this city, with a proposal of $36,365, was low bidder on construction of an eight-room grade school at Chancellor, Spotsylvania County, and was awarded the contract after bids were opened yesterday at the office of J. H. Chiles, superintendent of schools.

Half of Farm Problem Seen In Urban Area

Low Incomes Cited
1,800 Hear Official
Co-op Meets in Md.

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—Farmers of the South heard their leaders declare today that "half of the farm problem is in the city."

Murray D. Lincoln, secretary of the Ohio State Farm Bureau, made the assertion echoed by other speakers before the annual meeting of more than 1,800 delegates of the Southern States Co-operative, representing 100,000 members.

"Farmers, constituting one-fourth of the population," Lincoln said, "can hardly expect to solve the farm problem and get their share of the national income to which their number entitles them until the man in town is economically able to make possible a prosperous farm population.

"Six million families in our country are living on an annual income of less than $500.

"On such meager resources, is it possible to buy very much of the meat, potatoes, milk, and eggs which we farmers produce? Producers and consumers are not naturally enemies, but just the opposite."

W. G. Wysor, general manager of the organization, reported an earning of $200,000 on the year's operations despite "a difficult year with declining markets, unfavorable business conditions and increased taxes: a 23 per cent increase in tonnage over the preceding year; and a net worth—past the million-dollar mark for the first time—of $1,036,279."

Policeman Charges Self With Reckless Driving; Acquitted

Baltimore, Nov. 3 (AP).—Traffic Court Magistrate John Rutherford, handed a charge slip by a policeman, called out the name:

"Ernest O. Dunnigan."

"That's me," said the officer.

"You?" asked the magistrate. "Where's the complaining witness?"

"That's me, too," said Dunnigan, explaining he smacked into the rear of an automobile when it stopped suddenly in front of him.

"Well," said the magistrate, "I think the accident was unavoidable and I'll dismiss the reckless driving charge."

O'Conor Says Gov. Nice Dodges Issues

Calls Him 'Misleading
Sees Bid to Prejudice
Cites 'False' Charge
Stresses Labor Stand

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—Maryland's Republican Gov. Harry W. Nice, up for re-election, has consistently dodged the issues of the gubernatorial campaign and resorted to "misleading" tactics, his Democratic opponent asserted tonight.

Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, the Democratic candidate, reiterated in a broadcast address that Gov. Nice was resorting to "jury tactics" he used as a criminal lawyer to "divert attention to irrelevant matters."

"Appeal to Prejudice"

"Knowing that the record of his administration is against him," O'Conor said, "Gov. Nice . . . to appeal to prejudice, to create dissension and to again mislead the voters as he did four years ago when he made numerous promises he has failed to fulfill."

In addition, the attorney general asserted, Nice "seeks to mislead the voters concerning the policies which I have advocated during the campaign." For example, he continued, the Governor "falsely" charged that O'Conor "proposed to buy every acre of land in Garrett County" for a recreational park area and State forest.

Stresses Labor Issue

As late as last night, O'Conor continued, Gov. Nice claimed the Democratic candidate had taken no stand on labor questions, whereas O'Conor made a "comprehensive labor speech" at Cumberland recently in which I set forth my belief in the principles of collective bargaining and gave assurance that my administration would regard its obligations to labor as a sacred trust."

O'Conor asserted again he had made no political commitments of any kind during the campaign and was free of any obligations should he be elected.

"The tactics of my opponent," he summed up, "grow out of the weakness of his position. His lack of leadership has been abundantly demonstrated; his preoccupation with patronage, rewards and favors is known to all; he has shown an unwillingness to study problems on their merits."

Md. Barbers Plan Legislation Drive Against Unskilled

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 3 (AP).—Maryland barbers are after the scalps of their unskilled brethren.

At a meeting addressed by Fred B. Driscoll, president of the Maryland State and District of Columbia Barbers Association, Allegany County barbers indorsed plans for a campaign to obtain new barber legislation.

He asserted that under present laws barbers unable to obtain licenses in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio and the District of Columbia move into Maryland.

Driscoll said a series of meetings would be conducted throughout the State to organize barbers in support of new legislation to supplant what he termed "antiquated and obsolete" laws enacted in 1904.

Plans Approved To Beautify Shrine

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 3.—Acceptance of general plans proposed by the Garden Club of Virginia for the improvement of the grounds surrounding the grave of Mrs. Mary Ball Washington, mother of George Washington, were announced today following a meeting here Tuesday by the board of directors of the National Mary Washington Monument Association. The work is to be done at an approximate cost of $5,000, which has been donated by the garden club.

Those at the meeting were Mrs. Fairfax Harrison, president of the association; Mrs. Stanley Reed, wife of Supreme Court Justice Reed, and the following members of the board: Former United States Senator Blair Lee, of Maryland; Walter Davidge, of Washington, and Chester B. Goolrick, of Fredericksburg.

Nice Charges O'Conor With Probe Laxity

Cites 'Vote-Buying'
No Study of Charge
Demands Inquiry
In Governor's Role

Baltimore, Nov. 3, (AP).—Gov. Harry W. Nice ended a reelection campaign speech here tonight with an official demand on Attorney General Herbert R. O'Conor, his Democratic gubernatorial opponent, to explain why O'Conor failed to investigate alleged "vote-buying" in the recent primaries.

Returning to a question he asked O'Conor earlier in the campaign, the Governor rephrased it, and clothed it in official verbiage as coming from Maryland's governor to Maryland's attorney general.

"Before closing," he said in a broadcast address, "I want to mention the allegation—which has been publicly made, on the charge of vote buying in Queen Anne's County during the recent primaries.

Publicly Aired

"These charges have been printed in the newspapers and are a matter of public knowledge. It is a grave and serious matter.

"As governor of Maryland I want to know why Mr. O'Conor has not investigated it. I am asking Mr. O'Conor, not as a Democratic candidate for the office of Governor, but as attorney general of the State of Maryland, why he has not taken steps to investigate this matter."

"Unless Mr. O'Conor wants to continue to suffer the belief of the people that he has not investigated this vote-buying charge, because he was the recipient of the primary benefits therein—then act now. Not after the general election.

Explains Fiscal Policy

"It seems odd that the people must remind Mr. O'Conor of his oath of office and his responsibilities as attorney general.

The Governor's demand concluded a speech devoted largely to a discussion of fiscal affairs of his administration; and a reiteration of how he had wiped out a deficit left by his Democratic predecessors, had balanced the budget, and now has a comfortable balance in the banks.

"When I am returned to office, I shall approach the entire tax situation, maintaining always the proper balance between borrowing, expenditures and taxation, so that Maryland's financial situation shall remain as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar and that Maryland democracy shall not be taxed of existence."

News of Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris

Another top-flight night spot, the Lounge Riviera at 2400 Sixteenth street, will blaze in a gay opening on Friday, November 18.

Manager Fordyce Minnick of "2400," has raided the radio for two threesomes of highly talented entertainers, the Three Swingsters and "Three Maids on a Mike," all air wave favorites. The Three Swingsters play 14 instruments between them and achieve a tremendous variety of modernist rhythm. Elsie De Wolfe, internationally famed decorator, has designed the Lounge Riviera.

Reunion in Caprice: Lee Sullivan, new barytone star of the Cafe Caprice, and Mayfair's Madcaps, Jack and Leo, crammed an "Old Home Week" into an hour's get-together the other evening. This entertaining trio were kids in Brooklyn together, first dipped their noses into show business via being the leading lights in neighborhood block parties, club and school shows.

It's our conviction that Lee Sullivan and his talented partner, Pianist Melvin Pahl, will be the same irresistible "draw" in the Caprice that their old pals, Jack and Leo, are at the Mayfair. Lee has more than a fine voice—he has the perfect trick of selling a lyric. As for young Master Pahl, there's magic in his fingertips.

Successful experiment. For weeks Wardman's Johnny Slaughter has been toying (toying's really not the word) with new orchestral setups, experimenting with various combinations of brass, reeds and percussion. Reason? Johnny, always a stout fella, had made up his mind to go in for swing in its most modern phases. And he's done it.

Tomorrow night the new Johnny Slaughter Swingers will offer their first dance session in the Metronome Room. The spirits tell us that it's going to be a hot Saturday night!

Heigh Ho's new "champagne interludes" will start tomorrow night, continue every Saturday thereafter. We don't quite get this "interlude" business because the popping of champagne corks is a constant performance in Heigh Ho. Anyway, all the customers will be invited to ad lib their own rhumbas and two of Arthur Murray's top dance instructors, Harriet Kronche and Ted Norman, will pick the winners who'll have their choice of gratis bubbly or dance lessons. (But what will happen if the winning team can't agree?)

Austine Byrne McDonnell, Warrenton society pretty, will start to give impersonations at Heigh Ho in about two weeks. She'll begin with glamour girls and Southern belles, gradually work up to takeoffs of Washington figures. P. S. The devil walked into Heigh Ho on Halloween in the person of Maj. McKenzie Davidson, all done up as His Nibs.

With beautiful girls parading with French heeled precariousness across the top of its bar, the Hour Glass style show hit a new high in gayety and uniqueness for this type of event. Dozens of ravishing afternoon and evening dresses were shown, including some rather ultra Schiapperelli numbers. Wind-up was the original and startling affair of black and white ostrich worn by Alice Faye in "Alexander's Ragtime Band." Jack Rollins was both witty and suave in his descriptions of the gowns. Hour Glass style shows will be staged every Wednesday at the cocktail hour. P. S. Not a single mannequin fell off the bar—this time.

Madrillon's head man and host, Peter Borras, has been having a picnic in the kitchen during the brief illness of Chief Giacinto Maggia. Senor Peter has been experimenting with his pet dishes and we think he's invented a couple of new ones. If possible, this column will get the recipes. Giacinto will be back on Monday.

Do you belong to that gerat bloc that acclaims "Melancholy Baby" as tops in tunes? Then hurry right up to Bamboo Gardens and hear Eddie Kimley put both honey and hades into "Melancholy Baby." It's a revelation. Eddie and his partner Eileen Grant are also dynamic tap dancers. Bamboo's fast-tempoed new show also includes Sybil Roth who plays a piano while she stands on it and the Merry-makers beatuy chorus doing a fascinating soft-shoe can-can.

Old but good: When the University of Mississippi footballers found out that their G. W. U. game was postponed last week, they spent the afternoon in Hi Hat. Then went out the next day and piled up a terrific score over G. W. There must be a moral to this.

Hither-and-Thither Department

Dick Satterfield, Shoreham's emcee-singer ringsided at the Shar-Zad Room the other eve, opined that Sande Williams was pretty good, too.

Nina Tarasova, Russian diva singing in the Pall Mall Room, is in private life the wife of a F. F. V., rapidly becoming a real Virginian herself.

Another side of the Russian picture is that of Matt Windsor, Anchor Room's accordionist. Matt had a terrific time getting out of Russia, the Reds, to give them credit, not wanting to lose a good accordion player.

Troika's waiters would deserve mention in any listing of the town's best-dressed men. Their blue satin blouses are downright 'andsome.

Mary Lewis, Lotus' Lindsay girl with the loveliest smile, is accompanied by her mother—and everywhere.

Jack Torry, leader at Brinkley's, just celebrated his twenty-third birthday. Brinkley patrons sang "Happy Birthday to You." Jack reciprocated by presenting "Twilight in Turkey" with a zowiezing that set the dancers whirling like dervishes.

Nina Tarasova (left), Russian chanteuse, who is now charming Pall Mall Room patrons. Johnny Slaughter (right), whose new swing orchestra will make its debut in Wardman's Metronome Room tomorrow night

Ex-Drunk Pledges Not to Tame Zoo Bears Any More

Edward J. Harris, 28, declared yesterday he would "never again" attempt to tame a wild bear, when he appeared before Police Court Judge Walter Casey on a charge of being drunk.

Harris, who lives in the 1800 block of Belmont northwest, told the court he went on a spree several days ago after losing his WPA job.

He strolled into the Zoo, saw a black European bear that looked wild enough to need taming, and climbed over the guard rail.

Harris climbed the guard rail twice, was hauled back both times before he came within striking distance of the claws. The second rescue was made by Pvt. C. F. Lloyd of the Park Police, who took Harris to jail.

Judge Casey took Harris' personal bond that he would not repeat his offense.

Mrs. McVicker to Talk

Mrs. Margaret I. McVicker will address the National Geological Society on "Salem and Cape May Counties, N. J.," at 8:15 p. m. tomorrow at the Y. W. C. A., Seventeenth and K streets northwest.

$140,132 Paid To D. C. Jobless In September

A total of $140,132 in benefit claims was distributed to 1,720 unemployed in the city in September by the District unemployment compensation agency, it was announced yesterday.

John Marshall, director, said the average weekly benefit payment for that month amounted to $8.50. During the previous month 2,055 persons received $152,109.

The director said a total of $1,246,899 has been paid to the District's unemployed by the Federal and District governments since the first of the year.

According to the Social Security Board the Nation's unemployed received $41,500,000 in benefit payments in September.

Premier Ill, Commons Votes Against Censure.

Chamberlain Has Chill
Fewer Duties Urged
Unpreparedness Hit

Special Cable to The Post.

London, Nov. 3.—With Prime Minister Chamberlain and unable to attend, the House of Commons tonight defeated, by 355 vote to 130, a motion rebuking the government for its unpreparedness to protect the civil population "when the country was brought to the edge of war" in the Czech crisis last September.

[Earlier the House of Lords approved by a vote of 55 to 6 the government's decision to bring the Anglo-Italian accord into force as soon as possible, the Associated Press reported.—Editor's Note]

As the Commons renewed its vote of confidence in the government, the Prime Minister was in bed in his No. 10 Downing street home suffering from what was regarded as a slight chill. Upon his physician's advice he remained in his room all day.

This was the Prime Minister's third disabling illness since he assumed office a year and a half ago. Previously he was laid up with gout and chronic catarrh.

Fewer Duties Urged

The Liberal Party spokesman, Sir Percy Harris, suggested the prime minister shoul dturn over direction of foreign affairs to a foreign secretary who can sit in the Commons, and that the prime minister should concentrate on his "primary duty as chairman of the committee of imperial defense."

The present foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, is debarred by his noble rank from sitting in the Commons and must limit his parliamentary activity to the innocuous House of Lords.

In asking the Comons to express "grave concern" at the government's unpreparedness to protect its civil population against aerial attacks, Herbert Morrison, who spoke for the Laborites, called attention to serious muddling in the distribution of gas masks, in the digging of trenches which were death traps, in the failure to check profiteering in sand bags, in the lack of a complete plan for the evacuation of London and in the inability to muster more than a few modern antiaircraft guns. Some of the guns were so old and obsolete, he said, they were nicknamed "Hoare-Belisha's war museum."

Better Action Pledged

But replying for the government, Sir Samuel Hoare, the home secretary, disarmed much of the criticism by admitting the government had made many mistakes, and by promising the government would do better in the future in the light of its dress rehearsal for war last September. He thought the government had done well in distributing 38,000,000 gas masks in a few days.

Premier Mussolini loves Britain, the House of Lords was informed by Earl Cavan, who recently went to Italy with the war Graves commission. He told how he thanked Mussolini for his intervention at Munich. Il Duce, affected by praise from Britain, "caught hold of my hand and said: 'I love England and I want to put out relations on a new basis.'"

Weymouth Resigns As St. John's Treasurer

Annapolis, Nov. 3 (AP).—Stringfellow Barr, president of St. John's College, today announced the resignation of Harrison Weymouth, treasurer of the college, effective November 23.

Weymouth will re-enter business in Baltimore. He was named treasurer of the college December 13, 1937. His successor has not been named.

One Shot Spells Doom To Pair of Rabbits

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 3.—Two rabbits with one shot—that was the feat claimed today by Kenneth Guise, Biglerville.

Guise reported he spotted a rabbit running across the field and fired. When he went to retrieve the animal he found his shot had killed two rabbits which were lying close together.

Robber's Pistol Shaken by Fear As He Takes $117

A nervous robber, whose hand shook so that he almost dropped his gun, held up Irving Loubet, 1610 Q street northwest, manager of the Auto City Parking Lot, just before closing time last night and stole $117.

The robber, a young white man, covered Loubet and an employe, Aaron Cohen, with a revolver as they were counting the day's receipts. He ordered them to turn over the bills and change which lay on the counter. When told to help himself, the man nervously stuffed the money into his pocket and fled in a waiting automobile.

Papal Nuncio To Washington Is Discussed

Mundelein May Confer
Going to Vatican
Expected to See Pius

By the United Press.

Vatican City, Nov. 3.—It was reported tonight without official confirmation, that George Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, would discuss with Pope Pius XI and Vatican officials the possibility of early resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and the Holy See.

United States Embassy officials said they had no knowledge of the impending discussions, reported by usually trustworthy quarters.

It was reported Cardinal Mundelein, who arrives at the Vatican Saturday, would discuss the matter with the Pope and with Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Vatican secretary of state.

The Batican has an apostolic delegate in Washington, Mgr. Amleto Cicognani, but no papal nuncio.

Cardinal Mundelein will celebrate solemn mass in St. Peter's on November 13 for the beatification of Mother Carbrini, Italian nun who founded the order of the Sisters of the Sacred Heart in the United States.

The high honor granted to Cardinal Mundelein was announced in a decree issued today by Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state. Mass at beatification ceremonies usually has been reserved for the canons of St. Peter's.

Some quarters regarded as significant President Roosevelt's personal interest in Cardinal Mundelein's trip to Rome and it was reported United States Ambassador William Phillips is prepared to show special consideration to the American prelate.

Officially, however, the cardinal is coming here to report to the Pope on his commission as papal legate to the recent Eucharistic Congress in New Orleans and also to celebrate the mass in beatification of Mother Cabrini.

It was rumored without confirmation that Cardinal Mundelein is carrying President Roosevelt's ideas regarding early resumptions of relations between Washington and the Holy See.

Diplomatic ties between the United States and the Holy See were severed seventy years ago and the papal nuncio recalled to Rome. At that time the United States contended the papal state no longer had a territorial domain and therefore did not rate diplomatic status. The Vatican then designated an Apostolic delegate to act as its semiofficial representative in Washington.

Japanese Take Strongholds Guarding 2 New Provinces

Battles Develop in Huge Triangle
Troops Push On Far Up Yangtze
Chiang Fights for Kiangsi and Hunan

By the Associated Press.

Shanghai, Nov. 3.—Chinese and Japanese armies were reported tonight to be locked in a struggle within a large triangular area bounded on two sides by the Yangtze River and Lake Poyang, and on the south by unconquered Kiangsi and Hunan provinces.

Both sides acknowledged heavy casualties as the Chinese, bracing after the fall of Hankow, October 25, sought to stem the Japanese advance toward two of the last provincial strongholds of Gen. Chiang.

With Hankow at the apex of the triangle, Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi Province, and Yochow, gateway to Hunan, formed the other two corners, each stil staunchly defended.

Slashing attacks and counter-attacks throughout the triangle made it virtually impossible to follow the precise court of the struggle on the basis of dispatches reaching Shanghai.

On the west side of the triangle, the Japanes reported capture of Puchi on the Canton-Hankow railway and the Kiayu forts dominating the Yangtze River, 45 miles south southwest and upstream from Hankow.

Both Kiayu and Puchi were in the path of the Japanese drive southwestward toward Yochow, principal city of northern Hunan and on the Canton-Hankow railway leading to Changsha, provinvial capital.

Meanwhile, on the east side of the triangle, south of the Yangtze and along the shore of Lake Poyang, Japanese were reported advancing down the railway from Kiukiang toward Nanchang, Kiangsi provincial capital.

This force was preparing to attack Yungshui which is within 35 miles of Nanchang. A battle was reported in progress at Yingcheng, 55 miles northwest of Hankow.

Va. Jury Refuses To Indict Mother In Baby's Death

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 3.—A five-man grand jury in Corporation Court today refused to indict Mrs. Leigh Myers Orrock, 21, for the murder of her new-born daughter here on September 28 and the charge was dismissed.

The indictment was prepared by Commonwealth's Attorney W. B. F. Cole. The body of the child was found in the bathroom of the home on Lee avenue, where Mrs. Orrock lived, a few hours after its birth.

Following an autopsy, Coroner John E. Cole filed a report stating that the child died "as the result of her throat being cut." On the same day a warrant charging Mrs. Orrock with murder was served on her at Mary Washington Hospital, where she had been a patient since September 28.

Mrs. Orrock's husband, Samuel Orrock, to whom she was married in the hospital here on September 29, is employed in Alexandria.

Oratory to Feature Md. Farmers' Session

Crisfield, Md., Nov. 3 (AP).—Oratorical fireworks will flare brightly in Crisfield November 5—the date for the annual conference of the Maryland Association of the New Farmers of America.

The oratory will come as a highlight of the day—a contest among elocutionists from all parts of the State.

New Soil Bureau Head

Salisbury, Md., Nov. 3 (AP).—Wade H. Insley, jr., succeeded William H. Holloway who resigned as project manager for the Eastern Shore branch of the Soil Conservation Service.

New Open Formula Pebeco is a definite scientific achievement intended to provide you with complete oral hygiene.
MODERN dental care stresses the great importance of cleanliness. And Pebeco chemists, in creating the new Open Formula Pebeco, adopted a new cleansing agent which they called "miraclene". It is an active, gritless, soapless element, which bubbles around the teeth. It emulsifies and aids in removing the food particles which cling there, and which, if not removed, tend to ferment and often cause offensive breath.
This extra-cleanliness due to "miraclene" is the help that many people need to keep their mouth in perfectly clean condition.
Open Formula Pebeco contains no ingredient that can possibly harm the teeth, or cause discomfort. It contains no abrasives. It is satin-smooth, bland and comforting to people with sensitive mouths.
Try Open Formula Pebeco. Let its refreshing taste and action help give you modern dental home care. Let it help you to be more attractive to the person you are going to see tonight.

Many Odd Things in Good Taste In Prize-Winning Soup Recipes

Creamy Type Favored Bananas in One Paris Bisque First

By Alice Clayton,

SOUPS as creamy and light as a company dessert were entered in last week's recipe contest. The black bean from Mexico was offered as a Latin contribution. France produced a hot chicken stock with limas, onions and carrots as a base for a Neufchatel cream soup, and a Normandy recipe for corn soup thickened with corn starch.

Vegetable creamed soups were so varied and yet so often duplicated that a number of these delicious recipes had to be discounted. Foremost among these popular soups were corn bisques, some containing boullion cubes, others sausages, popcorn or tomatoes and spices.

One Soup Takes Vanilla

Many humble cream soups competed for prizes against some of the more costly chicken and almond-dumpling soups. One of this homespun clan was christened Mystic-Creamed-Soup which contained inexpensive rations of beans, bacon and carrots. Turnips, squash, sauerkraut, left-over vegetables and parsley were components of other modest soups. Most extraordinary of all was an original idea for a sweet dessert soup which contained vanilla, bananas, berries, nuts and an egg custard base.

Rare as a King's Ransom

First award of $3.00 went to Mrs. Gwyn Griffiths, 2131 P street northwest. This seasoned world traveler, who has been collecting rare recipes from all over the globe, has submitted an epicurean dish which has been enjoyed by the notables of Europe. Mrs. Griffiths relates that she had greater difficulty in obtaining the formula for this rich fish and spice soup than in many of the other tantalizing recipes she has picked up in Australia and the Orient.

Mrs. Griffiths

Parisian Bisque for Crayfish, Shrimp or Baby Lobster

First throw the living fish into boiling water, into which a cupful of vinegar has been poured. After one minute extract the fish.

Into one quart and a half of water for each pound of fish, put bay leaf, laurel, parsley and three cloves, with ½ pound finely chopped onion, and either one pound of fresh tomatoes or one small tin of tomato pulp. Shell the fish and return the ground shells to this mixture to simmer for three hours. The flesh of the fish finely cut and covered with lemon juice and olive oil is placed in the ice box. Strain the soup and thicken with 1½ tablespoons of flour smoothed evenly into the same quantity of butter with seasonings of two dashes of tabasco sauce, one inch of anchovy paste, salt and pepper to taste, and again simmer until 10 minutes before serving, when the fish is added. Cook gently, don't boil. Serves three small portions or two large ones. Whip separately ½ cup of thick cream and two egg whites, and then fold them carefully together; add to soup just before serving, reserving a small teaspoonful for the top of each plate. Whip the yolks of the eggs with ½ cup of skimmed milk and ¾ cup self-rising flour, pepper and salt into a thick creamy batter and fry quickly in small droplets in hot oil; strain and serve with soup. This makes a delicious, attractive and very nourishing meal. 1 lb. shrimp, crayfish or young lobster, 1 lb. tomatoes or small can of pulp, ¾ lb. onion, 3 eggs, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1½ tablespoons butter and seasoning.

Homespun Onion Delicacy

Second award of $2 has been won by Maria Wiesbacker, 4423 Eighth street northwest, who has been trying for many months to win one of the contest cash awards. Her simple inexpensive recipe for the use of leeks, potatoes and parsley is a colorful and fragrant one. Her addition of bay leaf, paprika and chili sauce perfects a distinctive flavor, quite at variance with the inexpensive ingredients indorsed.

Miss Wiesbacher

Cream of Leek Soup

Brown 1½ cups sliced leeks lightly in butter. Add 1 cup clam juice or 1 cup of beef broth and 2 cups chicken stock, bay leaf, 2 tablespoons chili sauce, and 5 medium sized diced potatoes. Simmer until potatoes are very tender. Force through sieve. Add 2 cups milk, 2 tablespoons minced

Nutritious Nuts Basis of Recipes In Prize Contest

Nuts are one of the housewife's most nutritious "old reliables." They are rich in energy factors which makes them ideal for Lenten or other meatless meals. Their delicacy of flavor and richness in proteins and vitamin B are especially appreciated by Mrs. Mary Duffy, 409 Park avenue, Baltimore, Md. She has requested that they be made the theme of the new recipe contest which opens today and will close November 12.

Your favorite nut dish may be submitted for one of five cash awards. If pecans or pistachios or hazel nuts or almonds or Brazils are your secret culinary desire, enter a recipe with them as a base. You may enter any type of nutty dish from a macaroon-Marguerite, a nut ice cream, a variety of nut candy to a humble bread made from oatmeal and peanuts. Submit carefully written recipes to Alice Clayton. The Post Food Editor, in competition for one of these cash prizes. First award is $3, second $2 and there are three additional prizes of $1 each.

Modest Soups Evident Indian Recipe Wins Fish Used Often

parsley, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of pepper and paprika. Heat to boiling and serve with croutons. Yields about 8 portions.

Peppery Indian Stew

Mrs. J. H. King, 1623 Thirty-fifth street northwest, has been awarded a $1 prize for mulligatawny soup. This is one of the raciest of Hindu foods, and Mrs. King has retained the haunting flavors of the true mulligatawny paste, which is revered by gourmets for its subtlety. This nourishing thick soup with its tang of cloves, mace, tomatoes and curry added to chicken and apple, would prove the ideal solution for a different company one-dish meal.

Mrs. J. King

Mulligatawny Soup

Cook ¼ cup sliced onion, ¼ cup carrot cut in cubes and 3 pounds chicken (raw) in fat until brown in ¼ cup of butter or fat; add 1 tablespoon flour, 1 teaspoon curry powder, 2 cloves, 2 sliced sour apples and 1 cup strained tomato, ½ green pepper chopped fine; ⅛ teaspoon mace, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 1 teaspoon sugar, salt and pepper, slowly cooking until chicken is tender, in 4 quarts of boiling water. Remove chicken and cut meat in small pieces. Strain soup and rub vegetables through a sieve. Add chicken to strained soup. Season and serve hot.

Contest Theme Winner

Mrs. Ernest L. Andes, 1412 Chapin street northwest, has been awarded a $1.00 prize for a fancifully conceived soup recipe. She calls her soup Cream of Beer, for its main ingredient is dry beer plus rich cream or milk and a dash of cardamon seeds. Mrs. Andes might accurately be termed a connoiseur of fine soups, for not only was she the food page follower who requested that soups be made the theme of this contest, but she submitted for competition a kettle full of delicious soup recipes.

Mrs. E. Andes

Cream of Beer Soup

Heat 1 bottle dry beer to boiling point and add ½ teaspoon ginger and 2 cardamon seeds. Heat 1 pint milk in double boiler and add 2 tablespoons flour, hot beer, 1 teaspoon sugar, and ½ teaspoon salt. Serve hot. Garnish with fried cocktail frankfurters and some cheese crackers and slices of dill pickles.

Pale Pink Soup

Mrs. Chester Lee Clement, the Westchester Apartments, has won a $1.00 prize for her shrimp bisque. She has skillfully blended young shrimps with red tomatoes and a spray of paprika to paint a glowing bowl of pale pink soup. The addition of heavy cream, both whipped and plain, and of rice make this dish a meal in itself.

Shrimp Bisque

Peel and slice 1 quart of fresh ripe tomatoes, pick over ½ cupful of rice and wash in cold water. Melt 2 ounces of butter in a large saucepan, add 4 tablespoons of flour and blend well over low heat. Add one quart of chicken stock, the tomatoes, a few stalks of celery, one small onion, chopped, ½ minced green pepper, dash of paprika and the rice. Allow to come to a boil, and simmer for 25 minutes. Strain through a fine sieve, skim, then pour over one cupful of cream and heat in a double boiler.

Have ready one pound of cleaned fresh shrimps. Save a few of these for a garnish. Break up the rest and add to the soup to heat. When ready to serve, put the soup in bowls. Top each portion with a large spoonful of salted whipped cream. On top of this float one large shrimp and add a dash of paprika.

Consumers Counsel

Advice on Food

Advice concerning apples, soups and other foods has been contributed by co-operative food fans to The Consumer Counsel this week. There is also a pleasant and inexpensive recipe for apricot Betty furnished by a regular reader. Constructive suggestions, household hints or unusual cooking and time-saving ideas will be published in this open food forum, originated for the assistance of busy homemakers. Mail all inquiries or food tips to Alice Clayton, The Post Food Editor.

An Apple A Day

Mrs. Grace Fay Hiehle, 3422 South Dakota avenue northeast, has contributed the following apple preparation suggestions. From years of experience with her favorite food, she offers:

A baked apple should never be rushed, give it a chance to become accustomed to its new condition.

If you force an apple to bake quickly, against its will, it may become dry and tasteless and withered and old. Keep it youthful.

A couple of slits in the skin of an apple to be baked will allow for escape of steam. This will avoid a shower of apple all over the oven.

Mincemeat in the center of a baked apple is as good as mincemeat in a pie.

Honey, mixed with whipped cream is a grand top for baked apples. Maple syrup, too.

Bake layers of sliced apple and sugar for two or three hours in a slow oven. Just the thing for the children's lunch box.

For whole, glistening pieces of apple in a sauce, cook apples in water, adding sugar at the last. It is easy to get the proper effects if you follow these rules.

A small amount of grated apple, added to pancake batter, will liven up breakfast.

Dont's for Apple Eaters

Don't serve Swiss cheese with apple pie, remember that apple pie is truly American.

Make layers of buttered graham cracker crumbs and mashed, spiced and sweetened apple sauce. Chill for 24 hours and serve with whipped cream.

Grated raw apple, added to meringue and beaten well, together makes a quick tasty dessert. Top off with a little jelly.

Don't expose a good apple to bad companions. The tiniest splotch of decay on one makes a bad impression on the next apple.

If an apple has seen better days, add lemon juice to bring back the tartness.

A little diced apple added to salmon salad is sure to please.

If you want to dress up your grapefruit in flower petal fashion, take a half grapefruit, loosen sections with sharp knife, remove membrane, cut very thin slices from red apple, lengthwise, leave skin on, gently press these slices between sections of grapefruit with red skin of apple on top. Place a maraschino cherry in center.

An unsigned Counselor has submitted this apricot Betty which she introduces with the remark that she has "received so many helpful fruit and vegetable ideas from Post Food Pages that it seems only fair to return the compliment with other new ideas."

Apricot Betty

Put 2 cups canned apricots (not juice) and ½-teaspoon cinnamon and ½-cup sugar in bowl and blend well. Grease baking dish, put layer of bread cubes (2½ cups buttered day-old bread cut in cubes), and layer of apricots ending with bread on top. Sprinkle with cinnamon and add water. Cover dish and cook in 350 degrees fahrenheit oven for ½-hour. Take cover off and brown. Put juice of apricots in top of double boiler, add 2 cups water, thicken to consistency of cream, with corn starch or flour. A tablespoon of whisky will bring out the flavor. If you prefer you may add a little sugar, and vanilla mixed. Serves 6 or 7 generous portions.

Little tips to keep in mind when you get ready to try any of this week's prize winning recipes are contributed by Sylvia Klein, 300 Emerson street northwest. Here they are:

Always save small amounts of left over vegetables. They may be combined and cooked together to make any number of delicious cream soups.

Usually prepare cream soups ahead of time and reheat them just before serving, in a double boiler. This relieves one of much "last-minute" cooking.

Most important, in blending ingredients for white sauce, be sure that the shortening and flour are well mixed, before adding the liquid.

Nutmegs and Mace From Same Tree

Nutmegs and mace grow on the selfsame trees. The fruit of the nutmeg is like those ingenious wooden toys of Russian origin that have a half-dozen carved and painted eggs, each fitting perfectly within the other, right down to the center core. The peachlike fruit of the nutmeg is the outside egg; within that is the pulpy, bright red mace.

Diet Talk Bad Policy When Dining With Men

Order Wisely but Don't Reveal Your Hand
Seven-Course Dinner May Be Slimming
Eat With Gusto, Also Restraint

By Ida Jean Kain.

DON'T TALK ABOUT dieting when dining with a man—not if you want to hold his interest. Calories and romance do not mix and, in general, men seem to feel that they can very easily dispense with calories, at least as a topic of conversation.

One elusive bachelor goes so far as to proclaim that he no longer enjoys feminine society at mealtimes. When he used to take a girl to dinner she would say, "You order, John—you know good food!" And now, he says, she has an unvarying order of all the foods he considers particularly unappetizing, and she nibbles at those. Instead of feeling like a gourmet, he is made to feel like a gourmand . . . so he takes his steak and onions in solitary.

Men usually reserve what they consider the "best eating place in town" for their best girls. The restaurant he takes you to is a fairly accurate measure of his regard, and once you are there, mention of food and calories in the same breath would amount to desecration. You are expected to eat well.

Besides, as one of our cleverest and most beautiful actresses puts it . . . "If you talk about your diet, the man immediately begins to look you over to find out what is wrong with you."

Method is Simple

In spite of all this openly expressed antipathy toward the entire subject of diet, you are very much mistaken if you think he doesn't prefer streamlines, and you must go right along counting calories. Some of our most popular beauties keep their weight down by the simple method of eating one day and dieting the next, to even things up. That is not a bad idea—especially for the girl on a budget!

But probably the most satisfactory way of dealing with the calories sub rosa is to acquire the knack of ordering plenty of food that will not make you fat. You can learn to choose a seven-course dinner for 600 calories, and the word diet never need occur—not once!

Slimming Menu

For the first course, have tomato juice or oysters—for less than 50 calories—and take bouillon or Julienne soup, never a creamed soup. You might explain that bouillon gives you a better appetite! Then order beef, lamb, chops or chicken. In ordering chops, always specify that they are to be broiled. Have the vegetables plain, rather than creamed or scalloped, and include potatoes, which is conclusive evidence that you are not worried about the calories. It's a neat trick to have the salad with dressing on the side so that you can, quite unobtrusively, forget about the dressing. And for dessert, ask about that "delicious raspberry ice they make here," or order a typically masculine dessert of crackers, cheese and black coffee.

And there's the type menu that will make your robust escort marvel at your managing to keep so slim!

Halloween Air Still Lingers At Markets

By Alice Clayton,
The Post Food Editor.

Pumpkin-headed Jack-o-lanterns and weirdly whiskered squash are still leering from spooky minded grocers' shelves. Though Halloween has passed into a memory, local merchants are are loath to relinquish their harvest inspired talismans.

The very symbols of a plentiful Indian summer season are abundant in most markets. Pumpkins are plump and bright with golden color. They are early this year and already are being made into amber tinted pies and souffles. Squash are evident on vegetable stands and range from goose necked Hubbards to green Italian zucchinis and cunning acron shapes. There are even a few white cymblings waiting to be baked with Brazil nuts or country bacon.

Members of the spinach family are justifiably proud of their family tree these days. One observant marketer pointed out over eight different offspring of this leafy green clan. Most clearly recalled were the bright bouquets of spinach itself. The new Brussels sprouts have also made a dainty debut into the late fall scene. Mustard and turnip greens are conspicuous, as are turnip salads, collards, kale and cabbage sprouts. Broccoli remains, as always, a respected relative of this green family with red and green cabbages taking high honors for usefulness and popularity in the kitchen.

One of the most loudly applauded revelations of the week turned out to be the discovery that turkey is far cheaper than many meats.

To make it known that turkeys are selling at scarcely more than 20 cents a pound is like telling certain housewives that gold is where you find it, for this aristocratic fowl has sold at twice that price in recent years. Guinnea fowl are also coming into market and are fairly reasonable in price. Ducks are handsomely fat and tender.

Two Types of Designing Women

The romantic and gamin types are illustrated here as they appeared at a fashion show yesterday presenting feminine types discussed in the book, "Designing Women." The sophisticated debutante type, left, wears a period gown of white net which suddenly goes blase with a black sequin top.

Designed for the gamin is the black slither of a gown, right. Cut as straight as a poker, the lively wearer must live up to her role of minx by bringing such an amusing dinner frock to life. The brilliant beiot birds aid the cause of witchery for they are poised above the square-cut neckline as though in moral support

How Clothes Express Types Revealed at Fashion Show

By Marshall Adams.
The Post Fashion Editor.

BE A DESIGNING woman this year if you like. Wear extravaganzas of plaid taffeta when you Lambeth walk to swing music. Sheathe yourself in inky black crepe when dining out with your new husband or beau. Get reckless and vivid with a violet-tinted gown and a sequin-shot jacket of pinkcoat wool when you next greet your critical first-night audience. Languish under yards and yards of net for your deb ball—if you're lucky that way. If you're even favored with a White House or Embassy ball invitation, go cameo-like and regal in metallic lace and a fox-trimmed wrap.

Gowns for Feminine Types

At least these sartorial suggestions will make a designing woman of you if you have not already made yourself into one, according to a fashion showing and commentary held at a department store yesterday. Gleanings from this parade of contrasting Victorian and streamlined gowns proved that Margaretta Byers' "Designing Women" has already influenced the clothes judgment and desire to dress to type of women this season.

Miss Byers' analyzed prototypes of the sophisticate, the romantic, the exotic, and the ingenue were brought to life amidst the applause of an appreciative audience of girls, all of whom wanted to know what types their own characteristics of face and figure indicated.

For the Demure and Romantic

For demure young things, quaint Victorianism was suggested. Sweet simplicity was the keynote of a net and taffeta bridal gown of misty fragility.

For old-fashioned girls who crave romantic period gowns, there was shown a flattering "grandmother" evening ensemble of black velveteen, wide of skirt so that red taffeta ruffles peeped beneath—just right for modern Palais gliders. Its heart-shaped decollete was hidden at times by matching high-throated jacket made with vast leg-o'-mutton sleeves. A high tortoise shell comb and bows on the slippers made a sly coquettish designing woman of its wearer.

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes.

New York, Nov. 3.

THE LOCAL behavior of the Great Garbo is beginning to get under the tender hides of many of our citizens, especially the ladies. Making all due allowance for her shyness, her love of privacy and her general air of who gives a hoot, the sisters feel that as long as the Somnolent Svenska eats in our beaneries, strolls our streets and attends our opry houses, she owes it to us, if not to herself, to perk up a mite and adorn our streets, and behave in at least a normally well-mannered way.

ALICE HUGHES

There was the well-known lady author, a pal of mine, who was severely cut by the star when she went over to speak to Bob Reud, who was tearing a herring with Garbo. The silent one, by the way, tucked into an elegant meal, which began with crabmeat, caviar and Russian dressing, centered on sole Marguery, and wound up with a green salad and a sweet. Well, Greta's a big girl and needs her stren'th. Style-conscious New York women are agonized by Garbo's daily and nightly costume—mannish suit, flat-heeled shoes, coarse-grained socks and a felt hat over the eyes. Why, she looks like Garbo from the back, arredy! Gertrude Bailey, one of the town's fashion editors, even delivered herself of a ringing editorial, urging the star with eloquence and tears to use a bit of her screen glamor when she is mingling with the citizens—all of whom do their best to please the eye.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Not that I'd urge Garbo to go quite the color length reached the other day at the Waldorf chili bar by Miss Jane Will, one of our younger cuties. She wore a dirndl frock with a purple skirt, a diamond-patterned blouse of sapphire blue and emerald green, and a velvet purple turban. A nervous old gentleman sent out for smoked specs, and a startled waiter dropped seven steins of Park avenue beer.

Designer John Gartman is showing some sets of black furniture at a big local bazaar. He calls the stuff Scandinavian in style. The bedroom pieces are decorated with white leather stripes and brass handles on the chest of drawers.

Scrape 2/3 of a pound of mushrooms. Place them in a double boiler. Add 1 tablespoon of lemon juice. Cover and simmer until the mushrooms are a light brown color, shaking off the liquid frequently. Drain off the liquid. It may be used later in soup stock or sauce. Add 4 tablespoons of flour, 1/3 teaspoon of salt and ¼ teaspoon of paprika. Add 3 tablespoons of butter, 1/3 cup of cream and 1 cup of milk. Cook 10 minutes in double boiler.

The Gentler Sex

In Defense of Hen Parties

Well it is a relief to be going to a hen party:

Knowing that at the end of a hard day I won't have to rally all my forces to be charming; that I won't have to glide in looking so very feminine and fragile; that I won't have to remember to speak very softly and slowly and not hurry my words or get excited and emphatic; that I won't have to regard the scene about me with a wide-eyed little girl wonderment; that I won't have to look helplessly around for someone to find me a seat or bring me a cocktail; that I won't have to surround myself with an aura of helpless naivity nor yet one of intriguing sophistication.

But:

Knowing that I can stride in vigorously and boldly and make a bee-line for the Bacardis; that I can sight the most comfortable chair and flop down in it not bothering to reveal my best lines nor conceal my worst ones; that I won't have to worry about the looks of my six-day old wave so long as I'm sure everybody's noticed my new dress and wondered where on earth I found it; that I can stretch out my feet and cross my legs and lean back and relax and say "Well girls, what's the gossip?"

It is sort of fun to be going to a hen party:

Knowing that I won't have to be so very indirect, subtle and tactful; that I won't have to stop and count 10 after some enraging masculine dictum; that I won't have to watch that my tones drip honey when I remark, "Well of course I don't know a great deal about it, but on the other hand, don't you think . . .?" that I won't have to wear out my facial muscles looking as if I were having such a wonderful time; that I won't have to exhaust myself laughing and laughing and laughing.

But:

That I can get as excited and shrill and opinionated as I please arguing about Roosevelt, Chamberlain, the Dies committee or the new hair-dos; that I can steal the conversation and finish other women's sentences and break in with all the "I think's" that I please; that I can come out and say bluntly "Oh it's not that way at all," and openly announce that I am a Democrat, a Republican, a Baptist or a member of the Committee for Greater Progress; that I can shout everybody down and tell what happened to me when they are trying to tell what happened to them.

Yes, it is sort of relaxing to be going to a hen party:

Knowing that I won't have to watch to keep from being stranded with old Mr. Proser or young Johnny Speel; that the muchly married Mr. Hare won't get jittery when he feels he is talking to me longer that he should; that I won't get nervous when Mrs. Gimlet gives me a disapproving eye when I come in from the fernery with her husband; that I won't have to worry about being trapped with the brigade on the sofa.

But:

That I can directly and openly seek out the persons whose conversation entertains me; that I can partake of a second helping of everything with gusto and tell all about my diet and what I should and shouldn't have; that I can discuss permanents and clothes and the best face creams and the lure of Clark Gable without seeing any disgusted, masculine countenances; and that after all the preliminaries are over, the clothes question settled, the world problems solved, we can all really get down to business and tackle once more the puzzle of what it takes to get 'em and hold 'em.

Christmas Stocking Now Streamlined

Mother's cast-off stockings will no longer be pressed into service on the mantel Chrismas eve.

Designed to eliminate the use of old stockings for little ones whose own hosiery wardrobe consists of short socks, are the new Christmas stockings. Made of felt, the stockings are long and wide and roomy to accommodate oranges, apples and nuts and the small toys from Santa's pack. They have a true Christmas note in their red or green coloring, and their decorations of bows and bells, holly, or "Merry Christmas" in letters.

The stockings have been graduated in size to accommodate the tiniest toddler to the older child who still hangs up a sock for Santa.

Horse Show, Football Lure Capital Notables

Week-End Trips to Take Many Out of Town
Lady Blackett Given Tea by Mr. Remey
Finnish Envoy to Return Tomorrow

By Hope Ridings Miller,
The Post Society Editor.

WHEN AUTUMN WEEK-ENDS roll around, the fancy of Capital residents lightly turns to out-of-town trips. Tomorrow, there are no end of attractions to lure Washingtonians away from home . . . to football games; to the opening of the National Horse Show in New York, and to the Maryland and Virginia countrysides.

HOPE R. MILLER.

One of the most popular events on schedule is, of course, the Navy-Notre Dame game in Baltimore that will draw Capital notables in droves. Mrs. Claude A. Swanson will be on hand to cheer for the Navy and will have a number of friends with her. A confirmed football fan—especially when the Navy team is playing—Mrs. Swanson not ony manages to be there to watch her favorite eleven, but she also generally takes a party along. She will, tomorrow. Among those driving over to Baltimore with her will be her son, Douglas Hall; Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, Capt. and Mrs. Edgar L. Wood and Capt. and Mrs. John Beardall.

Washington's younger set also will be well represented among the Navy rooters. Miss Maisie Howard, popular and pretty daughter of Capt. and Mrs. Herbert Seymour Howard, will be there when the whistle blows and will also have a small group from here with her.

Commander and Mrs. Robert M. Griffin will go over, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest J. Swift, and Commander and Mrs. Atherton Macondray will be there with the former's sister, Mrs. Macondray Lundborg, of San Francisco. Among the shoals of other Washington residents who will be there are Commander Hamilton Bryan, Commander and Mrs. John Whitney and the Counselor of the Brazilian Embasy, Joaquim de Sousa Leao, who will soon be leaving the Capital for a post elsewhere.

A LISTING OF everybody from here who will be in Baltimore tomorrow would be interminable, so just for a change, let's shift back to the local scene and consider one of the many parties on yesterday's calendar for one of the many visitors in the current crop.

Slipping into the Capital a couple of weeks ago without the usual fanfare was Lady Blackett, widow of Sir Basil Phillott Blackett, of London, who has been feted right and left ever since she arrived. She has been staying at the Sulgrave Club, but will leave tomorrow for New York to spend a couple of weeks before resuming her extensive trip.

Yesterday afternoon Charles Mason Remey entertained for her at a tea in his home on Massachusetts avenue, the guest list being limited for the most part to persons who have met Lady Blackett during her visit.

Although she has been in Washington infrequently since her marriage in 1920, Lady Blackett has a number of friends here who remember her when she was Miss Beatrice Bonner, daughter of the late Edward Henry Bonner, of New York. She left her home in London last month shortly after the war scare subsided and is on the first leg of a trip that will last until next spring and will take her around the world.

SOCIETY-GO-ROUND: The Minister of Finland, Eero Jarnefelt, who has been in New York for a brief stay, will return tomorrow . . . While Mme. Jarnefelt says she regrets having to leave Washington, she is glad if her husband must be transferred that he is going to Italy. "Because everybody gets to Rome sooner or later," she said . . . Miss Elizabeth Howry returned to Washington yesterday after a 10-days' visit in Hot Springs, Va., where she was the guest of Col. and Mrs. Arthur K. Evans at their estate, Malvern Hall . . . Miss Mary Howry, who has been lingering at her home in the Berkshires, where she spent the summer, is expected to be back tomorrow . . . Mrs. Edwin T. Meredith has returned after a stay of three weeks in New York and has as her guests her daughter, Mrs. Fred Bohen, of Des Moines, Iowa, and Mrs. Louis Neff . . . The visitors were feted at a small cocktail party given by Mrs. Meredith on Wednesday afternoon.

Fairmont Girl Bride Tonight

The wedding to be held at 8 this evening in Meriden, Conn., of Miss Marjorie Lawton Montgomery, daughter of Mrs. Edward L. Montgomery, of that city, and the late Mr. Montgomery, to Oliver Sherman Yale is of interest to Washington. The bride attended the Fairmont School and George Washington University, and among her attendants will be Mrs. Minor Hudson and Miss Viola Drury, of this city.

The ceremony will take place at the First Congregational Church and will be followed by a reception at the Winthrop Hotel. The Rev. Albert Lord will officiate.

The bride is to wear a gown of cream satin with oldlace and a tulle veil and will carry a bouquet of white orchids, whit ebouvardia and lilies of the valley.

Miss Drury will be maid of honor, and the bridesmaids, in addition to Mrs. Hudson, will be Miss Janet Miller, of West Hartford; Miss Dorothy Scott, of Bayside, Long Island, and Mrs. Hubbard Lee, of New London.

John Lane Yale will be best man for his brother, and the ushers are Philip Rogers, John D. Shaw, Edward Tredennick, F. Warren Rees and Philip Saleski, of Meriden, and W. Joshua Barney, of New York.

After a wedding trip to Nassau and Havana, the couple will reside at 11 Huntington drive, Rumford, R. I.

Mr. Yale, who is a graduate of Choate School and Yale University, is the son of Mrs. Edna Lane Yale, of Meriden, and Oliver G. Yale, of Portland, Oreg.

Spending the Season Here

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. T. Richard Cowell, who recently returned to her home on Tracy place after a summer spent in traveling, plans to be here until after Christmas. Some time in Jaunary she will be off to Palm Beach to reopen her home, but she expects to be here as much as there through the winter and early spring. Pictured with her above is her white Pekingese, Kissem, who seems a bit puzzled about this prospect of spending the season in Washington

Dr. Irma Belk, Dr. Harold Hobart Are Betrothed

Bernon Belk, of Henry, S. Dak., announces the engagement of his sister, Dr. Irma Hazlett Belk, to Dr. Harold McComb Hobart, son of Clayton J. Hobart, of Gagetown, Mich. Dr. Belk is on the staff of St. Elizabeths Hospital and Dr. Hobart is chief resident physician at Children's Hospital of Washington.

Both were graduated from the George Washington University School of Medicine in the class of 1936 and interned at Gallinger Municipal Hospital.

The wedding will take place December 27 at Epiphany Church and will be witnessed by the immediate families.

Society Attends Venison Dinner

Washington society, always on the lookout for something "new," found it at the venison hunt dinner at the Raleigh last night.

Among those at the Pall Mall room, where the watiers wore pink coats and the vension was served on a silver wagon, were the Counselor of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Lecuona, the Counselor of the Rumanian Legation and Mme. Mircea Victor Babes, Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Stoddard, Mr. and Mrs. Fernando Cuniberti, Andre Fiot, Capt. and Mrs. Ray Middleton and Mrs. Duncan Hannegan.

Others were the Counselor of the Chilean Embassy and Senora de Huneeus, Miss Mary Lou Marsh, Wyant Johnstone, Miss Austine McDonnell, Griff Warfield, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Baker, Mrs. Wallach Merriam, Robert Keeling, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Ellett, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bastian, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Short and Mr. and Mrs. Emerson Snyder.

The Russian singer, Mme. Tarasova, sang folk songs from foreign lands and Mario di Polo's orchestra furnished the music.

Miss Clara Brown Is Married Here To Edmund Hart

Yesterday morning at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Miss Clara Frances Brown and Edmund B. Hart were married, with the Rev. Joseph Hart, brother of the bridegroom officiating. The Rev. Mr. Hart came here from Notre Dame, Ind., to perform the ceremony.

The bride kas gowned in white satin, fashioned with a train and set off with a veil, and she carried a white prayerbook with white orchids. Miss Cecilia Flynn, maid of honor and only atendant, was in a frock of blue boy lace, with a small matching hat of velvet and feathers.

Following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast and reception at Hotel Twenty Four Hundred. Assisting at the reception was Mrs. Katherine Maynard, sister of the bride.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Helen Daly and Miss Marguerite Daly, of Boston; Mrs. Irene Whelan, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kennedy and Miss Margaret Kennedy, of Clifton, N. J.; Miss Rosalie Hart, of Hyde Park, Mass., and Mrs. Curtis Brown, of Hartford, Conn.

32,551 Eligible To Cast Vote In Montgomery

Increase of 3,000 Democrats in Lead Dinner Set Nov. 19

Montgomery County Bureau of the Post, 9313 Clark Ave., Silver Spring, Md. Telephone Sherwood 4200.

Registration records at Rockville, Md., yesterday revealed 32,551 persons in Montgomery County will be eligible to vote in Tuesday's general election. This is an increase of mor ethan 3,000 over the registered vote of two years ago.

A count, completed by the clerical force of the supervisors of elections, shows that those affiliated as Democrats number 22,772; as Republicans, 9,025; as Prohibitionists, 21, and as Socialists, 9, and that 724 declined to affiliate with any party.

The Democrats, therefore, have a book majority of more than 13,000. Republican leaders, however, contend that several thousand of those recorded as Democrats are actually Republicans and that the figures announced are misleading as to the relative strength of the two major parties.

Questionnaires Returned

The Federated Parent-Teacher Associations of Montgomery County yesterday mailed to the presidents of all member associations copies of the replies of political candidates to the question of whether they approved of a school construction program as "comprehensive and adequate as that approved by the board of education in 1937."

Replies were received from the following:

State senator—Wilater W. Dawson (Republican) and Robert H. Peter (Democrat).

House of Delegates—(Republicans- J. Douglas Bradshaw, R. Duncan Clark, Merton A. English, Elmer G. Goebel and John D. Sadler. (Democrats) James W. Gill, Joseps Butcher, Charles C. Jones, Ruth E. Shoemaker and Stanton C. Peelle, jr.

Board of county commissions—(Republicans) William H. Fulks, Walter P. Johnson, Chester Wells, Paul M. Coughlan. (Democrats) Robert W. Farmer, Clay Plummer, John E. Oxley, Thomas E. Hampton and Odorian W. Roby.

Dawson, Bradshaw, Clark, English, Goebel and Sadler issued a joint reply committing themselves to seek legislation 'st least as comprehensive as that approved by the board of education in 1937."

Fulks declared he was "in favor of adequate school facilities." Johnson said he was "interested in any program that takes care of our school children." Coughlan's statement also favored "adequate schools."

No reply was received from Frank Karn, incumbent president of the board of commissions and candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket.

The Democratic candidates issued a joint reply pledging themselves to carry out a program as "comprehensive" as that advocated by the board of education.

Paul M. Coughlan, candidate for reelection to the Montgomery County board of county commissioners on the Republican ticket, has issued a challenge to "any candidate on the Democratic ticket" to meet him in a debate on "the real issues" of the current campaign.

"The only issue," Coughlan asserted is "whether the people want to continue the good government they have received under the Republicans during the last four years or desire to return to the type of government they had before 1935."

Scout Field Day

Boy Scouts of Montgomery County will hold a field day at Rockville Fair Grounds at 2 p. m. today. Capt. Chester ellsW. J. Wallace Talley and Washington I. Cleveland will inspect the units with members of the Montgomery County Division and officers of the county National Guard.

Following inspection scouts from each troop will take part in various contests including firemaking, cooking, knot tying, first aid and signaling. At 7 p. m. in the Rockville High School auditorium an exhibition of handiwork will open for which prizes will be offered.

The committee arranging the event includes William Prentice, of Silver Spring; Rev. J. Lloyd Black, of Rockville; Charles Haydon and P. N. Davison, of Chevy Chase, and Paul T. Hannen, of Cabin John Park.

Schedule Announced

A schedule of meetings for Montgomery County 4-H Clubs this month was announced yesterday as follows:

Tonight, Rockville; November 11, Clarksburg; November 12, Sunshine; November 14, Colesville; November 18, Potomac and Rockville; November 19, Cedar Grove; November 22, Darnestown; November 26, Shady Grove; November 28, Dickerson.

Dinner Saturday, Nov. 19

The Ladies Aid Society of Salem Methodist Church, Cedar Grove, will give a turkey supper November 19 in the church hall.

Benson Named Warden

Gov. Nice has appointed C. LeRoy Benson, of Montgomery County, as forest warden for the State of Maryland.

Dinner on Saturday

The annual turkey dinner of the Montrose Community Club will be served at the Montrose School Saturday. It will be for the benefit of the Montrose School.

Supervisor Named

Mrs. Marion K. Sayer, of Kensington, has been appointed by the supervisors of elections for Montgomery County to serve as Republican clerk of election for the Third Precinct of Wheaton District. The board has also named Sheridan Ferree Republican clerk of election for the First Precinct of Bethesda District. Mrs. Sayer succeeds D. Proctor Ames, resigned, and Mr. Ferree takes the place of William C. DeLacy, resigned.

The Warning

The wise a warning promptly heed,
And these no further warnings needs.
—OLD MOTHER NATURE.

"I don't know what it is, but something tells me that we better stay at home," said Reddy

Over in the Old Briar Patch Peter Rabbit was uneasy and little Mrs. Peter was no less so. Just what made them uneasy they didn't know. They had a feeling that something was going to happen, yet they could offer no reason for that feeling. It had something to do with the weather. Peter felt sure of this. Yet there seemed no reason for thinking so. There had been two or three rainy days and this day was just like the others. Still that feeling of uneasiness grew. He hopped about through the Briar Patch and Mrs. Peter hopped with him. They just couldn't sit still long at a time.

There was that same feeling over in the Old Pasture. Reddy Fox and Mrs. Reddy were uneasy. Neither went hunting.

"I don't know what it is, but something tells me that we better stay at home," said Reddy.

"I was just about to say the same thing," replied Mrs. Reddy.

Over in the Green Forest that feeling was felt by those living there. Lightfoot the Deer, standing at the edge of the pond of Paddy the Beaver, lifted his slender muzzle to sniff the air. Mrs. Lightfoot did the same thing. And because their parents did this, the twins did, and also without knowing why they were frightened. Presently Lightfoot led the way to a protected place where in a thicket of young hemlocks he often had found shelter. Just outside this he and Mrs. Lightfoot stood for a long time every now and then lifting their heads to test the air.

"There is going to be a storm," said Lightfoot at last and led the way into the thicket.

Even great big Buster Bear shared in that general uneasiness. Twice he started off to look for beechnuts, for he dearly loves these sweet little nuts, but each time he turned back. Finally he crept in under a great windfall and with a grunt threw himself down on his bed of leaves. Something inside him, he couldn't account for at all, told him that that was the best place for him to be for a while.

It was the same way among the feathered folk. Those in the Old Orchard left. Not one remained. It was the same way with those around Farmer Brown's dooryard. Not a bird was to be seen. Farmer Brown's boy noticed it. He spoke of it to his cousins, Sue and Sammy.

"Where have they gone to?" asked Sue.

"I don't know," replied Farmer Brown's boy, "but I suspect that they have gone to seek shelter."

"From bad weather," replied his cousin. "I've noticed many times that when the birds suddenly disappear a storm is almost sure to follow."

"Pooh!" said Sammy. "How can they know if there is to be a storm? The sun was out for a few minutes a little while ago. The weather is no different than it has been for the last few days."

"Just the same the birds know that something is coming. Didn't you ever have a feeling that something was about to happen and then something did happen? I have. Well, I guess it must be something like that with the birds and animals before a bad storm. There must be something in the air that they feel but that we can't. I am pretty sure that somehow Old Mother Nature gives them warning and they heed it in time. At least most of them do. Just where they go I don't know, but I'm pretty sure that they get into all sorts of sheltered places and in thick shrubbery and thickets of evergreen and down low in evergreen trees that have branches close together near the ground. Anyway they find shelter somewhere and they do it before a storm breaks. We are going to have a storm or I don't know the signs."

Farmer Brown's boy was right in the matter of a warning from Old Mother Nature. She does not forget her children. And usually they heed her warnings.

Prince Georges Delay in 'Slot' Drive Assailed

Citizens Demand Action Officials 'Condemned' Election Is a Factor

The Prince Georges County Federation of Citizens Associations last night demanded that county authorities comply immediately with the grand jury recommendation banning slot machines.

In a tersely worded resolution adopted unanimously at a meeting in the Bladensburg fire department hall, the association "severely condemned" officials responsible for delaying a police drive on the machines, which was to have started at midnight Monday.

The resolution was introduced by Louis A. Day, president of the Edmonston Road Citizens Association, who has long been opposed to the machines, chiefly on the grounds that they "exert a bad influence on school children, causing them to waste their lunch money and get into gambling habits."

Meanwhile the slot machine situation remained "status quo." Although three days have elapsed since the deadline for their removal, police have made no move to confiscate any of the machines.

Political observers say nothing will be done until after Tuesday's general election because of the fear of antagonizing hundreds of merchants whose monthly earnings from the machines run into the thousands of dollars.

Theonly machines that have been removed so far are 42 operated by Thomas Garrison, of Hyattsville, an agents for a Virginia firm. Garrison's threat to swear out warrants against other operators, after removal of his own machines did not materialize. He said yesterday police officials had assured him they would go after the remaining machines next week when the officers were not busy testifying in Circuit Court.

Mrs. Willebrandt Planning Dinners For Justices

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, who is expected to return by plane from Los Angeles today, is planning a series of dinners to be given in honor of some of the Justices of the Supreme Court and for guests from out-of-town.

The next party on her entertaining schedule, however, is the tea she will give next Sunday afternoon at the Sulgrave Club for Mr. and Mrs. Floyd B. Odlum, who will arrive the latter part of this week for a brief stay in Washington. Mrs. Odlum is better known as Jacqueline Cochran, noted flyer and winner of the Bendix trophy.

A featured part of the entertainment on Sunday will be a program of piano numbers played by Rose d'Amore, concert artist, who will give a brief interpretation of some of the works of Chopin, Beethoven and Delibes. With the exception of Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata," the selections will be light in character, consisting of a Prelude, a Waltz by Chopin and the famous "Walzer" by Delibes.

Plans Trip to Hawaii

Miss Catherine Caldwell will leave tomorrow for San Francisco, Calif., and will sail from there on November 10 on the S. S. Lurline for Honolulu. Miss Gladys Speakman will accompany her, and they will return in December.

Pittsburgh Plate Buys Into Am. Cyanamid

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Pittsburgh Plate Glass Co. has exercised an option to purchase at $20 a share 98,000 Class B shares of the American Cyanamid Co., a leading chemical producer, it was learned today.

The option, which expired at the end of October, was made in 1933 in a joint development undertaking in the Southern Alkali Corporation, which operates a chemical plant at Corpus Christi, Tex.

There were 2,454,425 Class B shares outstanding before the option was exercised. The stock closed on the New York Curb Exchange today at $25.50 a share.

Circulation Rises To a Near-Record

The Federal Reserve Board announced last night that money in circulation is now the largest in American history except for the two weeks after the March 4, 1933, bank holiday.

The board estimated $6,706,000,000 of coin and currency was circulating in banks and in the hands of the public. The figure excludes currency held by the Treasury and the 12 Federal Reserve Banks.

 WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1938 21

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Tony was sort of dumb about horse racing. He had never been to the track. The home stretch, in his language, ment stretching out his $35 a week to cover the rent, to shoe and clothe the two kids, to keep up his two-dollar-a-week Christmas Savings against a rainy day and to take the wife down town to a movie now and then.

POVICH.

He was fairly typical of the small-salaried family man. The last time he bought more than five gallons of gas for the old jalopy at one order was the day he hit the numbers for 24 bucks. That day he said to the service station attendant, "Fill'er up. And I guess you'd better look at the oil, too."

That was his only vice . . . playing the numbers. As regularly as his morning shave, he'd stop at the entrance to the Agriculture Department, flip a nickel to a man standing there and say: "Nine-twenty-four. Never mind the receipt. I'll trust you." This had been going on for years. At least two or three times a year Tony would hit. He didn't miss the nickel a day and those 24-buck hals came in handy.

He never played any other number. It had hit the first time he had ever played it and that was good enough for him. He had picked it on a hunch. Nine-Twenty-four meant, to Tony, September, 1924. That was the month and the year he had met Marge at a beach during his annual leave and then it was that they were married. With Tony, his nickel a day was a sort of sentimental bet.

He was a great fellow for hunches, anyway. He had a hunch his first child would be a boy despite the positive assertions of his mother-in-law who had borne nine children and knew all the signs. It was to be a girl, she assured him. But boy it was and triumphant Tony reminded folks of his hunch. When his daughter was born, another of Tony's hunches was correct.

There was the time, too, when Omaha won the Kentucky Derby. The morning of the derby, Tony had been handling stock reports from Omaha and to him it was a hunch. When he drew Roman Soldier in the 50-cent office pool he was disappointed. But he bargained with a fellow at the next desk who had drawn Omaha, and they swapped horses. It cost Tony an additional 50 cents to make the deal, but he drew down the $7.50 pot when Omaha, sure enough, galloped home.

Tony bet a buck on Gene Tunney to beat Jack Dempsey at Philadelphia because he had a brother named Gene. It was a hunch. He bet that Bobby Jones would win the National Amateur in 1930 and add it to his British and American Open titles because, the evening before, Tony's wife had made a grand slam to win the Silver Spring Ladies Club bridge tournament.

Oh, he was a great fellow for hunches, Tony was.

It wasn't Tony's fault a few weeks ago when, on pay day, he went broke, faced the prospect of going home to the wife empty-handed. It wasn't his fault, because some sneak thief who picked out the fifteenth of the month to operate, stole into Tony's locker at the office and lifted his wallet.

Most of the $70 pay check Tony had cashed that noon disappeared with the marauder. In his pocket, Tony had left only ten bucks. There wasn't much to do except go home and explain to the wife what had happened. But Tony didn't like to do that. This was a day they had been looking forward to. It was their wedding anniversary and Tony was taking the missus to the Shoreham. They hadn't been to a fancy place since their courtin' days.

If he could only get fifty or sixty bucks in a hurry, everything would be all right. The wife need not know what had happened at the office. She probably wouldn't understand, anyway. You know how women are. First off, she'd probably blame him for being careless with his wallet. She'd realize his innocence eventually, of course, but he wanted peace and happiness this day. And he wanted to get 50 or 60 bucks in a hurry.

So Tony showed a sudden interest when Joe Jamieson, just before closing time at the office, whispered across the desk, "Hey, Tony, I've got a good thing in the seventh at Laurel. A nag called Monument. Ought to be 10 to 1. My wife knows the trainer's wife."

Monument in the seventh at Laurel might not have intrigued Tony on another day. He had never gone for the horses. He couldn't affor' even a two-buck bet. But today he was interested. He had heard, of course, that red-hot tips often won at good prices. He fingered the $10 bill in his pocket reflectively. Ten dollars at 10 to 1. That would be a hundred bucks. And he could collect after the race, too.

"You're not kidding me about this horse Monument?" Tony asked tremulously.

"No, I'm not kidding. I'm telling you my wife knows the trainer's wife. I'm going out now and get a bet on him. Want me to take anything for you?"

Desperately Tony reached for his $10 bill. Might as well be broke as go home with ten bucks. "On the nose," he said.

Twenty minutes later Tony called up the newspaper, his heart thumping. "What did Monument do in the seventh at Laurel, please?" he asked.

Came the answer:

"Monument ran out of the money."

Tony hung up dejectedly and turned homeward, hopeful now that the wife would understand about that office thief. He knew that she would eventually, of course.

But what Tony didn't know was that a 10-to-1 shot had, indeed, won that seventh race at Laurel.

And that the name of that 10-to-1 winner was:

Toni.

Details of Title Fight Ironed Out

Joe, J. H. Meet Louis Gets 40% Lewis Gets 17½ Sign Nov. 25

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 3.—Joe Louis, the heavyweight champion, and John Henry Lewis, who is recognized as the light-heavyweight ruler everywhere except in this State, met at Promoter Mike Jacobs' office here today and ironed out the details of their 15-round fight at the Garden on January 27.

The pair did everything except sign the official contract. They will attend to that on November 25 at the offices of the State Athletic Commission.

The commissioners want to speak to John Henry, who recently threatened to sue them for a bundle of money because they had vacated his 175-pound title. John Henry undoubtedly will assure the commissioners that he was only fooling.

Joe Louis, the champ, will receive 40 percent of the gate, which should run around $100,000, and John Henry will get 17½ percent. John Henry had to agree to fight exclusively for Mike Jacobs for five years in the unlikely event he out-gallops Joe.

Herman Taylor, the Philadelphia promoter, showed up at the meeting demanding $3,300 from John Henry, claiming that he had ad-

Tech Will Battle Central for Lead

Teams Are About on Par for Game Here
Capacity Crowd Expected at Central Kick-Off at 3:30; Squads Are Ready

A promise of fair weather and the toughest grid contest in the current interhigh series is expected to jam Central Stadium's spacious stands to capacity today as Central and Tech, both unbeaten, battle for sole ownership of the series lead. The game starts at 3:30 o'clock.

The possibility of a scoreless tie and the continuance of a neck-and-neck race crownward has been definitely dropped from consideration. Most observers believe that if a tie is the final result it will be with both teams in possession of at least two touchdowns. Considering the offensive power of each club, the latter seems likely.

If either team rates the underdog position it will be Central, though by an extremely slim margin. Coach Hardy Pearce sent his speedy squad through a final punt, pass and skull drill yesterday, pausing long enough to comment, "Tech should beat us, but not by much. If I can get the boys down to earth and thinking, they might win. Right now they're fairly aching to go, shreds."

They talk about tearing Tech to

Coach Satisfied

Despite the gloomy forecast, Coach Pearce seemed satisfied with his team's prospects. His boys, like those of Coach Rusty Thompson, are in perhaps the best condition of the year. Injuries will keep none of them from service. Dick Rozzell, pint-sized halfback who was out of the Mount Pleasanters' last game because of shoulder injuries, is mended and ready to go. The 130-pound mite is a clever ball carrier.

Besides Rozzell, Central pins its victory hopes on the lads many consider the best players in the series, Jimmy Clark and Benny Steiner. Clark, holding down left end on the offensive and right end on the defensive, will be stopping more plays than Coach Thompson of Tech may care to think about. Steiner is the quarterback who almost single-handedly stymied Roosevelt Monday and capped the performance with a 44-yard race to a touchdown. He does most of the passing and kicking, too, leaving the line plunging to a trio of rugged backs; Jim Porter, Harry Martin and Tony Di Blasi. Martin has been something of a star in his own right since overcoming a tendency to run with his head in the clouds.

Eight Lettermen

Experience, according to Coach Pearce, also may make a difference in the score. Against Tech's eight lettermen of last year, Coach Pearce can start but two. One of his best scoring threats, however, he considers lanky Dick Farr, an end, seeing his first year of grid duty. Farr, well over 6 feet tall, has a nice habit of clinging like glue to passes. He has scored twice this season after taking aerials, earlier this week having gone 30 yards for a touchdown against Roosevelt.

The attacks of both Central and Tech will probably be about equal. What each coach is particularly worried about is the vulnerability of his line. On that hinges the eventual winner.

Wanted: Players To Fill Uniforms At American U.

Gus Welch, the old Carlisle Indian back, shook his head yesterday over his football squad at American University.

"Some coaches," he sighed, "have trouble getting uniforms for the team. I don't. I have trouble getting a team for my uniforms.

"Last week," he recalled, "when we went down into Virginia I asked the school chancellor for a bus that would seat 30."

"Thirty?" asked the chancellor; "why, you've got only 13 players on your squad."

"I know it," Gus replied, "and this is the first time in my coaching history that I've had to dress cheer leaders up in football clothes to make the bench look better."

Secrets Between Enemies (?)

Associated Press WIREPHOTO.

According to all the rules of Fistiana, these two fellows should be enemies since they fight for the world's heavyweight championship in Madison Square Garden in January. But here, Joe Louis, left, whispers into the ear of John Henry Lewis. What would the Marquis of Queensberry say?

Mat Feature To Savoldi; Terror Wins

Nagurski Here Next
Little Wolf Tossed
Berger Is Winner
Cardiff Giant Victor

Joe Savoldi, the former Notre Dame grid great, won the feature wrestling match by disqualification last night at Turner's Arena, as Chief Little Bear was declared the loser by Referee Benny Bortnick after 30 minutes. The Chief used the usual disqualification tactics of roughing it up, and the match was booed by the crowd.

Savoldi will be a hold-over for next week's feature when he will meet another grid star of approximate fame, Minnesota's Bronco Nagurski.

The Golden Terror tossed Tom Mahoney in 15½ minutes in one of the best bouts of the evening, Mahoney nearly unmasking the Terror with a wild grab.

Casey Berger bested Walter Percy in 18 minutes with a back drop, while Hank Metfrey and Sam Menecher drew in 30 minutes.

The Bearded Cardiff Giant required only 5½ minutes to win from Joe Pazandock with a body press.

Midland Red Sox Honored for Victory

Midland, Md., Nov. 3.—Manager Tommy McGuire and his Midland Red Sox, 1938 champions of the Bi-State Baseball League, were honored tonight with a "Victory Supper" and dance in Firemen's Hall.

Thomas E. Stakem, president of the local club, was toastmaster. League officials and representatives of other Bi-State teams were called on for remarks and Manager McGuire presented the loop pennant to Red Sox officials on behalf om members of the club.

The Bi-State star award jackets won by three Red Sox players, "Babe" Matlock, Willis Fries and Harry Sallada, also were presented.

The Jimmy Corcorans (he's the former Western High athlete; she's the former Virginia Hall of this city) are celebrating an addition to their family. Corcoran, who last season attended Notre Dame and played regular second baseman on the Irish nine, is studying medicine at Georgetown . . . Jim Meade, Maryland's great halfback, has had the cast removed from the ankle he broke in the Penn State game, but it still is doubtful that he will be able to play again this season . . . By the way the 47-14 lacing V. M. I. handed Maryland last week was the worst beating the Terps ever took from a Southern Conference rival. Syracuse gave 'em the all-time worst last October 8, winning 53-0. . . .

Dick Tuckey, the rookie back the Redskins waived to the Cleveland Rams, is the only active drop-kicker in the National League since "Dutch" Clark, player coach of the Lions, abandoned drop-kicking in favor of placements . . . Those who are wondering if the mighty Pitt Panther might be upset by Carnegie Tech, or Nebraska or Penn State or Duke, bear in mind that Pitt hasn't lost a November game since Ohio State turned the trick in 1930.

Shad Bryant, ace back of Clemson which meets George Washington in Greenville, S. C., this afternoon, recently gave a "believe-it-or-not" performance of ball-carrying when he gained 103 of the total of 109 yards his team made against Wake Forest . . . Taking a stand quite different from most of his colleagues, Jimmy Conzelman, football coach at Washington University, believes a good backfield much more valuable to a team than a good line . . . Bucknell has a guard named Johnny Plewak who weighs only 145 pounds and will play him against Georgetown tonight.

Jim Hill, Hoya football player, has been elected president of the senior class of the Georgetown Foreign Service School . . . Ben Chapman, according to news from Boston, will not be with the Red Sox next season and Pinky Higgins may be traded for Harlond Clift, of the Browns.

Notre Dame Arrives in D. C. Today

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Annapolis, Nov. 3.—Navy's hopes of upsetting Notre Dame Saturday at Baltimore in their annual intersectional fray, all but vanished tonight when Emmett (Punkin) Wood, leading ground-gainer and sparkplug of the squad, was ordered to sick bay with a sacro-iliac sprain.

The chunky ball carrier's back was injured last week in the Penn game, which resulted in a scoreless tie, and was aggravated during drills for Saturday's colorful battle. Wood, it was reported, will be detained in the infirmary until Saturday morning, but will make the trip with the squad and also will be in uniform. Hank Hardwick, head coach, was afraid, however, that the boy would not get into action.

Hardwick also confirmed two other changes in his starting line-up as the Middies scrimmaged the Plebes for the last time in preparation for the game. Dan Baughman will replace Lou Burke at end, Burke joining Corbett on the reserve list; and Pat Gray, blocking back, will start instead of Ed Gillette. The latter is handicapped by an ailing foot, but is certain to get into the game.

Squad in Shape

The remainder of the squad is physically fit for combat, and tuned to a high mental pitch for their old Midwestern bugaboo. Navy realizes it doesn't match Notre Dame's squad, numerically, but the players are determined to offset this disadvantage with the brand of action the Irish have not seen all season, even including last week's skirmish with Army. And if spirt decides the issue, Navy has more than a fighting chance, literally speaking.

Navy spent the afternoon again working against the Plebes who used the Irish's wide sweeping end runs and long, downfield passes, and looked better than at any time this week. Not only were the ends rushing the passers with a high degree of success, but the secondary covered potential receivers in a manner that drew a word of commendation even from Hardwick, who is not given to unnecessary words on the practice field.

Irish in Town

Notre Dame is scheduled to arrive in Washington tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock, and after a brief sightseeing tour will workout at Griffith Stadium, instead of Georgetown Prep. The team will make Wardman Park Hotel its headquarters, leaving for Baltimore Saturday morning at 11:30 o'clock.

From South Bend Coach Elmer Layden announced his men ready for the game, and said that he probably would start the same line-up that opened aganist Army last week. That would be Brown and J. Kelly, ends; Beinor and Keil, tackles; McGoldrick and Bossu, guards; Longhi, center; Sitko, quarterback; Stevenson and Zontini, halves, and Thesing, fullback. Sagau, one of a half dozen triple-threaters on the squad, will alternate with Stevenson at one halfback position.

The Irish will bring 36 men East with them.

Meanwhile, at Baltimore Navy officials announced that 55,000 tickets already have been sold for the game, but that accommodations will be available for upwards of 65,000. Extra seats have been installed at the open end of the huge horse shoe, and a throng of more than 70,000 is expected to view the proceedings.

Bergner Faces Pal In Irish Line On Saturday

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 3.—Al Bergner, the Navy's strong-man tackle, will meet an opponent of high school days in Ed Beinor, Notre Dame tackle, rated as all-American in his position, when their teams meet in Baltimore Saturday. Bergner, playing on the team of Kankakee, Ill., High School, played against Beinor, who came from Harvey, in the same State.

Beinor met another old opponent in the Army-Notre Dame game, in the person of Harry Stella, who was a teammate at the high school of Al Bergner for three years, and the latter two will meet when the Army and Navy teams clash on November 26 at Philadelphia.

The three tackles are of similar weight and proportions. Beinor has already obtained the climax football rating, while both Bergner and Stella are being heralded as in line for the same status.

Goalie Signed

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 3 (AP).—Bill Beveridge, former goalkeeper for the Detroit Red Wings and Montreal Maroons in the National Hockey League, has been signed up by the Cleveland Barons of the International American Hockey League. He will join the Barons immediately for their opening game against the Pittsburgh Hornets Saturday.

Hoyas Face Heavier Foe At Stadium

Record at Stake
15,000 Expected
Koshlap Is Out
Kick-Off at 8:15

By Jack Munhall.

Georgetown's mighty football machine, well on the way to the first undefeated season in the history of the ancient Hilltop school, tonight will be a 5-to-3 favorite to stampede the Thundering Herd from Bucknell at Griffith Stadium in the eleventh renewal of their rivalry. Game time is 8:15.

Before an expected crowd of 15,000, largest to see Georgetown play any team but Maryland in many years, Jack Hagerty's surprisingly strong Hoyas will attempt to tack the Bisons on their victory string which includes Hampden-Sydney, Randolph-Macon, Roanoke, Manhattan and Temple.

Against the unusually hefty Bucknell line, first this season to outweigh their forward wall, the Hoyas will pit their bewildering spread formations and the brilliant triple-threat talents of Joe Mellendeck, one of the finest all-around backs in the East. More than ever before will the Hoyas depend on this fleet, willowy halfback, for his running mate and great forward passer, Jules Koshlap, will be on the sidelines with a leg injury.

Koshlap Is Out

Koshlap, hurt in the Temple game, is one of four players who will be missing from the starting lineup which upset the Owls, 13-0, last Friday night. Tom Robertson, senior tackle, will yield his position to Earl Fullilove, sophomore; Myron Darmohray will be replaced at fullback by Jim Castiglia, whose broken thumb has sufficiently healed; "Reds" Daly, only local boy on the squad, will be supplanted at right end by Joe Daniels, while Lou Ghecas will fill in for Koshlap.

Koshlap, able to play, will not get into the game unless he is absolutely needed.

And he may be needed, for despite its 26-0 loss to Temple, Bucknell looms as a serious menace to Georgetown's clean slate. The Bisons were strong enough to knock off Penn State, recent 33-6 conqueror of Syracuse, and were unscored on in victories over Furman, Gettysburg and Albright. Also past records show the Bisons are especially troublesome to Georgetown. In the 10 games played between the schools, Bucknell holds a 5-4 edge. They tied in 1932, 6-6.

Remember 1925?

And in 1925 it was Bucknell which dealt one of Georgetown's greatest teams a 3-2 defeat, only loss suffered that season.

Bucknell will be strengthened for this game by the return of Louis Tomasetti, their fine punting and passing halfback, who did not play against Albright last week. Tomasetti was highly effective against Georgetown here in 1936 when the Hoyas swamped Bucknell, 19-0.

Little Hoyas Meet G. Wash.

Alexandria, Nov. 3. — George Washington High School inaugurates athletic relations with the Georgetown Preparatory School tomorrow afternoon, when its varsity football team invades Garrett Park for a contest with the undefeated and unscored-on Little Hoyas. The kickoff is scheduled for 3:30.

The G. U. prep tilt affords the Presidents a slight breathing spell from Virginia Class A Conference competition, marking the first time in five weeks the locals will be up against a nonconference foe. Judging by the impressive record of the Little Hoyas, however, the Marylanders wil offer plenty in the way of competition.

As the result of an injury epidemic which has deprived him of the services of no less than five first-string performers, Coach Albert Doran will be forced to call on several junior varsity gridders to fill in the gaps. He expects to start the following line-up: Eddie Nowland and Amos Clift, ends; Billy Bontz and Grimth Schelhorn, tackles; Eddie Allen and Capt. Harold Payne, guards; Jack Payne, center; Ed Williams, quarterback; Wilbur Robinson and Stanley Heflin, halfbacks, and Eddie Dove, fullback.

Alexandria Boys' Club gridmen have scheduled two games for Saturday. At 9:30 a. m. the 100-pound eleven will meet Boy Scout Troop No. 146 at the Municipal Stadium, while at 2:30 in the afternoon the 135-pounders will travel to Washington to meet the Southeast Boys' Club eleven on the Fairlawn Field.

A 14-game basketball schedule, which will include eight games in the Fairfax County Scholastic League, is planned for the Lee-Jackson High School quintet, it was announced today by Head Coach Al Omohundro, former William and Mary College cage star. The eight-game league schedule has already been mapped out, while the six remaining contests will be carded in the near future.

The Little Generals, who finished as runners-up for the county title last winter, have lost six lettermen from last year's strong team, but with four veterans to form the nucleus and a host of promising newcomers on hand, prospects for the season are fairly bright. The squad began practice this week.

The four monogram winners available to this year's team include Charles Hicks and Sam Pearson, forwards; Johnny Sherliss, guard, and Howard Pettit, center.

The Lee-Jackson girls' team, undefeated champions of the county last year, will be in drills next week under the direction of Mrs. Mildred Craig, who is serving her third year as coach. Eight of the varsity performers who carried the Little Generals' sextet to the county title last season will be available for this year's squad.

The schedule for both teams follows:

December 2—Fairfax High, there; 9, McLean, at home; 16, Herndon, there; 23, January 6—Falls Church, there; 20, McLean, there; 27, Herndon, at home.

February 17—Fairfax, at home; 10, Falls Church, there.

Selections at Pimlico.

Dear Al:

I want to thank the Benningites for their letters, telegrams and phone calls congratulating the column on the Seabiscuit race. Unfortunately they don't run those two-horse races every day. Take the day after the big race, for instance. I had only one-half a winner. Romaunt finishing in a dead heat. But it certainly was nice to be hot at the real big moment. Thanks again. With Seabiscuit, unlikely to see action in the Riggs Handicap tomorrow, it looks like a sizzling race between two gal horses, Jacola and Esposa. Both have victories over Seabiscuit to their credit. Jacola, taking 24 pounds from the champ, whipped him at Laurel, while Esposa took him in camp in the Bowie Handicap right here last year. I haven't decided as yet, but Jasola may be strictly a Laurel horse. She won four stakes there in as many tries—three this year and the Selima Stakes last year. If there is anything in liking race tracks, Esposa favors this one. The two lady horses get into action with equal weights of 121 pounds, and some competent observers say that they would not be surprised to see Seabiscuit's record set in the big race last Tuesday go by the boards. However, I will have to be shown that. Jockey Charlie Stevenson, American saddle champion of 1935, is setting the pace for the Maryland racing writers' watch award to be made to the leading rider at Pimlico and Bowie. And don't forget the turf writers' big frolic at the Lord Baltimore Hotel next Thursday night. All the jockeys in this section as well as the big trainers and owners will be there. Oysters every style, plenty of foam, all sorts of entertainment, and bring the ladies. The scribes are selling the tickets. If you love me, love our frolic.

BILL.

First race—Anhelation turned in a dull effort at Jamaica after being made favorite. Has been freshened up and meets a cheap field here. Duel was a good thing his only start in New York but couldn't make it. May upset the dope. Balapin is dangerous.

Second race—Balkan War was a strong contender in the Maryland Futurity, which classes him above this kind. Outdone coupled with Balkan War as the Vanderbilt entry figures next best. Zenana had good form at Laurel. Licketysplit has chance to be close.

Third race—Prattler swept everything before him at Laurel and is nicely placed in this company. Moves up but is not meeting much. Argonaut showed an honest effort in the Foxcatcher classic at Fair Hill and looms as the chief contender. Edgemont for the show.

Fourth race—Shoulder Arms raced well at Jamaica in Class D handicaps and gets the call here, as New Yorkers apparently have the edge over the local talent. Rissa is the one to beat on the merits of two seconds with high-grade platers. Suntime can better recent ofrm.

Fifth race—Clingerdaal looks best here, after his easy victory over Bottle Top and Hypocrite opening day. He's a top-notcher when in form. Temptuous has been banging away consistently and today may be his day. Robert L. just missed with a good field at Jamaica.

Sixth race—Double Back received a lot of support when third to Benefactor Tuesday and previously beat Big Hurry, winner of the Selima Stakes. Up the Creek gained a close decision over good company at Laurel and looks next best. Morstep is ont outmatched.

Seventh race.—Vassar met interference when third to Bain Marie or she may have been closer, dropping down and gets good figu s. Izar Zuri was an easy winner in New York but meets stiffer competition today. Icy Wind can take it all if in good form.

Eighth race—Endymion was a hot favorite when he won for allowances at Jamaica, meeting better company, but has the edge. Master Lad has shown fair form behind mediocre handicap horses at Laurel. Kermay has a good chance and likes Best bet—Clingendaal.

Pays $23.20; Beats Out Carvola

Wins With Drive Savage Beauty Shows Double Is $72.30 $103.50 Shot Pays

By Walter Haight.

A Staff Correspondent.

Pimlico Race Track, Baltimore, Nov. 3.—Just when it appeared that Savage Beauty, the favorite, and Carvola, a 10-to-1 shot, were going to dominate a photo finish, the Foxcatcher Farm's Roseretter came along and stuck her nose in it. In fact, so emphatically did she rush into the camera range that she was shown out in front on the negative. It all happened in the Lady Baltimore Handicap for fillies and mares over the mile and a sixteenth course and with $2,500 added.

Bringing her scattered backers a $23.20 payoff, Roseretter was given a powerful ride by Jockey Nick Wall, the boy who beat Seabiscuit three times. In fact, as far as this stake was concerned, Wall was just picking up where he left off last year for he won the 1937 race aboard the formidable Esposa.

Pimlico's stake-a-day meeting continued to prove popular and 9,000 fans saw racing conducted under the best of conditions.

A Sweet Victory

Roseretter's victory was a sweet one, for behind her the opposition in the money consisted of older horses.

When the starting bell came, Roguish Girl just stood still and looked around askingly and Jockey Yarberry couldn't do anything about it.

Rust, owned by Louis Strube, set the early pace, but Savage Beauty wore her down to go to the front, and it looked as if she was going on to win as she pleased. However, from the rear came Carvola and Roseretter. Jockey Seabo on Savage Beauty went to the whip in the mid-stretch as Carvola continued to gain. However, there was a wide opening between the pair and through that space shot Roseretter to take the decision.

Two horses, paying almost identical individual prices, teamed to produce a $72.30 payoff in the daily double. E. W. Duffy's Ballinderry, a daughter of Strolling Player, accounted for the first race under good handling by Jockey R. Howell. An $11.70 shot, the filly won by two lengths from Lady Timarole, held at 31-to-1 in the wagering. Alice Dodge, of the Everglades Stable, was third, in the field of a dozen juveniles going six furlongs.

No Ending Beats Dip

At the same distance, No Ending, in the colors of J. B. Partridge, won the second race to bring his backers an $11.20 payoff. The long-shot Dip came from far back to be beaten a length and a half. Joanny was third this time. Jockey Jackie Westrope piloted the winner.

Rigan McKinney, gentleman jockey, and Tommy Hitchcock's Farndale, an odds-on choice, proved the right combination in the third race. Millrace, owned by Mrs. Gwaldys Whitney, was second, beaten a length, with Sea Ted, from the Rokeby Stables, third. Two others began the 2-mile test, Jolie Knight losing rider while setting the pace and Briar Blue trailing far back. Farndale and Millrace staged a head-and-head battle during the final quarter, but the latter lost when he landed poorly at the final fence. Farndale paid $3.80.

The J. B. Patridge forces and Jockey Westrope made it a double for the program when Our Ketcham defeated a select group of five sprinters in the fourth race, the Elkridge Purse. The Spanish Play colt paid $14.90 and left Billionaire, Zostera and Pit Bull in his wake.

Toddle On, owned by Mrs. Elmer Trueman, of Washington, took a thrilling photo finish from the favored Grass Cutter in the fifth race, the two battling it out to the wire at the end of a mile and 70 yards. John One was third. Apprentice W. Yarberry, New York sensation, gave the winner a prefect ride. The Bud Lerner filly paid $12.30.

Celtic Legend, a 4-year-old filly, staged the day's biggest upset when she answered Apprentice B. Hacker's drive to stave off Dark Revue, the favorite, in the seventh race. A few happy ticketholders collected $103.50. Sea Gull was third in the mile and one-sixteenth contest that was strictly a Charles Town affair.

Would Dare, at 11.80, won the day's finale in a photo finish with Mothel. Later On was third in the battle over the marathon route of a mile and a half.

Gonzaga Clash With Johnnies At the Stadium

An unprecedented number of prep school grid enthusiasts anxious to purchase tickets for the Sunday clash of Gonzaga and St. John's yesterday made it necessary to shift the scene of hostilities from Brookland Stadium to the more spacious confines of Griffith Stadium, it was announced last night by officials of the schools.

The move, besides giving more persons a chance to witness the best prep school tanglement of the season, proved the final capitulation to the desires of Coach Orrel Mitchell. It was the Gonzaga mentor who originally advocated the playing of the game on Sunday as well as the use of Mr. Griffith's ball yard. The possibility is that the game, if financially successful this year, will be played every year in the future at Griffith Stadium, making it the most pretentious of the prep clashes.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FARNDALE, $3.80, $2.60, $2.30; MILLRACE, $3.80, $2.60; SEA TED, $2.30.

FARNDALE, steadied along while well placed and fencing excellently, saved ground and wore down MILLRACE to win going away while under pressure on final flat. MILLRACE took command when JOLIE KNIGHT lost rider at eighth fence, withstood early challenge of FARNDALE, but could not resist winner after making poor landing at final fence. SEA TED fenced poorly and was bothered by loose horse. BRIAR BLUE was always outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,300. The Elkridge. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:45½. Off 2:49½. Winner, J. B. Partridge's b. c. Two-dollar mutuels paid—OUR KETCHAM, $14.90, $3.90, $2.90; BILLIONAIRE, $2.60, $2.40; ZOSTERA, $3.60.

OUR KETCHAM, rated when outrun going to first turn, rallied sharply when shaken up entering stretch and wore down BILLIONAIRE to win going away. BILLIONAIRE raced PIT BULL into submission, but could not resist late winner. ZOSTERA moved up menacingly entering stretch, but weakened right at end. UNHERALDED could not get to leaders. PIT BULL stopped. SAVERNAKE was held safe throughout.

FIFTH RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,200. The Severn. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:18. Off 3:17. Winner, Mrs. E. Trueman's b. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TODDLE ON, $12.30, $6.60, $4.00; GRASS CUTTER, $3.50, $2.50; JOHN ONE, $2.90.

TODDLE ON, steadied along closest to pace of GRASS CUTTER along backstretch, responded to punishment to wear down GRASS CUTTER and was up in concluding stride. GRASS CUTTER was rushed to get to front, was given a breather swinging for stretch and fought it out gamely. JOHN ONE closed with good courage. BAR FLY raced wide throughout and weakened in closing test. FAIR COMPANY closed gamely. BROWN MOTH was shut off while attempting to move up between horses approaching stretch. TRANSMITTER had speed for three-quarters. PRETTY PET was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $2,500 added. The Lady Baltimore Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:45. Two-dollar mutuels paid—ROSERETTER, $23.20, $9.30, $3.10; CARVOLA, $6.30, $3.30; SAVAGE BEAUTY, $2.40.

ROSERETTER, within striking distance from start, responded when placed to drive in midstretch and closed with bold rush between horses. CARVOLA, allowed to settle into best stride, came extremely wide entering stretch and closed with rush. SAVAGE BEAUTY, in front most of way, tired under punishment after saving much ground. DOROTHY ROCK ran close to pace to midstretch and faltered. RUST was used up setting early pace under hustling tactics and stopped. ROOM SERVICE was always outrun. ROGUISH GIRL refused at the break.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:15. Off 4:16. Winner, G. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CELTIC LEGEND, $103.80, $18.20, $9.60; DARK REVUE, $4.20, $3.10; SEA GULL, $5.40.

CELTIC LEGEND shook off IDYLLIC to take command, and drew out gradually under good handling. DARK REVUE, within striking distance from start, saved ground while improving position and closed full of run on inside. SEA GULL, under rating ride to stretch, came with good courage in closing test. PRETTYLASS moved up menacingly from a slow beginning, but was held safe. SCHLEY NURSE went evenly to show good effort. IDYLLIC was used up trying to get to front and weakened in closing stages. The others were not prominent.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good from stall gates. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:46. Off 4:46. Two-dollar mutuels paid—WOULD DARE, $11.80, $4.40, $2.90; MOTHEL, $4.30, $2.50; LATER ON, $2.80.

WOULD DARE, under restraint to stretch, came with rush when placed to drive and barely lasted ahead of MOTHEL'S drive. The latter, far back for half, came with bold rush in closing quarter and was going fastest at end. LATER ON, allowed to settle into best stride, moved up menacing entering stretch, but weakened suddenly. ITALIAN HARRY showed a good effort. HOWARD got to front midway of stretch and faltered. SUNTOSUN was used up setting and pressing pace and tired. GREEN MELON stopped after three-quarters. BRAVING DANGER was never a serious factor. JANE McCREA was outrun.

Miscellaneous Musings

In accepting the challenge of John Henry Lewis, light-heavyweight champion, Joseph Louis Barrow continues to follow his policy of taking all comers. Running over the list of ranking heavyweights currently active, I can think of only four whom the Brown Bomber hasn't beaten. They are Tony Galento, Gunnar Barlund, Lou Nova and the above-mentioned John Henry.

VIDMER.

Barlund was offered a match with Jolting Joe, but refused on the excuse that he wasn't quite ready to meet the champion. He wanted to learn a little more about the pugilistic art, but in learning he lost his standing in the cauliflower community being beaten by Nova.

Nova only recently rose to a position of prominence through his victory over the Finn, but like his victim, the rugged Californian doesn't feel that he is quite ready to meet the champion, and would rather defer the opportunity of winning the title until a later date probably a year later.

Tony Galento was headed for a match with the Brown Bomber when he was knocked out by pneumonia. At the time he was preparing to meet John Henry Lewis in Philadelphia, it being understood that the winner was to get a match with Joe Lewis, but Tough Tony was flattened almost on the eve of the bout and the chances to meet the champion, more for gold than for glory, has gone to John Henry by default.

But what I started in to say was Joe Louis has taken all comers as they came—Jack Sharkey, Primo Carnera, Max Baer, Jim Braddock, Bob Pastor, Tommy Farr, Nathan Mann, George Breccia, in fact every heavyweight who has dared hoist his head above the horizon of mediocrity, and he has beaten them each and every one.

Which, if it doesn't make him the greatest heavyweight champion of the world, at least makes him the least disputed ruler of his kingdom. Even Jack Dempsey ducked a meeting with Harry Wills, and Gene Tunney never conquered Jack Sharkey who was one of the outstanding challengers during his reign. But when Louis uttered those traditional words, saying he intended to be a fighting champion, he must have meant it.

Looking Ahead

It is practically certain that the outstanding professional football game in New York this year will be played on the last day of the season when the Washington Redskins, champions of the League, come to the Polo Grounds and meet Jack Mara's Giants.

When the Brooklyn Dodgers held the Redskins to a 6-6 tie last Sunday they practically assured the Giants of at least a chance to win the Eastern title and qualify for the playoff. As matters now stand the Giants can still lose a gme and yet win the crown in their division by beating the Redskins on December 2. But meanwhile they are making every possible provision against losing to anybody, including the Cardinals whom they meet at the Polo Grounds this Sunday.

Manpower

Looking back on the Army-Notre Dame game of last Saturday there seems no question that Notre Dame should have won in spite of the few questionable decisions rendered by the officials. And yet it didn't strike me that Notre Dame had the better team—only the better squad.

As long as the Army was playing the South Benders man to man they did no worse than hold their own, but it was Notre Dame's ability to send three teams on the field, one after the other, while the Cadets had to keep their same players on the field as long as they could last, that finally swung the score over toward the Westerners.

Redskins Are Warned of Over-Confidence Against Pirates

'37 Defeat Is Recalled By Flaherty

Krause Is Ready
Irwin Will Play
Filchock Groomed
Teams Compared

Coach Ray Flaherty of the Redskins yesterday warned his athletes to pay no heed to the pregame statistics which stamp them as favorites to beat the Pirates at Pittsburgh on Sunday.

Attempting to beat down the overconfidence which the Redskins carried into the Brooklyn game last week, Flaherty reminded his team of last year's Redskin-Pittsburgh game.

"Remember, fellows, we went into that game riding high, just as we are this year," said Flaherty, "and we got licked. It looked as if we were out of the pennant race, but we got a break when the Giants were held to a tie on the same day. This year we can't depend on any such good break. We've got to win to stay on top."

Flaherty warned his club that the Pirates are now functioning better than at any time this season, with "Whizzer" White beginning to show his true ability after a slow start in the pro league.

Kick Beat Redskins

"They licked us last year when Arnold Nicolai kicked that 40-yard field goal. On Sunday, I don't want to see 'em close enough for any 40-yard kicks."

The extent to which Flaherty will depend on Frank Filchock, former Pirate, was further emphasized yesterday when Filchock, in addition to carrying the ball in practice, worked for a long period in directing the Redskins' passing.

With Bill Hartman, Sammy Baugh's understudy on the sidelines with an injured leg muscle, Filchock will be the Redskins' passer when Baugh is not on the field. Before being traded by the Pirates, Filchock was the chief Pittsburgh scoring threat with his passes.

Flaherty indicated, also, that Don Irwin would see a deal of action in the Redskins' backfield on Sunday. Against the Dodgers last week, Irwin displayed for the first time this season the power running that last year made him a valuable asset to the Redskin attack, ripping off lengthy gains.

Krause Is Ready

Flaherty sees only a remote possibility that either Andy Farkas or Hartman may play, even briefly, on Sunday. "Unless they show a miraculous recovery, I am not planning on using them. But Max Krause will be available for the first time in three weeks and that will be a big help."

On the season's statistics, the Redskins show a huge advantage over the Pittsburgh club. Washington has the edge in first downs, total yards gained by rushing and passing, interceptions, field goals, and least yards and points yielded. Only in kicking the points after touchdown, recovering fumbles and runbacks have the Pirates been superior.

Comparative figures on the two teams follow:

Marion Brown Wins Manor Medal Playoff

Scores 83 to Mrs. Pray's 84
Loser Three-Putts 18th Green
Mrs. Pray Leads at 9th by Shot

Marion Brown picked up two strokes on the eighteenth hole against Mrs. L. G. Pray yesterday at Manor to win the delayed playoff for the medal in the Women's Club Championship, 83 to 84. Miss Brown won the club title for the second consecutive year, after tying with Mrs. Pray in the qualifying round.

Mrs. Pray had a stroke edge in the woods nine, carding a 40, including a trio of 3s. Miss Brown was out in 41. The match was evened on the tenth with Marion carding a 5 to her opponent's 6, and they halved through the fourteenth.

Mrs. Pray holed a niblick approach on the long fifteenth for a birdie 4 and a stroke advantage, that she retained to the eighteenth tee. On the final hole, Mrs. Pray was on the green in 4 and three-putted for a 7 while Marion clinched the medal honors with a regulation 5. Fourteen of the 18 holes were halved.

It was the second women's club championship of the year that the medalist won the title, the other at Army and Navy, where Mrs. David Clark made a clean sweep. The Manor champion is also holder of the Indian Spring crown.

'Gabby's' Homer Puts Him in 'Hall of Fame'

Chicago, Nov. 2 (AP).—That home run Manager Gabby Hartnett of Chicago's Cubs hit in the dusk of September 28 not only did its bit in toppling the Pittsburgh Pirates out of the National League pennant race, but crashed the tomato-faced catcher into a "hall of fame" nich all of his own.

The Chicago Historical Society received today, in response to its request, the bat Gabby used to hit the homer and the glove, mask, chest protecter and shinguards he used that day.

They will be placed on permanent display, the only sports trophies in the museum which houses Chicago's historical relics.

Columbia Members In Cummings Cup Play

Qualifying rounds for the annual challenge round for the Cummings Cup are scheduled at Columbia Saturday and Sunday, with the low medal score among the two-man teams playing the present holders, Craig McKee and Dana Belser, for the title the following week.

McKee and Belser won the trophy for the second year over Merrill Lord and L. W. Laudick in 1937, and will again be in the roll of defending champions.

Among the dozen or more teams expected to play for a crack at the cup emblematic of the club two-man team championship are the many times former champions, Miller B. Stevinson and Donald Woodward. Other formidable duos include club president, Martin R. West, and Capt. Turner, Harvey Johnson and Tommy Webb, former and present club champions, and Martin McCarthy and B. L. Hartz.

Fred McLeod, Columbia's 1936 Open champion, plans to attend the second annual P. G. A. senior's tournament December 6 and 7 in Augusta, Ga. The event has been changed to 36 holes. Jock Hutchison won the Bourne Trophy last year. Play will be in three classes, 50 to 54, 55 to 59 and 60 and over.

Pro-Am Event On Card Today

The final event of the short but successful tournament schedule of the District Professional Golfers Committee is scheduled today at Manor, with Al Treder playing host to a pro-amateur tournament. The event was postponed last week due to an all-day rain.

The card of the District pro golfers group, drawn up by Wiffy Cox, George Diffenbaugh and Gene Larkin, has been well received, due to the play without handicaps, and the larger entry fees that make worthwhile purses.

vanced Lewis that amount last summer when the Negro was preparing for a scrap with Tony Galento. The fight wasn't held because Galento contracted pneumonia. Taylor got his money and said some unkind things about John Henry running out on a "gentlemen's agreement." The phrase got a laugh from the boxing crowd.

Lewis, who is some three shades darker than Louis, said he was sure he would whip Joe, but declined to name the round. He and Joe have been bosom friends for years. John Henry said he would weigh about 185 on the big night, as against Joe's 200.

Two Bouts Added To Monday Card

Two more matches were added to the ring card being assembled by Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn for Monday night's show at the Arena, with Jimmy Jones, rugged Baltimorean who flattened George Abrams here last winter, featured in one eight-round bout against Sewell Hipps—all-Navy middleweight.

Tommy Rawson, New England lightweight champion, brother of Bobby Rawson who fought on Columbus University's last three teams, and son of the M. I. T. ring coach, is pitted against Pete Galiano in another eight-rounder. Rawson holds a decision over Lew Feldman and gave Maxie Berger, Canadian champion, a close fight in a recent engagement.

Galiano is not new here, nor is Jones. Hipps won his last eight professional starts and is considered a better-than-average middleweight.

Sarazen, Clark Will Visit Here

Gener Sarazen and Clarence Clark will join the number of nationally known professionals that have stopped in this city the past few weeks, when they visit Washington over this week-end.

Sarazen is on a good-will tour for the sporting goods firm he represents, while Clark, lifelong friend of Wiffy Cox, will stop in to see the Congressional mentor and play a round or two.

Sarazen will also visit Cox and is expected to play during his stay here. Walter Hagen, Joe Ezar and Jack Redmond have all been here during the past three weeks.

DeChard on Gloves Card

Mann's New Heavy Bouts Start Nov. 23
Weighs 190 Pounds

Brand new heavyweight described by wise, old Frankie Mann as the best looking big fellow ever introduced locally will make his debut at Turner's Arena when District Golden Gloves boxing competition is launched on the night of November 23.

An all around althlete who has been receiving private instructions from Frankie Mann within the past year, Jimmy DeChard is the six foot, two inch, 190 pound youngster who will be unveiling to Washingtonians by the man who spotted and developed Marty Gallagher some years ago.

A native of the same southwest Washington area that turned out Young Van, Phil Furr and Lou Gevinson, to mention a few and formely an all round athlete at Eastern High School, DeCahrd is described by Mann as a fighting natural second to none introduced locally in years.

Save for occasional turns at club smokers Dechard will be making his first public appearance in Golden Gloves competition. He will bear watching.

Cumberland Reports Excellent Hunting

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 3.—Joseph A. Minke, deputy game warden, reported yesterday that a large number of wild turkeys had been shot the opening day of the hunting season. Over 25 were bagged on Town Hill. Many of the hunters had been successful in shooting one or more rabbits, some the day's limit of six. Some grouse were killed.

Walter Funkhouser, deputy game warden at Luke, found a six-point buck deer killed in the woods in the Savage River area. It was dressed and given to charitable institutions.

War Admiral Leaves for Narragansett and R. I. Handicap Event

Seabiscuit To Remain At Pimlico

To Seem Money Mark Pass Up Riggs 'Cap Admiral to Florida Pair May Not Meet

Pimlico, Md., Nov. 3.—War Admiral and Seabiscuit came to a parting of the ways late today when the Glen Riddle Farm star, defeated in the Pimlico Special, left the track headed for Narragansett Park, where his handlers hope he will start a new winning streak in the Rhode Island Handicap. It is doubtful whether or not the two rivals will ever be closer than several thousand miles in the future.

Oddly, as a result of the race last Tuesday, the plans of the two owners have been switched. Samuel D. Riddle, owner of War Admiral, has announced that he will continue to campaign the son of Man o' War and indicated that he would ship him to Florida for another appearance in the $50,000 added Widener Cup which he won in a gallop, last year.

biscuit, has decided to send the son of Hard Tack into the stud next spring. However, he wants to see Seabiscuit break the all-time, money winning mark of Sun Beau first. The Biscuit is only $36,364 behind that record now and may take another big step on closing day here if Howard sends him postward in the Bowie Handicap at a mile and five-sixteenths. Both Howard and Trainer Tom Smith said today that they would wait and see the weights before making a decision.

Shuns Riggs Handicap

The Seabiscuit forces declined to allow their star to carry 132 pounds in the $10,000 Riggs Handicap on Saturday. Both Seabiscuit and War Admiral were on the track this morning. Neither seemed any the worse for their recent gruelling race.

Charlie Kurtsinger, who rode War Admiral here, also left for New England last night and will have the mount when the Admiral goes to the post at Narragansett. Neither Owner Riddle or Trainer Conway criticized Kurtsinger for the manner in which he rode War Admiral in the big race.

There is a possibility that Owner Riddle may campaign War Admiral continually through 1939. When Seabiscuit retired, and it is said that Howard already has arranged for his to serve several mares next Sspring, War Admiral would have any number of stakes at his mercy.

Biscuit seek $100,000

While Seabiscuit probably will try to overcome the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap jinx, having lost by a nose, there is scant chance of War Admiral being lured out to the West Coast.

The Widener, with half the purse, appears to be a soft spot for the Admiral and Riddle and Campany will make the most of it. Virtually all the top stake horses to be kept in training for the winter months, wil ltake a shot at the Santa Anita purse.

War Admiral will be shipped to the Glen Riddle Farm, over on Eastern Shore, after his Narragansett race. He will remain there for a month before being sent to Florida.

L. C. Boles to Retire As Wooster Coach

Wooster, Ohio, Nov. 3 (AP).—Coach L. C. Boles, dean of Ohio college gridiron mentors, announced today he will retire as coach of the Wooster College Scots at the close of the 1939 football season.

Boles said he would continue as athletic director of Wooster College, and would turn over the job of head football coach to Johnny Swigart, his assistant since 1926, and Wooster's all-time quarterback.

Ring Body to Settle Ticket Row Here

By Lewis F. Atchison.

A number of troubles besetting the District Boxing Commission will be aired and possibly ironed out this morning when that body gathers in solemn and extraordinary session, together with other invited participants.

Item one on the docket concerns the tickets given nonworking judges and referees each week, which has long been a source of contention because of the promoter's refusal to part with ringside seats to nonpaying guests.

Item two concerns a complaint that the matchmaker discriminates against certain preliminary fighters and their managers, and refuses to give work to those in his disfavor.

Item three concerns the recent refereeing, manner of scoring bouts, and the use of lights in designating the winner of various rounds throughout the bouts.

Item four concerns still other complaints that fighters do not know what they are to be paid for a bout until after the show.

Promoter Joe Turner yesterday said he had not been advised of such a meeting, but would visit the commission offices this morning to obtain more information about the nature of the complaints lodged against himself and Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn.

Seating Limited

Concerning tickets given judges, Turner's stand is that he cannot permit anybody to occupy a ringside seat without paying at least the Federal tax, which the judges have been unwilling to do, for fear of incurring the wrath of the Internal Revenue Bureau. Moreover, the limited seating capacity of the arena cuts down the number of free tickets available at the ringsdie.

The commission points out, however, that the judges give their services to the fistic firm gratis, and, in turn, are subjected to much uncalled for abuse from the fans. It also points out that this is one of the few commissions in the country that does not require the promoter to pay either part or all of the judges' and referee's fees. It contends that the judges are entitled to the courtesy of at least a ringside seat in exchange for their services.

Bob Mulhall, veteran judge, and Dr. O. U. Singer, threatened to resign last week in a row over tickets, and Mulhall told this reporter he would tender his resignation the following day (Tuesday) and that it would be irrevocable. He offered his resignation once before, but later reconsidered the matter and remained on the staff.

Goldie on Defense

As for Item two, Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn will tell the commission that certain managers are attempting to pick opponents for their fighters, and also attempting to hold him up for unwarranted purses. Ahearn will cite one case of recent date when he pulled an unknown fighter off the card after assigning him to a four-round bout, because the manager refused to let him see the fighter train.

Item three is a matter that concerns the commission, and Col. Jimmy Lake, announcer and triggerman in charge of the lights. The commission contends that the lights are not to blame for confusing the fans, but Col. Lake's nervous energy, which sometimes leads him to flash the wrong light, or both. Two incidents of this will be cited against the Colonel.

Item four, according to Turner and Ahearn, merely is a big misunderstanding and can be rectified in less time than it takes to write. They admit that fighters frequently do not know what they are making until they receive their checks, but only because they usually are paid more than the law calls for—never less than the minimum decreed.

When fighters weigh in at the commission office on Monday they are requested to sign a statement authorizing the commission to deduct one (1%) per cent of their purse for the Injured Fighters' Relief Fund. Of late several managers have told the inspector in charge of this, that they did not know what their boys' purses would be until paid off.

Ahearn claims he usually tries to pay the preliminary boys a few dollars more than he would have to under the law—and there are none to dispute that statement.

If the show is successful he adds a few dollars to the purses, and if the show doesn't draw as well as expected he merely pays them the minimum scale. In the future, he says, he will sign all fighters at the minimum to avoid disputes.

Landon Faces Latin School

Landon High's football forces entertain Boys Latin School, of Baltimore today at Landon Field in the only prep school game of the day. The game starts at 3:30 with the Oriole City Club favored to win.

Landon has undertaken but three starts this season, winning one and losing the other two. Its last game was a 13-to-0 defeat at the hands of Georgetown Prep on a field fairly flowing with mud. The game today will probably be the toughest on Landon's schedule, according to Coach McCarty. Boys Latin School boasts one of the most powerful prep line-ups in Baltimore.

Fullback Maloney, a bruising and shifty-hipped plunger, will be Landon's main threat at the Baltimore goal. He has accounted for the team's longest gains in previous tilts.

Fishing

By Bill Ackerman

The outlook for rockfishing over the week-end is in no way different from what we have had during the past month. Greater schools than we have ever seen in bay waters, yet the chances for a good catch are entirely dependent upon luck. The past week has seen many parties return to the dock, after running through the schools for several hours, with not one to show for their trouble. Others with from five to ten, but only the occasional party with a real catch in the box.

ACKERMAN.

F. G. Ellison of the Civil Service Commission, with his party, was one of the lucky ones, with a catch of 65, some weighing eight pounds. I. S. Thompson was another, with a catch of 33, taken trolling in the bay just below Cove Point, and with the same captain, Rody Langley, who has consistently seemed to have something more on his lures and hooks than feathers and bait. Without doubt he has brought in more fine catches than any other guide on the bay this season.

Tuesday evening at the Lord Baltimore Hotel in Baltimore, the Maryland Sportsman's Luncheon Club, in conjunction with the Game Fishing Association of Ocean City, presented the awards for the outstanding fish caught this season. Mrs. Ruth M. Parsons, of Wilmington, received two fine trophies for the largest marlin of the year, a fish that weighed 118½ pounds, just 16 more than she weighs herself. Capt. Tal Bunting and Capt. Jim Whaley, both received recognition for the first wahoo and first sailfish ever caught north of Hatteras on rod and reel.

Capt. Crawford Savage was accorded a trophy for high boat. His catch was 65. While two other captains were not far behind in their grand totals, still Crawford's total is outstanding. From our records, we would say that nowhere has any captain ever taken so many of the billed fish during a single season. But neither has there ever been so many white marlin caught anywhere in the world by sport fishermen. The count of 910, which many anglers think is the total, is only the count of the charter boatmen, and doesn't include more than 100 caught by privately owned boats.

President Ab Roe, of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Ike Waltons, did a swell job with his poster for the turkey shoot to be held November 13 on the Rockville pike, just beyond Bethesda, but he forgot one little item—to tell who was giving it, so we are doing it for him.

If those attending last year will remember, the shooting, which started early in the morning on two ranges lasted until dark. This year there will be at least two more ranges, so that more shooters can be accommodated at one time, and just two days before the opening of the shooting season this event is bound to be interesting because hunters from miles around are out, not only for one or two of the many turkeys but also to get their eye right for the real going.

The Mac Hart Trophy Shoot scheduled for this week-end at the National Capital Skeet Club is postponed indefinitely.

Everywhere anglers and hunters gather these days, there is talk, not only of the proposed new fish and game commission law for Maryland, but also of the black bass law that has hung fire for so long.

Not only is it finding its way in many of the county campaigns, but in others it is being demanded by voters that their candidates make known their stand on the matter.

With Duncan Clark, of Chevy Chase, running for the House of Delegates from Montgomery County, there is little need for inquiry, for he has been active in conservation matters all his life—we know how he stands. We think the lot of the sportsman in Maryland would be vastly improved if more like him were sent to Annapolis—regardless of party affiliations.

The commanders and representatives of four United States power squadrons in the Chesapeake Bay area, Potomac, Patapsco, Hampton Roads and Wilmington, met in Baltimore last week to discuss squadron activities and for an interchange of ideas to make for more uniformity in the methods of instruction for every grade up to navigator.

Ease CHEST COLD misery

First massage throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub at bedtime. This relieves the distress.

Then, to make its long-continued poultice-and-vapor action last even longer, spread a thick layer of VapoRub on the chest and cover with a warmed cloth. This also gives the skin extra protection against chilling.

Long after restful sleep comes, VapoRub keeps on working—loosens phlegm—eases muscular soreness or tightness—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion.

Often, by morning the worst of the cold is over.

Devitt Goes To Richmond

The second football clash of Devitt School and St. Benedictine High of Richmond will occur today on the field of the Virginia school. Last year, in the first game, Devitt won a stiff contest, 13-6.

Although having won but two of its five starts so far this season, Devitt will be favored again today. Its schedule is heavy with good elevens and none of its losses has been by more than a single touchdown. The most recent loss, to the C. U. Frosh, proved that the Black and Gray eleven is outstandingly strong. Final score was 7-2, a fact Devitt points to with pride rather than shame.

Devitt's passing combination, Punchy Kemp to Whitey Crawford, is expected to furnish the spearhead of its attack. The rest of the team, mostly former high school stars, is ready for action.

'Horror' Is Rampant On RKO-Keith Screen

'Dracula'-'Frankenstein' Thrill Crowds
Films Held 'Best of the Month'
Notes and Gossip of the Theater

QUITE obviously there still is eerie and seemingly irresistible fascination in the occult and the supernatural when realistically projected upon a motion picture screen. So magnetic is this attraction of the chills-and-fever school of drama, in point of fact, that RKO-Keith's Theater yesterday was packed with nervous patrons who shrieked, screamed, groaned, grunted and whistled in ecstatic enthusiasm over the thrills and gooseflesh afforded them by the twofold dose of "horror" provided their morbidity by the joint exhibition of "Dracula" and "Frankenstein."

BELL

There is, of course, virtually a new audience for these Universal blood-curdlers, first released in the early months of 1931. Those who were 10 years of age then are almost 18 now, and those in their early 'teens are moving up into their 20's. Many of these, no doubt, were viewing the composite bill of nerve-janglers for the first time. But also in the audience were many adults, seeing the pictures for the second time, who were amazed to discover how skillfully fabricated they really were, back there in '31, and how well they have survived the years as perhaps the foremost examples of their gruesome type.

Beyond the fact that both are terrifying, "Dracula" and "Frankenstein" do not fall into the same category. The former is that frighteningly realistic picturization of Bram Stoker's yarn of the resurrected dead, who prowl the earth at night, living on the blood of the living; the latter, Mrs. Mary Woolstonecraft Shelley's fantastic fable of the young scientist who created a hideous monster out of bits of dead bodies and miraculously imbued him with life. Idyllic tales, both!

In "Dracula," the role of the supreme ruler of all the vampires is played by that strangely gifted apostle of terror, Bela Lugosi, who had a long experience in the part on the stage before he was drafted by Universal to incubate his nightmares on the screen. Mr. Lugosi is a very horrible fellow, indeed. He entertains a murderous passion for leaping out at unsuspecting and beautiful young women and sinking his insatiable fangs into their necks, leaving them dead after this gentle attention. There doesn't seem to be much Helen Chandler, David Manners, Dwight Frye and the late Herbert Bunston can do about it, until Count Dracula is safely and permanently nailed in his coffin just about as the audience is to fall in a dead faint.

"Frankenstein," on the other hand, is a little more on the mundane side. The monster created by the scientist doesn't go in so much for the supernatural as he does for plain, everyday destruction by sheer brute force. Created with every human attribute save that of reason, this gigantic chap kills 'em with his hands. But he very definitely kills 'em. The simple villagers finally solve the problem of survival by chasing the monster into a windmill on a high hill and then setting the torch to it. It is not a pretty death the monster dies, but it is an eminently conclusive one. Before that happens, however, he has made it pretty tough for the late Colin Clive, Mae Clarke, John Boles, Edward Sloman and numerous others.

If that is the sort of thing you like, there it is. Great crowds seemed to be highly edified and hugely excited by it yesterday. I wouldn't be sure that I wasn't one of them, even the second time around!

Not the least surprising aspect of this disinterment of the two films that inaugurated the "horror cycle" of a decade ago, is that in lighting, photography, direction and all other essential qualities they seem as efficient as upon their original release. The sound tracks occasionally rasp a little, but otherwise "Dracula" and "Frankenstein" might have left the laboratories only yesterday. The compilation of potential heart failure is of such extensive footage that time is left for nothing beyond the Pathe News in the way of supplementaries.

Getting down to film plays of a little later vintage, it is interesting to note that considerable unanimity of opinion seems to prevail as between the West Coast and East Coast choices of the "Best of the Month," as disclosed in the November 1 issue of the Will H. Hays brochure distributed under the title of "Selected Motion Pictures."

The West Coast nominations are "If I Were King," "A Man to Remember," "Suez" and "That Certain Age." Here in the East, the preview committees cast their ballots for "If I Were King," "Listen, Darling," "A Man to Remember," "Men With Wings," "The Sisters," "Stablemates" and "Young Dr. Kildare."

Washington, as yet, is not quite up to these lists. "If I Were King," of course, will follow "Suez" at the Palace next Thursday; "Men With Wings" opens today at the Earle; "That Certain Age" has been here and gone, as is true likewise to "Stablemates." Apparently, "A Man to Remember," "Listen, Darling," "The Sisters" and "Young Dr. Kildare" are worth waiting for—especially "The Sisters," proclaimed the "Picture of the Week" in the latest issue of Life.

Paramount News is up to its old tricks again. Its six-camera coverage of the match race between Seabiscuit and War Admiral, run at Pimlico on Tuesday, hit the screens in time for the first shows yesterday at the Earle, Metropolitan and Trans Lux Theaters and will run a week in each house. A postletter from Bob Denton yesterday pointed out that "perfect camera positions and excellent weather, combined with new telephoto lenses, put this race right in your lap. Add drama tension of the crowds and local color attendant upon a spectacle such as this and you get a winning thrill." Bob's postscript, "If you cut into that next year's, Hains Point, vacation fun, I hope the two bucks were riding along with the Biscuit," just goes to show the strong Denton leaning toward fantasy.

Lee Mason, a far-in-advance emissary, making the rounds in behalf of "Pins and Needles," due at the National the week of December 5, drops the information that the troupe already has a representative in the Capital to make bookings for theater parties for that week. Mrs. Frances Schaffer, the "Pins and Needles" agent, is making her headquarters at the National Theater, wtih office hours from 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. Two of the irons she has in the fire are prospective parties for the National Women's Trade Union League and the Washington League of Women's Shoppers.

It is pointed out further that the company coming to Washington is the original one which gave a "command performance" in the White House on March 3. Another company, recruited when the original launched its cross-country tour, is carrying on the New York run, which began a year ago.

The opening of the season of so-called legitimate drama and the vagaries of Washington's fall weather have put the eminent Dr. Frank T. Shyne, saviour of many performances that gave promise of not going on, "back on the stage." That is to say, this skillful drugless therapist already has kept a considerable number of thespians in the running these past few weeks. For example, he has been at the constant call of Ina Claire this week, who otherwise might not have been able to continue in "Yankee Fable." Miss Claire has been suffering from a severe attack of laryngitis, contracted in Boston last week—but the play has gone on and she has continued to Shyne!

Signed-Confession Note

Okay, Harrington, I'll go peaceably!

Columbia

Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Walter Pidgeon, Walter Connolly and scores more continue in the hectic business of revealing the sometimes shady enterprises of the newsreel cameramen, a 'round-the-world aviatrix and a savage South American jungle tribe—with a slight dash of love tossed in on the side—in the pivotal roles of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's hip-hip-hooray production of "Too Hot to Handle." Having jarred the susceptible gentry loose from its equanimity at Loew's Palace, this high-pressure subject yesterday took up its stand on the screen at the Columbia.

"Too Hot Too Handle" also is a little too hot to swallow in some of its manifestations. It is, however, swift and exciting entertainment for those who are not too insistent in their demands for rigid logic and complete believability.

Clark Gable, as the ace cameraman, who roams the face of the earth, from the bombed cities of China to the wilds of South America, via a hazardous air flight over a burning munitions ship far out at sea, is even more inflammable than he was in "Test Pilot." Miss Loy, cast in the role of the intrepid young aviatrix, who is made the victim of every kind of hoax for the sake of "spot news," is buffeted about in reckless fashion. The Messrs. Pidgeon and Connolly, plus Leo Carrillo, Henry Kolker, Johnny Hines, Virginia Weidler, Betty Ross Clark, et al., add to the tempestuous quality of the film in a succession of apoplectic sequences.

"Too Hot to Handle," on its repeat engagement, is, as usual, augmented by a substantial list of short supplementary features.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

New York, Nov. 3.

LIBERTY: Every Christmas America's Grand Lady, Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, presents sweaters to the children of the White House employes as well as to her friends . . . Last week she phoned David Dubinsky, head of the I. L. G. W. U., asked him to recommend a place where she should buy the sweaters, and an appointment was made, at the union headquarters—for Tuesday at 11:45 a. m.

DUBINSKY summoned Louis Nelson, head of the Knitgoods Workers Union, and assigned to him the duty of escorting Mrs. Roosevelt to the place of purchase . . . Nelson always wears a cap—even in negotiations with employers . . . "When you're with Mrs. Roosevelt," Dubinsky advised, "you shouldn't wear a cap. You should wear a hat." . . . "I refuse," Nelson insisted. "I like to wear a cap. Otherwise I feel that my personal liberty has been violated." . . . "The union will pay for the hat," Dubinsky stated. "It's no longer a question of personal liberty. It's a matter of organizational work. For once, wear a hat." . . . "I wouldn't do it for the President," said Nelson, "nor for his wife. But for the union—I'll do it."

AND SO, at 11:45 Tuesday, when Mrs. Roosevelt appeared, Louis Nelson awaited her—wearing a brand new hat. And as they left the union headquarters Nelson evidenced one touch of compromise to the sacrifice of his personal liberty . . . From his back pocket jutted a folded cap.

SETTLEMENT: One of the largest settlements in the Internal Revenue Department this year will be effected . . . In settlement of all his income-tax matters, Ed Wynn is delivering to the Internal Revenue Department—and he sold his possessions to it—$361,000 in cash.

TURMOIL: Tommy Manville will appear at the offices of his attorney in connection with a new lawsuit against him . . . The suit has been filed in Syracuse by a man who applied to Manville for a job as bodyguard . . . The plaintiff insists that in his letter of application he enclosed original letters of recommendations from some ex-Presidents—that these originals never were returned to him and that he, therefore, is entitled to $10,000 damages.

POLITICS: Mayor LaGuardia, who found an excuse for not appearing at the Gov. Lehman rally on Monday, doesn't want this fact known . . . The Mayor and Gov. Lehman both attended the memorial services for the late B. Charney Vladeck . . . LaGuardia, who still hasn't indorsed either gubernatorial candidate, picked up Lehman at the latter's home and took him to the services.

TRIUMPH: These are some of the results of Orson Welles' broadcast Sunday night . . . Macy's has requested 10,000 recordings of that program for sale to customers . . . The Sam H. Harris Theater on Forty-second street will revive on Friday the H. G. Wells' movie, "Things to Come." . . . The N. B. C. radio engineers in New Jersey, who had called their New York office Sunday night and asked "How long shall we stand by?" were called in for censure yesterday—not because they believed that Martians had invaded this country—but because this was a confession that they were listening to the rival C. B. S. program.

CHATTER: A syndicate headed by John J. McAndrews was formed this week to promote an Eastern Bowl football game—between representative teams from the East and the West—to be held in New York after the collegiate season . . . Gallup, the poll man, has confided that Roosevelt's speech for Lehman will be the turning point in the campaign and will assure his re-election . . . Louise Macy will go to Paris January 1 to represent Harper's Bazaar there for one year . . . James Fitzpatrick, who produces the Travelogs, now is working on travel shorts about America.

Fire-Proof Collar Ordered for Muni

Paul Muni must wear a substitute for a celluloid collar in his title role in "Juarez."

Muni, a stickler for authenticity, found biographers of Benito Juarez, Mexican liberator, agreed that he invariably wore the same costume—a black frock coat, black trousers, black tie and celluloid collar.

Fear that a celluloid collar might explode under the heat of the lights on the set caused the studio to ban its use as a fire hazard.

Olympe Has Lucky Telephone Number

Olympe Bradna is convinced that she owes her success to her Paris telephone number.

For that reason she arranged to have the same telephone number in Hollywood.

Olympe was persuaded several days ago by a numerologist working on the set where she and Ray Milland are making "Say It In French," that her childhood telephone number, more than anything else, impelled her starward.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 3.—After an actor has overcome the obstacles, which are legion, and is lucky enough to be asked to place his John Henry on the dotted line, he is ushered immediately to the publicity department, to fill out a biographical questionnaire. An actor is always asked to do this before his signature is dry on the contract, because the officials know that with the thrill of getting a contract he's in a state of mind to agree to anything. When he sees the length of the questionnaire he wonders if his contract's worth it. As he reads more of the questions, he begins to laugh, picks up a pencil and goes to it, being sure it will land in the waste basket.

HEDDA HOPPER

Questions cover everything, from birth—every thought, emotion, activity, desire, ambition.

Here are some of Hollywood's answers:

Ronnie Colman, reading a question, "If it were not for your profession as an actor, what would you do?" replied, "I shudder to think." And a chorus girl answered the same question by saying, "Marry the only Congressman I know—woo—woo!" Another answered "What is your ambition?" by "To be a fine actor, not a movie star, or shouldn't I mention that?" Kay Francis, when happily married, answered the same question: "To be a good wife." Well, she's had four chances. And what about Baron Barnakow?

Judy Barrett's no fool. When asked, "Would you prefer to marry an actor?" she answered, "Whom have you got in mind, and can you help me get him?" Whitney Bourne, to questions on education, answered, "Ran away from four of the best schools on two continents. Was fired from two others. Looking for more continents."

When Barbara Stanwyck was asked for her favorite recipe, she wrote: "I'm the world's worst cook, but oh, how I can scrub a floor." How few would admit it.

During the making of Columbia's "Girls' School," some of the answers were snappy. One answered this one: "When should girls be allowed to go out with boys alone?" "At fourteen if she's not dumb or a fool." And to "At what age should a girl take her parents into her confidence?" the reply was "Just as soon as the parents can take it."

Freddie March in a recent quiz about stage experience, answered: "My biggest flop was in 1937. See New York papers. Notices will be sent on request." Which shows Freddie can take it.

Try topping the Irish. Maureen O'Sullivan answered the question: "What do you consider the greatest comedy of errors in history?" "Corrigan's flight to Dublin." So will Corrigan before he finishes the picture.

Andy Devine does all right too. To "What hardships did you suffer in reaching your present position?" he answered, "Manual labor and mental unrest, especially at option time."

Vincent Price gave his first impression of Hollywood as "Mortu-

Merle Oberon on "What do you like to collect," wrote: "Men, furs and jewels." And who doesn't?

Pat O'Brien answered to "Do you let your wife pick out your ties?" "Only the ones I give away." And to the question "Do you keep in touch with old friends?" "Don't have to, they do with me, God bless 'em."

Margaret Sullavan answered to this one: "Who are your closest friends?" "Birds, bees and flowers, 'cause they won't tell."

As to be beauty secrets, when asked what she did to protect her good looks, Bette Davis replied: "Nothing, I haven't any."

These are just a few which will give you an idea of how our boys and girls suffer for their art. Maybe it's worth it for a few thousand a week.

Star's Stand-In Has Own Two

Blonde Sally Sage is probably the only stand-in in screen history to have two stand-ins of her own.

Miss Sage is Bette Davis' regular stand-in. Right now she's working with Miss Davis on the "Dark Victory" set. However, she's also an actress in her own right and has been cast in "Secret Service of the Air."

That means that a substitute stand-in will take her place on the "Dark Victory" set until she finishes her work in the Secret Service picture. And while she's acting she'll have her own stand-in.

D. C. Bankers To Attend Convention

A.B.A. Meets at Houston November 14 to 17 Fleming in Delegation

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Among Washington bankers forming a delegation to the convention of the American Bankers Association at Houston, Tex., November 14-17 are Robert V. Fleming, president of Riggs National Bank and a past president of the American Bankers Association; Vice President and Cashier George O. Vass, of Riggs National Bank; Vice President and Cashier Wilmer J. Waller, of Hamilton National Bank; Francis G.-Addison, jr., president Security Savings & Commercial Bank; Lanier P. McLachlen, president McLachlen Banking Corporation; Frederick P. H. Siddons, secretary American Security & Trust Co.; John A. Reilly, president Second National Bank; Thomas J. Groom, executive vice president and cashier, Bank of Commerce & Savings; Arthur J. Linn, comptroller, Hamilton National Bank; M. F. Calnan, president Liberty National Bank; Charles H. Doing, first vice president of Washington Loan & Trust Co. and District vice president of the national bankers' association; Ralph Endicott, an assistant treasurer of Washington Loan & Trust Co., and D. J. Needham, general counsel of the national association.

Ford Executive to Speak

On the convention speakers' program have been listed W. J. Cameron, of Ford Motor Co., and Chairman Jesse H. Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation Board, a report by President Orval W. Adams, of the association, discloses. Mr. Jones is chairman of the directorate of the National Bank of Commerce, in Houston.

Among other speakers for the meeting are Dr. Adam S. Bennion, assistant to the president of the Utah Power & Light Co., Salt Lake City; J. Reuben Clark, chairman of Foreign Bondholders Protective Council, Inc., New York City, and former Ambassador to Mexico; Dr. Karl T. Compton, president of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Cambridge, and the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Episcopal Bishop of Washington, D. C.

Trust Research Week

Gilbert T. Stephenson, of the American Bankers Association, meets with the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association, at a luncheon, November 8, at 12:15 p. m., at the Willard Hotel, in connection with the observance of trust research week by the District of Columbia Bankers Association.

In announcing the meeting, Chairman Roma M. Plake, of the underwriters bulletin committee, explains that while it is distinctly not the province of the life underwriter to draw up wills, yet acting in the capacity of consultant, it is his province to be familiar with wills and to be able to advise his clients intelligently upon them.

Mr. Stephenson is the director of the trust research department of the Graduate School of Banking. He holds the master of art and bachelor of law degrees from Harvard University and is a nationally known author in the field of trusts, and one of the most prominent contributors to trust literature. He is the author of "Wills" and "Living Trusts."

In connection with his research in the field of trust business, Mr. Stephenson has traveled widely, studying at close range the trust system of England, France, Germany, Denmark, Norway and Sweden. He was president of the trust division of the American Bankers Association for 1930-31. In addition, he has headed from its inception the trusts faculty of the Graduate School of Banking. Invitations have gone out to members of the fiduciary section of the local bankers association.

Ages of Employes In One Industry Average 40 Years

New York, Nov. 3.—With a record of ten years or more of continuous service in one company for 52.3 per cent of all workers now employed, the corn refining industry reported today that the average age of employes in all companies is 40.3 years and that 41 per cent of these men are over 45 years old.

The report was made by the Corn Industries Research Foundation for 11 manufacturers of starches, syrups, sugars and by-products from corn; the 11 companies comprising the entire domestic industry.

Under a general policy of permitting the older men either to continue working or retire with pay, according to their own choice, the oldest employe in the industry is a man of 78, still putting in a full day's work and with no intention of retiring. The former recordholder, with 70 years of continuous service, retired last year at 93. Nearly all companies reported one or more employes over 70 who prefer activity to retirement.

Tire Supplies Drop To Three-Year Low

The Commerce Department announced yesterday that distributors' stocks of tires and tubes were at their lowest levels in three years.

An October 1 survey of inventories disclosed 5,493,000 casings and 5,552,000 inner tubes. The number of tires was about 500,000 below both a year ago and two years ago and the total of inner tubes was 740,000 under a year ago and 1,500,000 below two years ago.

275 Companies Report For Third Quarter Food Concerns Gain

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 3.—Net profits of the first 275 important companies reporting income for the quarter ended September 30 were 63 per cent less than in the like period last year, a compilation today by the Associated Press showed. Earnings of this representative cross-section of industry totaled $137,163,000 against $369,236,000 in the same quarter a year ago.

Third quarter net was slightly larger than either the first or second periods this year, although substantially smaller than any quarter in either 1935, 1936 or 1937.

These 275 corporations earned $393,000,000 in the full nine months, compared with $1,145,000,000 in the first three quarters last year, a slump of 66 per cent.

Hardest hit earnings-wise in the latest quarter were steel and automobile accessory concerns, each reporting a deficit in place of a thumping 1937 profit. With the changeover period, when motor manufacturers slacken off old model production and begin assemblies of the new, falling mostly in the third quarter, profits of seven leading car and truck producers were 94 per cent below 1937.

Grain Prices Lower

Food companies were star performers, chalking up a 19 per cent increase over last year. They were the only important group to report a gain. This was explained as the result largely of reduced costs of operations stemming from the drastic slump in raw material prices. Last year, it will be recalled, grains were priced approximately double today's levels.

The following tabulation shows the number of companies reporting for the third quarter, net profits and the per cent loss as compared with the like 1937 period:

	Companies	Net income	Per cent ch'ge

North Carolina Sells Bond Issue Locally

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 3.—For the first time in the history of the State, an entire bond issue of $4,620,000 was purchased by a North Carolina securities concern for a group of North Carolina banks at the record low interest rate of 2.077 per cent. The sale was made October 27 by State Treasurer Charles M. Johnson and the council of State.

Five bids were made by New York banks or syndicates, one bid by a Boston syndicate, ranging from 2.101 per cent by the First National Bank of New York and associates to 2.271 per cent by Lazard Freres & Co., New York, and associates.

Winter Wheat Acreage Sharply Lower in Year

Chicago, Nov. 3 (AP).—Three Chicago crop experts today estimated fall wheat seeding in the United States winter wheat belt was sharply less than a year ago but larger than the allotment proposed under the Government production control program.

The average of the estimates indicated a winter wheat acreage of 46,397,000 acres, compared with 57,316,000 seeded a year ago. The wheat allotment program was designed to keep the seeded area of all wheat within 55,000,000 acres, of which 38,000,000 acres would be in winter wheat and the remainder in spring wheat. Total acreage seeded for 1938 harvest was 81,000,000 acres.

October Cotton Trading 3,853,600 Bales

Trading in futures on three organized cotton exchanges totaled 3,853,600 bales of cotton during October, compared with 4,991,000 bales for September, the Commodity Exchange Administration announced yesterday.

A total of 3,195,500 bales or 82.9 per cent was traded on the New York Cotton Exchange; 642,350 bales or 16.7 per cent on the New Orleans Cotton Exchange; 15,750 bales or 0.4 per cent on the Chicago Board of Trade. December was the most active future with 27 per cent of the total volume of trading.

Odd-Lot Selling Exceeds Buying

Selling orders of small traders on the New York Stock Exchange exceeded buying orders by a substantial margin in the week ended October 29.

The Securities Commission reported yesterday that customers' odd-lot orders to sell that week totaled 46,482 involving 1,227,642 shares valued at $37,155,266. This compared with 37,355 buying orders involving 1,080,673 shares, valued at $36,122,654.

2 Exchange Holidays Occur Next Week

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—Two holidays will be observed generally by financial exchanges and commodity markets throughout the country next week.

Election day, falling on Tuesday, November 8, will close the New York Stock Exchange and local commodities, as well as futures trading in the principal grain centers. Markets in Canada and Europe will operate as usual.

Armistice Day, Friday, November 11, will be observed by exchanges in France and Canada in addition to those at home. However, the London Stock Exchange and cotton and grain markets in Liverpool will function that day.

Trading in livestock will be done on both holidays at Chicago, Jersey City and other centers.

Wheat Prices Decline With End of Drought

6-Inch Kansas Rainfall Big Argentina Crop Corn Prices Lower

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Tumbles of 1½ cents maximum in Chicago wheat prices today accompanied rains and snows that ended prolonged drought in widespread domestic areas Southwest and West.

Upward of 6 inches of rain fell at one place in Kansas. General selling here was induced by this drenching and by reports that moisture relief for crops elsewhere had been substantial, notably throughout Oklahoma and Nebraska as well as Kansas.

In addition, optimistic crop advices came from Argentina, where enlarged cutting of early wheat was noted, and a total yield as great as 280,000,000 bushels appeared probable.

At the close, despite late rallies, Chicago wheat futures were ⅛ to ⅝ lower compared with yesterday's finish; December, 63¾@63½; May, 65⅜@65½. Corn unchanged to ⅝ down; December, 44¼@44⅛; May, 47⅞. Oats unchanged to ⅛ off; rye showing ¼ to ⅞ drop, and provisions unchanged to 5 cents setback.

Steel Industry Employs 431,000

New York, Nov. 3 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel Institute reported today a total of 431,000 employes were on the pay rolls of the steel industry in September, compared with 427,000 in the preceding month.

September pay rolls of the industry totaled $52,365,000, against $52,712,000 in August, and with that exception were the largest for any month since November last year.

Bibb Textile Mills Operating Full Time

Macon, Ga., Nov. 3 (AP).—W. D. Anderson, president of the Bibb Manufacturing Co., $20,000,000 textile corporation, today told stockholders new business booked since September 1 had enabled the company's mills to resume full time operations.

Reporting to shareholders in annual meeting, Anderson said the upsurge in business seemed "likely to continue for some time."

Bituminous Production

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended October 29 as approximately 8,475,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week: 1937, 9,269,000 tons; 1936, 10,193,000 tons. Percentage of change: 1937, decrease 8.6 per cent; 1936, decrease 16.9 per cent.

C. B. S. Votes Special And Regular Dividends

New York, Nov. 9 (AP).—Directors of the Columbia Broadcasting System have declared a special dividend of 10 cents a share and a quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the class A and B stocks, both payable December 9 to holders of record December 1. The previous payment, in September, was 25 cents.

Household Finance Extra

Directors of the Household Finance Corp., Chicago, have ordered an extra dividend of $1 and the regular dividend of $1 on the common stock. The extra is payable December 6 to holders of record November 29 and the regular on January 14 to holders of record December 31. A similar extra was paid last December.

Czech Glass Plants Taken Over by Reich

The Commerce Department said yesterday that the German occupation of Sudentenland probably would reduce the sale of foreign glass in this country.

Cabled reports to the department showed that Germany has taken over all the flat glass and 60 to 70 per cent of the glassware plants of Czechoslovakia. The same plants, experts explained, will not be able to sell goods in America as easily as before because German goods must pay higher tariffs in this country than Czech products.

California Wool Clip 28,901,000 Pounds

San francisco, Nov. 3.—Wool production in California, one of the State's leading industries for over a century, is estimated to amount to 28,901,000 pounds in 1938, the current Business Outlook of the Wells Fargo Bank reports.

This figure compares with the 1937 wool clip of 25,962,000 pounds, valued at $7,789,000. The increase for 1938 is due both to more sheep being shorn and to heavier fleeces because of good weather.

Bank Clearings Rise Sharply During Week

Due to Nov. 1 Payments 13.6% Over Year Ago New York Gain 22.9%

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 3.—Bank transactions pumped sharply above those for the week preceding, owing to the inclusion of heavy first-of-the-month settlements in this week's total, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

Year-to-year comparisons are also somewhat distorted due to the fact that the election day holiday occurs one week later this year than it did in 1937. Thus, total clearings for 22 leading cities for the six business days ended Wednesday, November 2, amounted to $6,084,543,000, reflecting a gain of 13.6 per cent from the $5,311,305,000 for the five-day period ended November 3, 1937.

New York clearings for the week totaled $3,881,585,000, against $3,158,250,000 last year, giving an increase of 22.9 per cent. For the 21 cities outside of New York the aggregate was $2,152,958,000 or only a small fraction of 1 per cent less than the $2,153,055,000 for the same 1937 week.

Bank clearings at leading cities, together with percentage changes from last year, follow; also the daily average bank clearings for the months of August, September and October:

(000 omitted.)	Week (six days) Nov. 2, 1938	Per cent change

THE type of gentlemen I want to contact are those along in middle age who may possibly have been engaged in some profession such as teaching, or business executives who have an acquaintance in Washington. Each one must be of an unusual type; a retired Army officer desirous of increasing his income would fit into this picture. My plan is for two Washington representatives and one from Alexandria to represent me there. This connection will be an unusual one and will, we believe, be a valuable association to those who fit in with our plans. Please write outlining past experience, giving telephone number, and contact will be made Monday. Box 7, Washington Post.

The Thrill That Comes Once in a Lifetime

Bob Burns Says—

I've often wondered what an awful lot of commotion it would make if merchants would listen to the market quotations and mark their prices up and down according to the quotations on textiles, wheat and steel in Wall street.

One day I was passing a little art store and I saw a little oil painting in the window priced at $4. The next day when I went back to buy it, it was priced at $5.25. When I asked the proprietor about it, he says, "Well, according to the papers, oil rose two points yesterday."

Virginia Cuts Cream Price to Conform to D.C.

Alexandria Affected
Clinic Head Reports
Cites Lack of Funds

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Temple 3787
Delivery Service, phone Alex. 1400.

A reduction in the prices of whipping and table cream to bring them in line with recent reductions in Washington was ordered yesterday by the Virginia State Milk Commission. According to the Associated Press, the new prices are effective today.

For table cream the retail price per quart has been lowered from 55 to 45 cents, for pints, 34 to 27 cents; half pints, 18 to 15 cents, and gills, 11 to 9 cents.

Whipping cream will be retailed at a reduction from $1.10 a quart to 85 cents; 60 to 50 cents for pints; 35 to 30 cents, half pints, and 20 to 17 cents for gills.

The new price range was ordered to enable Alexandria retailers to meet competition of Washington dairies.

Clinic Asks More Funds

The Alexandria Community Clinic is held back because too much money is spent for medical supplies, and it lacks a dental clinic, sufficient space and social service investigation, Dr. W. Clyde West, chief clinician, said yesterday in a report covering operation of the clinic for three quarters of the year.

As Dr. West pointed out, the clinic was established with the co-operation of Alexandria Hospital, to furnish, without cost, medical service to the city's needy. Started by the Kiwanis Club, it is financed by the Community Chest.

The staff of the clinic includes all white physicians practicing in Alexandria. All medical services are donated. Services given by physicians to date is valued at $8,000, while the cost of operation has been $1,500.

Nursing and clerical services have been given by members of the Women's Auxiliary to the Alexandria Medical Society and by others interested in improving conditions of the poor.

The clinic occupies the second and third floors of the building at the northwest corner of Prince and Fairfax streets, with a waiting room, reception hall and two examining rooms on the second floor, and the third floor is utilized for eye examinations. Examining tables, sterilizers, instruments and instrument cabinets and other essentials to the value of over $1,000 have been donated by doctors and other interested individuals.

1,095 Used Services

There have been 1,095 individual visits to the clinic, and 84 operations by members of the staff, the majority in Alexandria Hospital, for the nominal fee of $5 for the use of the hospital facilities, which the clinic pays.

The obstetrical clinic furnishes pre-natal care and acts as an admitting service for the free maternity cases in the hospital, the report stated. A weekly children's clinic is held and an eye, ear and throat clinic is conducted by Dr. William T. Burch.

Patients unable to purchase needed glasses are supplied them by the fund maintained for that purpose by the Alexandria Lions Club.

The clinic has the volunteer services of a skilled laboratory technician in its work.

R. E. Mays Dies

Robert Edward Mays, 36, of 30 East Walnut street, died yesterday in a Washington hospital. He was the son of Thomas E. Mays and the late Mrs. Kimmie G. Mays. He leaves his father and the following brothers and sisters: H. H. Mays, of Alexandria; William G. Mays, of Washington; Thomas G. Mays, of Hopewell, Va.; Russell W. Mays, of Afton, Va.; Mrs. Virginia Mays, of Washington; Mrs. R. E. Turner, of Afton, and Mrs. M. H. Watson, of Danville, Va.

The body was sent to Afton, Va., where the funeral will be held at 3 o'clock this afternoon from the Rodes Methodist Church.

Police Get Rubber Clubs

The Alexandria police are now using new black rubber night sticks, known as the "humane billey," in place of the old wooden stick in use for decades.

Captain of Police John S. Arnold stated the new stick is approved and used by the police of many cities.

Home Circle Bazaar

The Woman's Home Circle of the Volunteers of America will conduct a bazaar all day tomorrow, starting at 9 a. m. at the northeast corner of King and Alfred streets. The proceeds will be applied toward the redecorating of the Volunteers of America home at 1001 Duke street.

More Farms in Allegany

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 3.—Statistics compiled by Allegany County Farm Agent Ralph L. McHenry show that county acreage under cultivation has increased and the number of farms, both large and small, has increased from 1,000 to 1,500 in the past decade.

N. Y. Tests Prove Women Can Lose FAT

Ask Your Doctor If It Isn't Good Way. Read EVERY Word

NEW YORK, N. Y.: A test conducted by a prominent N. Y. physician and a nationally known newspaperwoman proved there is a harmless, effective way to lose fat: if you'll only STICK TO IT and give it a fair trial.

In 40 days 25 women lost a total of 286 lbs. EVERY woman lost fat—the average loss per woman being 11½ lbs. The women first of all ate sensibly. And for proper functioning they took a little daily dose of Kruschen Salts. If you have the slightest doubt about this Plan, just ask your own doctor about its safety and merit.

And this is important to know:

Kruschen is not just one salt, as some people may ignorantly believe. Rather it is a blend of 6 active mineral salts (see on box) which, when dissolved in water, make a healthful mineral drink similar to the waters of famous European Spas where wealthy fat women have gone for years.

Here's the Kruschen Plan: Just take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen in hot water every morning for better functioning. Go light on fatty foods and sweets—eat plentifully of lean meats, fresh fruits and green vegetables. Plan to do this faithfully for 28 days and see if you don't lose fat and feel healthier and younger. A jar costs but a few cents and makes gallons of a most highly efficient mineral health water.

Arlington Bills Its Taxpayers For $1,140,411

$1,010,127 for County
Rest Is for State
Many Settle Early

Arlington County,
Bureau of The Post, Clarendon, Va.
Tel. OXford 0509.

Charles T. Jesse, county treasurer, announced yesterday that tax bills for 1938 totaling $1,140,411.35 have been sent to the taxpayers. Of this amount, $1,010,127.54 will go to the county treasurer, the remaining $130,283.81 to the State.

The treasurer reports many taxpayers are coming to his office to pay their taxes to avoid the penalty which will be added on and after December 6.

Auto Stickers Required

J. C. McDermott, commander of State police in this area, yesterday warned against driving cars unless the proper inspection sticker is displayed on the windshield. Drivers ignoring this warning will be subject to arrest, he said.

Woodlawn Citizens Meet

Election of officers will feature the meeting of the Woodlawn Village Citizens Association tonight at Mount Olivet Church, on Glebe Road. There will also be a vote on changes to the constitution.

Plans were completed for the Armistice Day dance at the Washington Golf and Country Club, November 10, at a meeting of the committee of Arlington Post American Legion and Auxiliary yesterday.

E. J. Hailer, general chairman, announced his committee as follows: Thomas W. Delahanty, master of ceremonies; W. E. Holmes, commander of the guard; J. J. White, G. P. Brannan, N. D. Mitchell, C. Hollingsworth and F. R. Rice, door committee.

The guard of honor, Commander and Mrs. G. P. Brannan, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Hailer, and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Holmes, will go to Leesburg on the evening of the dance to accompany Mr. and Mrs. Westmoreland Davis, honor guests, to Arlington County.

Benefit Party Tonight

The Business and Professional Woman's Club of Arlington County will sponsor a benefit party for the Arlington Hospital tonight at the Lyon Park Community House.

Prominent leaders, white and colored, from Virginia and other States, are on the three-day program. The principal address Wednesday afternoon will be made by Joseph R. Houchins, acting specialist on colored statistics, U. S. Department of Commerce, Washington. Other speakers will be Luther P. Jackson, head of the history department, Virginia State College, and G. G. Singleton, of the same institution.

Project to Eliminate 'Roller-Coaster' Road

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 3.—A dangerous stretch of "roller-coaster" road on the Buchanan Trail, connecting Waynesboro with the Lincoln Highway west of here, will be eliminated during the winter months. Assemblyman Paul C. Moomaw said in making announcement of the highway approval that the cost of the proposed change in the half mile of roadway and approaches will be $150,000.

Democrats Hear Kent Mulligan

The Patuxent Democratic Club met at Branchville, Md., Wednesday to hear Kent Mulligan, former manager of David J. Lewis' Senatorial campaign, speak. In urging election of Democrats, he failed to mention Senator Tydings. A committee was appointed to seek a hall as a permanent meeting place.

Hopkins Students Rebel at Abolition Of Cotillion Board

Baltimore, Nov. 3 (AP).—A vigorous controversy, involving the extent to which college or university students may enjoy a "democratic government," embroiled the faculty and a portion of the Johns Hopkins University student body today.

Immediate issue in the argument was the abolition, by the student council and Dean Edward W. Berry, of the Hopkins' cotillon board, which formerly handled dances and other social functions, on grounds the board was undemocratic and inclined to be snobbish.

Board members, said the student council, with Dean Berry's approval, were elected largely on the basis of claims to social distinction. A new board of social activities was created to handle the cotillon board's duties.

Under the auspices of a student "committee of thirty," a protest meeting was called for tomorrow on the campus.

A Three Days' Cough Is Your Danger Signal

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your common cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you may get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained. Creomulsion is one word, ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Fairfax Chest Chiefs Meet At Leigh Home

'Soup Drive' On
Dr. Newman Resigns

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST,
P. O. BOX 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Falls Church 2068-M.

Area chairmen and subchairmen for the Community Chest campaign in the six magisterial districts of Fairfax County met last night in Langley at the home of Randolph Leigh, chairman of the suburban unit, to complete plans for the county-wide drive.

Falls Church district is the only completely organized area of Fairfax County and workers there have started a campaign to educate citizens to the necessity of properly designating the Fairfax County Community Chest as the recipient of their donation as allowed under the agreement between Washington chest and the suburban unit.

Persons living in Fairfax County and working there can give all of their donation to the local chest, officials pointed out, while persons living in the county but working in Washington can give up to 50 per cent if their cards are properly designated. If they do not specifically designate Fairfax County Community Chest, however, that agency will receive only 6.5 per cent of their donation instead of 50 per cent, as that is the ratio born by Fairfax County's $15,250 budget to the budget for the entire Washington area.

A change in the agreement this year also favors the suburban units, which can now receive their entire budget, irrespective of whether the Washington chest makes its quota or not, if local residents designate their contribution properly. Last year Fairfax County, which raised its quota locally and designated sufficient funds in town to cover the balance of the budget, only received 89 per cent of its budget, because the Washington chest as a whole failed to make its quota.

Accotink Bingo

Accotink Lodge, I. O. O. F., No. 75, with the co-operation of Mayflower Rebekah Lodge, No. 35, will sponsor a bingo party in the Accotink Lodge this evening beginning at 8 o'clock. Proceeds will be used for the annual Christmas party for children.

"Soup Drive" Is On

"A Soup Drive" is being sponsored by the Parent-Teacher Association of the Herndon School, beginning Monday and continuing through the week to secure materials for hot soup lunches for the children. The school has been divided into three groups, the first four grades, the next three grades, and the high school. A prize will be given to the grade bringing in the most material. The hot soup will be furnished free to all pupils bringing their own bowl and spoon. Others will be charged a small fee.

The committee in charge of the drive includes Mrs. Frank Wickers, chairman, Principal J. H. Rice, Mrs. Sadie Crabill, Mrs. Ernest Gibson, Miss Emma Ellmore and E. J. Heglar.

Annandale Bingo

The Annandale School and Community League will give a bingo party tonight in the school auditorium beginning at 8 p. m. for the school equipment fund. The committee in charge of arrangements will include M. L. Bates, W. J. Cleveland and Mrs. J. M. Howdershell. Prizes are under the charge of Miss Leone Rollins and Miss Virginia Thornton. Refreshments will be served free.

Dr. Newman Resigns

Dr. Sigmund Newman has submitted his resignation as a member of the Vienna Town Council effective immediately. The Council will consider the resignation and selection of a successor at its meeting Monday night.

State Road Board Ends Allocation Hearings

Richmond, Va., Nov. 3 (AP).—The State Highway Commission completed its series of hearings on tentative allocations for primary roads today after receiving requests from delegations in the Richmond and Suffolk districts.

The permanent allocations of the $9,717,760 for road construction to begin July 1, 1939, will be announced within the next few days, C. S. Mullen, acting highway commissioner, said.
